VEIL OVER OPERATIONS

Official Bulletins Say Little Regarding Battle in Poland.

News From Unofficial Sources Says, However, That the Germans Have Penetrated as Far as the Lowica-Skierniewice Line Forty Miles From Warsaw — Russian Army Too Strong Say Military Men.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 23.—The German column between the Warta and Vistula rivers, according to yesterday's official reports from Russian Poland, comprises six army corps and presents a front fifty-five miles in extent. The two rivers prevent flanking movements by either side, hence the fighting consists of straight frontal attacks in which the losses of both armies are heavy, but neither side so far has been able to gain a marked advantage.

"The Germans, military observers contend, cannot advance further in this region since the Russian concentration which was delayed by bad roads and by lack of railroads, now is complete.

The veil has been drawn over the battles between the Russians and the Austrian-German forces. The headquarters of both armies now are confining themselves to the briefest statements concerning the hostilities, saying merely that fighting is in progress.

News coming from unofficial sources, however, shows that the German advance has penetrated farther into Poland than had been disclosed previously, and that Warsaw is threatened for a second time. Gen. von Hindenburg's army has advanced as far as the Lowica-Skierniewice line, which means that the Germans have covered two-thirds of the ground to the Polish capital, from which they are now only forty miles distant. Further south in Poland, however, the Teuton allies are said to have been repulsed between Radom and Kielce.

The battle in Poland in the direction of Lowicz is the most critical one and, while the Germans have the greatest confidence in Gen. von Hindenburg here and in Petrograd, military officers express the opinion that Russia's overwhelming superiority in numbers of men again must tell as was the case when the Germans made their first attack on Warsaw.

From East Prussia, on the north, to Cracow, on the south, battles are being fought on an extensive scale. However, the fighting in the eastern areas of war is absorbing the energies of the Kaiser's host to such an extent that their attacks in Western Belgium and in France show indisputable signs of relaxing.

The German advance on the Radom-Kielce line has been repulsed with extremely heavy losses, according to official announcement.

Notwithstanding the fear of a siege of Warsaw, the Russians are preparing to advance again toward the frontiers or Silesia and Posen and then on to the cities of Posen and Breslau. If the Russians succeed in taking Cracow, they will find themselves before the strong defences of the River Oder. The Austrians in Galicia are retreating into the Carpathian passes, and the fall of Przemysl is considered imminent.

Grand Duke Nicholas now has his army disposed on positions naturally strong, and where he has the added strength of important railway communications. The Germans have been drawn away from their important system of railways in Silesia, but they have possession of the roads leading to Novo Georgievesk and Warsaw, but these are practically their only lines of communication with their own bases.

Ammunition is beginning to fail the garrison at Przemysl, Galicia, says the Bucharest correspondent of The Giornale d'Italia of Rome. The garrison attempted two sorties last week—Wednesday and Thursday—but both failed, the Austrians losing heavily.

It is believed in Bucharest that the Rusisans desire to exhaust the means of defence before launching a general assault, probably at the beginning of December.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

Riot In British Detention Camp Was Promptly Quelled.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man., Nov. 23.—Five alien prisoner were killed and 12 others were seriously wounded in a riot at the detention camp here. The riot was precipitated when some of the prisoners attempted to escape. These facts were brought out at an inquest held at the camp on Friday.

According to the evidence presented to the jury, the affair occurred at two o'clock Thursday, just after the mid-day meal. There were 2,600 aliens in the engine-room at the time.

At an arranged signal — the breaking of a window with a chair.— the prisoners suddenly attacked the guards with cups, saucers, tables and anything else that happened to be handy. The guards fired a volley in the air. This failed to quell the riot, and a second volley was fired, as a result of which four of the prisoners fell dead, or so seriously wounded that they died almost immediately. Twelve were wounded. The men then surrendered.

Trying To Rouse Egypt.

ROME, Nov. 23.—News despatches from Syria and Palestine to the Italian newspapers say that the Turks and the Germans are making great efforts to arouse the population of Egypt to rebel against British authority. With this object in view, it is said, the Turks are spreading the report that the Khedive is on his way

SIXTEEN BODIES FOUND VICTIMS OF WRECKS

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 23.—Sixteen bodies have now been recovered from the wrecked vessels Curtis, Marvin and Petersen, near Grand Marais, Lake Superior. Nine of these have been identified. They are: Captain J. H. Jennings, master of the Curtis, Detroit; Glenn Campbell, chief engineer on the Curtis, Chicago; Edward Anderson, deck hand, Norway; Segrud Helverson, wheelsman, Philadelphia; Henry Kitchner, deckhand, Detroit; Charles Nelson, deck hand, North Tonawanda, N.Y.; Albert Johnson, deck hand, Cleveland; Julius W. Noll, deck hand, Alden, North Dakota.

The bodies of the two women still remain unidentified. One of them is that of an American; the other appears to be a foreigner.

On one of the women was found a watch bearing the monogram "R. B.," but there was nothing further to identify her. To add to the mystery there is a card in the local marine postoffice addressed to Miss Margaret Pearce, in care of barge Petersen.

According to C. L. Hall, representative of the Edward Hines Lumber Co here, most of the bodies recovered were from the steam barge Curtis. She carried a crew of fourteen, and had two women as cooks. Their bodies were taken to Senay yesterday, where they will be prepared for shipment. All the bodies were frozen stiff, and the work of preparing them for burial will be slow.

It is now believed that the Petersen and the Curtis were the first to succumb to the storm. Wreckage from these boats is piled up twenty feet high along the shore, and amongst this were found the bodies of more than half of these recovered.

MAY RAID ENGLAND.

Germany's Next Move May Be a Naval Attack.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — It is understood in Parliamentary circles here that Germany, now being held back in France and Belgium, may be tempted to try a raid on England in the near future. The British military authorities are said to be well-informed as to the locality and the method of the proposed attack. However, it is pointed out that Germany will not risk her command of the Baltic on the chances of a raid on England. If her high seas fleet were disposed of Russia would have the free run of German Baltic ports. It is believed on the other hand that the Germans are extremely confident of the efficiency of their fleet, and that they may be disposed to take great chances to hit England, so deep is their hatred of her.

It is assumed that Germany's object would be to create a panic here and prevent the sending of further British reinforcements to the front. The recent incursion of the German flotilla on the east coast will, it is believed, encourage the Germans to make a dash for England.

CAN TALK WITH DEAD.

Sir Oliver Lodge Makes Striking Declaration at Walworth.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — Sir Oliver Lodge, president of the Society for Psychical Research, in a lecture yesterday in Browning Hall, Walworth, made a striking declaration of his spiritual faith, expressing his absolute conviction in the future existence, and stating that he has conversed with friends who had passed away.

"I say this," said Sir Oliver, "on definite scientific grounds. I say it because I know that certain friends of mine still exist, because I have talked to them. Communication is possible, but one must obey the laws to find out the conditions. I do not say it is easy, but I say it is possible."

Sir Oliver said that once people realized that consciousness was something outside the mechanism it made use of, they realized the survival of existence was the simplest thing. It was unreasonable that the soul should pass out of existence when the body was destroyed; people were not limited to the few years the

CORPSES EVERYWHERE

Eyewitness Describes the Situation Around Ypres.

Fresh Evidences of Terrible Losses of Germans In Neighborhood of British Position Are Received Every Day — Tommy Atkins Now Has Hot Baths In Vats and Emerges Fit for Prodigies of Valor.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — Col. E. D. Swinton, the British official eye-witness with the expeditionary forces on the continent, writes:—

"Around Ypres we continually are finding fresh evidence of the slaughter inflicted on the enemy. On the 15th one of the battalions while advancing discovered a German trench manned by 17 corpses, while there were 49 more in a house close by. On the next day a patrol discovered 60 dead in front of one trench and 50 more opposite another. All the farms and cottages to our front are charnel houses.

"The significance of such small numbers lies only in the fact that they represent the killed in a very small area.

"According to prisoners the German attempt to take Ypres proved costly. One stated that there were only 15 survivors out of his platoon, which went into action 50 strong. Another reported that of 250 men who advanced with him, only 19 returned. It is believed that one Bavarian regiment, 3,000 strong, which left Bavaria for the front on Oct. 19, had only 1,200 men left when an attack was made along the Menin-Ypres road on Nov. 14, in which it again suffered severely.

"The plight of some units of new formations is even worse, one regiment of the third reserve corps having six hundred men out of 3,000.

"If the period since the beginning of the war is considered, the numbers are even greater. For instance of the 15th corps, one regiment lost 60 officers and 2,500 men. Another lost 3,000 men. These figures include casualties of every kind — killed, wounded and missing.

"In all four days the weather was bad. Generally fine and frosty in the early morning, it turned to heavy rain as the day wore on. Thursday snow started to fall about 1 p.m. and continued until about six o'clock. It fell in large soft flakes, which covered the ground for two inches and melted under foot. The state of the roads, already bad, was rendered worse.

"The condition of the trenches became wretched beyond description. From having to sit or stand in a mixture of straw and liquid mud, the men had to contend with half frozen slush. 'It is an ill wind, however,' and one good point about the wet weather is that it made the ground so soft that the enemy's howitzer shells, sink some depths before they detonate and expend a great part of their energy in an upward direction, throwing the mud about.

"Nevertheless, the wet and cold have added greatly to the hardships of the troops in the trenches and the problem how to enable to keep their feet reasonably dry and warm now is engaging serious attention.

"At one place, owing to the kindness of the proprietor, certain works recently were placed at our disposal as a wholesale bath house, lavatory and repair shop. In the works are a number of vats, large enough to contain several men at one time. They serve most excellently for the provisions of hot baths for the men on relief from the trenches.

"While the men are enjoying their bath, their clothes are taken away, their underclothing washed or burned and replaced by a new set. At the same time their uniforms are fumigated, cleaned and repaired and buttons sewed on. The repairs are done by a gang of women who are employed for the purpose. By this installation some 1,500 men are catered to in every way.

"When they come out cleaned, refreshed and reclothed, they are different beings. Not only is this a good thing from the point of view of the happiness and comfort of the individual, but it is a distinct gain in his fighting value, and an asset to the force. Nevertheless, bodily the men are in good condition. Food in abundance reaches them regularly except in a few cases, such as always occur in the trench warfare."

ATTACK BEATEN OFF.

Servians Administer Severe Check To Austrian Advance.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — The Times' special correspondent at Kragajevatz says: "After being permitted to advance into Servia unchecked, save by sundry rearguard actions, the Austrians yesterday mare a determined attempt to break through the Servian line near Lazarevatz. A sharp engagement developed and resulted in the retirement of the Austrians.

"On the same day the enemy executed a movement which probably was undertaken with the object of turning the Servian left flank. Proceeding down the road from Vallevo towards Kecleritch, they met the Servian column and were routed. There are no developments on the rest of the front. Austrian movements are considerably handicapped by the weather, for snow is steadily falling.

No 20 Per Cent Discount Sale At SINCLAIR'S

During the past few days we have been frequently asked if we are going to have a 20 per cent Discount Sale, and our reply has been decidedly No. Our business has not been built up on prices that permit of a semi-annual 20 per cent discount sale, but rather by giving our ever increasing patrons Dry Goods and Ladies' and Children's Garments at prices that compete with the large stores of the big cities. A 20 per cent Discount Sale twice a year would put us out of business—our close prices and small profits could not stand it.

Black Hand Fire In New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. — Eight persons are dead, two others were so badly burned that they may die, and seven more, including two fire captains, were injured as the results of a fire of suspicious origin, which early yesterday virtually destroyed a five-storey brick tenement house on East 29th street in this city.

As a result of disclosures made to the police by a tenant, who had been receiving black hand letters for the past year, and upon whom a demand for $1,000 was made last Friday, under threat of bodily harm, detectives to-day are seeking men known to them as black hand leaders, whom they suspect of responsibility for the fire. Panic which seized the tenants when they were aroused by rescuers caused the loss of life, the police say, as the building was amply equipped with fire escapes. All the dead were Italians.

Gale on Adriatic.

ROME, Nov. 23.—The Adriatic Sea for the last few days has been swept by a violent gale, causing many Austrian mines to go adrift. The Austrian naval attache informed the Italian Government that Austria had ordered out topedo boats to destroy the mines, despite the rough sea. His explanation was not satisfactory to the Italian officials, who blame Austria for not having anchored the mines, and therefore being responsible for the threatened disaster to shipping and the fishing trade.

TURKEY EXPLAINS OUTRAGE.

Firing On Tennessee By Turks Is Satisfactorily Accounted For.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Turkey has voluntarily explained to the United States Government, through Ambassador Morgenthau, that the shots fired toward the launch of the American cruiser Tennessee, last Monday, were intended merely as the customary warning that the Port of Smyrna was mined and closed to navigation.

Although the explanation is informal, and the United States Government still is waiting a reply to formal representation which Ambassador Morgenthau was instructed to make to the Turkish Foreign Office, it is generally admitted at the White House, State and Navy Departments that all danger of serious complications over the incident had been removed.

Ambassador Morgenthau reported that two members of the Ottoman Cabinet, the Ministers of Interior and War, had fully explained the occurrence to him and high officials here said his message was filed before the instructions sent from Washington to discuss the subject officially with the Grand Vizier could have been received.

All Must Leave Cracow.

PARIS, Nov. 23. — The military governor of the Austrian fortress of Cracow, has published a decree, says a despatch from Rome, to the Havas Agency, warning the civilians that if they do not quit the city they will be court-martialled and shot. The decree says:—

"The civil population of Cracow is not obeying with sufficient punctuality the order for the evacuation of the city, the Government warns those who are slow in obeying that they

COL. CARLETON APPLIES

To British War Office to Be Sent to the Front

Col. L. R. Carleton, D. S.O., commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston has made an application to be sent to the front. He is very anxious to go across, and as he has had extensive experience, he would be a valuable officer to the imperial army. On the other hand, it is held that the Royal Military College imperial staff should be retained here, as they are most valuable in training officers.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Robert Bullis, aged twenty years, son of William Bullis, of Wolfe Island, was accidentally shot in the head on Thursday afternoon by a companion, Robert Gillespie. He is in a very critical condition, suffering from a fractured skull, but it is expected that he will recover. The two young men had been shooting rabbits at the foot of the island, and the accident occurred just after the two started for home.

Gillespie was carrying his rifle over his shoulder, when the trigger caught in his coat and it went off, the bullet striking his companion in the back of the head, causing a fracture to the outer skull.

Hundred Mile March

By 21st Battalion Likely to Be Taken--Back Into the County --Soldiers Will Bivouac

It is likely that a route march, similar to that taken by the R.C.H.A. about four years ago, will be taken by the 21st battalion. The R. C. H. A. took a march of about a hundred miles through the country as far as Hartington in the depths of winter. Four guns were taken. The battalion route-march will be taken in the near future if present plans are followed. No official announcement has yet been given as to where the march will be taken, but it will likely be back through the country. Bivouacs will be made at suitable places for rest.

W. S. Bernard, of the Interior Department, Ottawa, is with the second contingent at Kingston. Mrs. Bernard will leave for England to join the Territorials nursing service, of which she was a member prior to her marriage, which took place in August.

Trenton Branch Patriotic Fund

(Trenton Courier)

Generous contribution of $500.00 from D. W. Kirkland, Los Angeles, Cal. an old Trenton boy, sent in memory of his dear good old mother, long a respected old Scotch citizen of the old village of Trenton in the early 70's.

Our worthy townsman, Mr. Albro N. Sprague was forwarded this handsome amount, to be applied to any Fund most deserving at this time. After due consideration, the same has been placed to the credit of the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund; this generous gift being accompanied with a very warm feeling, hearty letter, which will be duly acknowledged.

All honor to D. W. Kirkland's name for the sentiments expressed and the noble spirit that prompted and called forth such heartfelt generosity. Wishing there were many like him. He will get his reward.

R. WEDDELL,
President.

Trenton, Nov. 16, 1914

Office of Treasurer Trenton Patriotic Soldiers' Fund.

To Albro N. Sprague, Esq., Trenton, Ont.

Dear Mr. Sprague:—

I beg to thank you on behalf of Executive of the Trenton Patriotic Fund for the splendid subscription made by Mr. D. W. Kirkland, of Los Angeles, Cal., to the Fund.

This subscription, coming as it does from a former Canadian, now a citizen of the great Republic to the south of us, helps us to realize that the cause of the Empire is recognized by the citizens of other nations, as a just one; and that the sympathies of former Canadians are with the Empire in this trying time.

The five hundred dollars, which Mr. Kirkland has sent to this Fund in honor of his mother's memory, will be of the greatest help to the Executive in meeting the many calls for assistance from dependents of soldiers who have gone to the front, and it is therefore with the deepest gratitude that I beg to acknowledge same.

(Sgd.) H. A. THOMSON,
Treasurer.

CANADIANS WAKE UP

One of the finest examples of loyalty, not necessarily to one's own country but to the people of country in distress and need, has been shown us in an old resident of Trenton, D. W. Kirkland, who has been living in California for a number of years and is a resident of the United States.

Mr. Kirkland has forwarded a New York draft for $500, through Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Sprague, old California friends of Mr. Kirkland, to swell the amount already subscribed to help the Belgians, to look after our own that that have been thrown out of work and the families that have been deprived of their bread-winner through offering their services for the defence of the Empire, and thus, fall upon the State for support. One of the most outstanding features in connection with this charitable gift is the spirit it was given in. There was no solicitation or appeal for help made to him but simply the desire in his heart prompted him, out of memory for his mother, to forward the money that will help in no small degree to alleviate pain and suffering. No restrictions were placed upon this money except that it was to be used by Mr. and Mrs. Sprague where they deemed the most benefit would be derived from it, and as a result the Trenton Patriotic Fund has been increased to a considerable extent.

I'm sure we as citizens of an Empire at war, will not fail to grasp the significance of such a spirit as shown by Mr. Kirkland, which only opens up to us the bond of fellowship that exists between all English speaking races and the desire on the part of the citizens of the United States to assist Canada, the British Empire, yes even all that are afflicted through this awful war—this is the spirit that should prevail and we are glad that Mr. Kirkland, an old Trenton boy, has been one of the many brothers across the border to come forward so gallantly at the present time.

"BOBS."

Dead! under the skies, too, of France!
That is the message they bring.
Soldiery up to the last—
Serving his country and King!

He, of the mind trained to grasp,
He, with the eye trained to see,
Strategist, able, alert—
Strange, this of Fortune's decree!

Never too great to be kind,
Checking all hatred of foes;
Friend of the children and poor,
Touched by the commonest woes!

Idol of troops, yet unspoiled,
"Bahadur," named in their pride;
Measuring up to their hopes,
Champion, leader, long-tried! z

Not for his rank so reversed,
Head of no faction, or clan.
Big in his purpose and thought,
Great as a soldier—a man

CANADIANS WAR SONG

Tipperary is Not Good Enough For the Overseas Force.

As England's soldiers have adopted "Tipperary" as their battle song, the Canadian soldiers have adopted one of their own. Here it is:

"Pork, beans, hard tack, tra la la la.
Poor hungry soldiers tra la la la,
With blistered feet and aching bones
we march along all day.
And go on picket all night to keep the rebs away.
But when we meet the enemy we do not thing of rest.
For whether we march or fight, boys, we do our level best."

A Scotch paper in an article on the Canadian contingent tells of a young soldier marching in front of his regiment carrying the regimental pet on his shoulder. It was a small white rat. Another regiment has a black bear, and it is said the Germans will have to deal with it.

C. P. R.'s Fourth Vessel On Clyde

Metagama, Sister Ship to Missanabie, Launched Friday, Breaking Record

The Metagama, sister ship to the Missanabie, was successfully launched Friday and christened by Lady Biles, wife of Sir John Harvard Biles, LL.D., designer for the British Admiralty, in the yards of Barclay Curle and Co. at Glasgow. When the Metagama went down the ways she created a record which bids fair to remain unbroken by any shipping company engaged in Canadian or Amerwican business. She is the fourth vessel launched by the Canadian Pacific on the Clyde this year. In the light of present conditions this is a glowing commentary on the substantial condition of her owners' exchequer.

The Metagama's sister ship, the Missanabie, reached Montreal recently on her second voyage out of Liverpool, and went back again Friday morning. They are of the "one class" for 520 second, and 1,200 third class type, with paseenger accommodation Each has a length of 520 feet and a beam of 64 feet, while the breadth of the passenger decks are 41 feet. Each vessel has a dead weight capacity of 7,950 tons, with an approximate cargo capacity of 6,000 tons. The famous cruiser stern which is also the feature of the new boats placed on the Pacific is introduced by these boats on the Atlantic. The new ships have six complete steel decks. In order to ensure safety the hulls are sub-divided by water-tight doors and bulk-heads, so as to be capable of floating when three compartments are open to the sea. These water-tight bulkheads and doors are automatically controlled from the bridge. The speed of each vessel is 15½ knots, with a draught of 27.5. As for the interior of the vessels, each cabin state room is fitted with a wardrobe and chest of drawers, folding lavatory with mirror, and other conveniences. The public rooms are dining saloon, smoking room, lounge and drawing room. The domestic refrigerating plant is capable of making 300 lbs. of ice per eight hours. The vessels are heated and ventilated on the thermo-tank and Crittal system, changing air eight times each hour. There is also a printing plant on board each vessel. They are fitted with Murray's patent nested life boats as well as motor life boats. They are the first steamers to have Babcock and Wilcox patent davits, which enable the boats to be launched from either side of the ship even when at a considerable list.

HOLD UP PRICE OF DIAMONDS

Union Cutters Will Strike in Any Shop That Sells Under Scale

The wholesale price of diamonds will not be reduced because of the war. This has been decided not by the mine owners and manufacturers, but by the workmen employed in the diamond-cutting factories. This was announced in the Maiden Lane district in messages received from Amsterdam, Holland. Three associations have agreed to this policy—the Diamond Workers' Union, which is international in character; the Association of Diamond Cutters and Manufacturers, and the Association of Diamond Brokers.

The Diamond Workers' Union decided to order a strike in the shop of any manufacturer whose diamonds should be sold under the scale of prices prevailing before the war. If a manufacturer should try to evade the rule by selling secretly, the union will issue an order prohibiting workers from doing any further work for him. A broker who attempts to negotiate sales of diamonds under market prices is to be shut off from supplies as a result of the arrangement.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractic is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS
Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"
ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG
COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

Under the white glare of electricity a little group stood on the half-dismantled stage. The people in the cast were there—property men, the call boy, electricians, ushers, and the humblest employe of the house. The actors still wore their stage garb and make-up. Dorcas' hand was linked in her brother's arm. For a moment Oswald stood watching her. Her face was flushed, her eyes shone, she seemed transfigured by happiness.

Merry stretched out a welcoming hand to Oswald. "We've been waiting for you, Oswald, to round out our circle," he cried gaily. "I had a Scotch grandmother. When she reached the western wilderness and built a home, she made her husband carve over the chimney-piece: 'We're a' sibb tae ane anither here.' Once, when I was a little boy, she explained it to me. I understood. The English language won't translate these words, but they mean that there's nobody here but the best of friends. Because we are a' sibb tae ane anither here tonight I want to break a secret to you. It is a more wonderful secret than the news I gave to the audience."

Merry looked about him with a quick, boyish smile. "I used to say I could not make a curtain speech to save my life. Tonight I feel as if I were blossoming out. I seem capable of speeches behind the curtain as well as in front, I suppose happiness makes an orator of a man." He laughed joyously. "But—my secret. This dear lady, whom you all love and honor, has promised to be my wife."

He held out his hands to Dorcas and caught hers, then he drew her into his arms as if they stood alone in some empty corner of the world.

THE END.

Chose a Name To Fit The Case

With a Family of Eleven He Would Soon Run Short of Names For Them

Shakespeare (or was it Bacon) said "What's in a name. The correct answer is said to be "more or less."

One is reminded of the story told by a certain Judge in this county. It seems that he was travelling in a strange part of the country and stopped at an old negro's cabin to inquire the direction to a certain village. It so happened that there were eight or ten colored children playing in the yard, all resembling one another and bearing unmistakable likeness to the old man. When the desired information was sought the colored patriarch turned to one of the piccaninnies and said: "Here, you Judas Iscariot, come and see what this gemmen done want."

He was asked why he had given such a name to his son.

"Case it's a Bible name," replied the old man.

"But," suggested the judge, "you could have founds lots of names in the Bible that would be better and more appropriate for your son."

"Deed, I couldn't, boss," responded the darkey. "I already had eleven children when he comes, so I goes lookin' frew, de Bible to fin' him a name, an' I come to where it says 'it 'ud been better for Judas Iscariot if he neber been born."

The old colored father at least had the advantage of most of us in the fact that he read his Bible, although he did get the purport somewhat twisted.

In the new illustrated Bible now being presented by The Intelligencer on the educational certificate plan, the various passages are made plain by accompanying illustrations that portray the actual meaning of the text. Such a Bible has never before been issued. It gives to the reader an entirely new and correct conception which is at once interesting and instructive. The Bible thus becomes an educational work of rare value to young and old alike. It is just the book for the family—father, mother, brother and sister—everybody that would have a desire to enlighten himself on everyday topics of conversation.

The Intelligencer is now presenting these Bibles for six certificates with the amount of expense items to defray the cost of distribution, as explained elsewhere.

Clip the certificate from another page of this issue.

Even a multimillionaire can have his vermiform appendix removed only once.

The times have improved. There are no scandals in food supplies to the foreign armies.

BOTH ARMIES RESTING

Artillery Duels Are Only Activity on Western Front.

Correspondent of London Paper Says German Situation In Flanders Has Become Steadily Worse and General Retirement Is Inevitable—They May Make Another Assault Upon Town of Dixmude.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—In Flanders and in France the armies seem to be enjoying a long deserved rest, for the only remaining evidence that the belligerents are facing each other is an occasional bombardment with heavy guns. Infantry attacks have temporarily ceased.

"The day has been very quiet. There has been nothing of interest to report, except that in the Woevre district, in the Eparges, five German attacks were executed in mass in the space of two hours and were stopped abruptly by the fire of our artillery."

The following official communication was issued Saturday night:—

"To-day there was a violent bombardment of Ypres, during which the market place and the town hall were destroyed. In the region of Soissons and Vailly there was rather strong cannonading.

"There is nothing to report from the other parts of the front."

The following official communication was given out in Paris Sunday afternoon:

"The day of the 21st was calm upon the whole front. In Belgium, as in the region from Arras to the Oise, there were only intermittent cannonades. Our artillery evidenced in general more activity than that of the enemy. Our batteries succeeded in demolishing many lines of German trenches. The enemy worked elsewhere to construct new ones in the rear.

"The day was equally calm upon the Aisne, in the Champagne, as well as in the Argonne, upon the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges."

A correspondent on The Franco-Belgian frontier, writing to The Sunday Observer says:

"The terrific fighting of the last five weeks north of Lille, though it has cost the allies thousands of lives, has, in the aggregate result, been all in their favor, for the Germans' situation is incomparably worse now in West Flanders than it was the week after they had entered Ostend.

"The flood, the bitter frost, which grips the hearts and mortally assails the lungs of the German infantry in their flimsy trenches, and the unconquerable courage of the British, Belgians and French alike, have so demoralized the Kaiser's hordes that when the general retirement, which is now inevitable, begins, it will rapidly develop into a rout.

"The Germans dare not retreat They know the allies are eager to pursue; that they have in the background a whole army corps waiting, fresh and chafing for the signal to advance.

"The allies' generalship has been superb. The Germans have wasted themselves in fruitless efforts to achieve their aim of occupying Calais, till winter has descended on them, and the elements have become the chief force in the great alliance. The Germans are concentrated at Keyem, and large reinforcements are reported advancing along the road from Thierout to Beerst, presumably to attack through Dixmude. Their attacks on the allies' line from Dixmude to Nieuport have slackened off in the last few days."

PEACE OVERTURES BEGIN.

Germans Trying To Get Hollanders To Move For Cessation of War.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 23.—Although the German press asserts that Germany can bring 6,000,000 reservists into the field without making use of men under 18 and over 45 years of age, there are several indications that the Teuton officials are anxious for peace.

Semi-official attempts are being made to negotiate, first with one, and then with another, of the allied forces. German sections of peace societies are sending circulars to their representatives in Holland and other neutral states to initiate a peace movement.

The International Wohlfahrt Verein (Welfare Union) of Berlin has made a direct appeal to influential Dutch newspapers by means of a printed circular.

In military and Governmental circles in Holland, it is considered likely that Germany itself soon will open peace negotiations. The Government, it is said, sees itself seriously menaced by invasion, and should the enemy march into Germany, people would feel that they have been misled by the Government as to the trend of the war.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The wet weather prevailing at Salisbury Plain made today a suitable occassion for the demonstration in the Canadian camp of a special military tent invented by F. P. Aylwin, of Ottawa, formerly of the Northwest Mounted Police. The "continever tent" as it is styled, is really a hut with vertical sides and slightly-sloping roof, made of wood covered with reinforced canvas. The chief superiority of the tent, beyond its comfort, lies in the fact that it is so constructed that it can be put together or taken down in a few minutes. The War Office has given a contract for 10,000 of these tents, and it is hoped by Mr. Aylwin that his demonstration before the Canadian officers today will result in further orders. Sample tents erected in Green Park, Piccadilly, and used by the Territorials, showed that both men and horses were better protected than under canvas.

Grand Trunk News

RAILWAY HAVE SENT LARGE NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES TO WAR.

Among those associated with the Grand Trunk Railway System, who have enlisted for active service, is Mr. R. F. Morkill, Signal Engineer, who was gazetted a Lieutenant. Word has been received at Montreal that Mr. Morkill is already engaged in important work in Europe for the Imperial authorities.

Another of the Grand Trunk's officers who has enlisted, it has been announced, is Mr. F. G. English, General Agent, Freight Department, with headquarters in London, England. While the Railway has supplied a large number of men to both the first and second Canadian Contingents.

According to informations received at Grand Trunk Headquarters in Montreal, yesterday, practically 10 p.c. of all railway employees in England, Ireland and Scotland have joined the colors. Partial returns available show that 54,276 men had left the British Railways to enter army or navy, but of a total of 643,135 employees on all roads.

On the London and North Western alone 9,400 men have left, while the Great Western is second, with 7,600; the Midland, third, with 6,700 and the North Eastern next with 5,000.

From the employees of British railways special corps of railway troops have been recruited to assist in restoring and maintaining rail communcations in France with the allied armies at the front. These consist of maintenance men, linemen, telegraphers and other similar while two companies consist of engine drivers, signal men, guards and switchmen, to assist a body of fifteen thousand French railway men already organized for railway work of a military nature.

MOVING ON ERZERUM.

Russian Column Has Defeated Turks at Juzeveran.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 23. — Once again the Russian troops are advancing toward Erzerum, Turkish Armenia. It is reported that a Russian column has defeated the Turkish troops above Juzeveran. The Turks are fleeing, closely pursued by Russian cavalry.

The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh (also spelled Hamdije), in bombarding the town of Tuapse (also called Todpza), which has 16,000 inhabitants, killed 35 soldiers and one civilian. The Russian forts caused the Hamidieh to retreat. The damage to property was slight.

Tuapse is in southeastern Russia.

The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. sends the following:—

"A British destroyer has captured a Turkish sailing vessel on which were two German officers in disguise. They were proceeding to Smyrna.

"An Anglo-French squadron fired on some Turkish torpedo boats in the Dardanelles, but the latter disappeared."

It was officially announced yesterday that the Russian littoral of the Black Sea has been mined, in many places for a distance of 60 miles out from the coast. Ships are absolutely forbidden to sail at night in or out of the Russian ports on the Black Sea, through the mouths of the Rivers Dnieper and Bug, and in the Gulf of Kertch.

The Turkish Bedouins again have made a raid into Egyptian territory from Eastern Sinai.

General Escapes With Twenty-Five Men—Rest Surrender.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Cape Town correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., says that two sons of Gen. Christian De Wet, the rebel leader, have surrendered to a magistrate in Cape Town.

Several of Gen. De Wet's chief officers, together with most of his supporters to the west of the railway line, surrendered at the same time.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Pretoria says:—

"It is officially announced that Gen. De Wet's rapidly dwindling rebel commando became surrounded by loyal forces in the vicinity of Boshof, on the Vaal river. Gen. De Wet succeeded in escaping with only 25 men. The remainder of his force surrendered."

GENERAL HOSPITAL FOR OVERSEAS

KINGSTON, Nov. 22.—Word has been received from Ottawa regarding the proposal made by Maj. Etherington on behalf of the Queen's Medical Faculty, to raise the personnel of a stationary or general hospital for overseas service. The letter from headquarters states that the patriotic offer was greatly appreciated, but that as no hospital had been requested by the Imperial authorities for the second contingent, none were being organized. The offer, however, will be recorded in case such a request should come from England.

Major-General Sam Hughes Denounces Panic

Will be No Experimental Mobilization of Troops in Montreal

RAID IDEA INSANITY

Minister Replies to Toronto Paper's Criticisms--Approves Home Guard Idea

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.——"As long as I am Minister of Militia and my friend Col. Wilson is in command here there will be no mobilization of the troops in Montreal, unless for very good cause," declared Major-General the Hon. Sam Hugehs on his arrival at Montreal last night, when he was met by Col. E. W. Wilson, O.C.

"This whole talk of German invasion through the United States is sheer insanity," said General Hughes. "It has put people from the Niagara frontier to the Eastern Townships into a panic, which seems to have emanated from Toronto, and it is time some one put a stop to it. And," he added grimly, "I think I have done something to stop it and steady the people. There has been talk of mobilising troops at various points along the frontier. There will be no such mobilization if I know it. There is no need for it, and any expxerimental mobilization, unless the public are warned of it, in such times as these, would simply cause a panic, just as it did in Toronto a few days ago. There is no precedent for secret mobilization of troops unless for actual cause, and we want no more of it."

General Hughes said that examination had been made into the reports, and rumors that thousands of Germans were being gathered in Maine and other states under the guise of hunters, ready to make a descent upon Canada, and they had been found to be as incorrect as they are absurd.

"These stories have been manufactured for a purpose," declared General Hughes. "These rumors were going around Toronto while the Home Guard there was needing money for rifles and outfits. Then the mobilization of the troops started a panic amongst the citizens. The council at once granted $100,000 for rifles and equipment—and than the rumors suddenly ceased. I have received letters explaining the whole thing, and when necessary they will be exposed. But I will not stand for any such manoeuvres. It is too serious a thing to stampede the people into an absurb panic, and I will not allow it. I have been by a Toronto afternoon paper, and by a writer on it who has slugged every decent man in public life. I expect nothing else from him, and should be disappointed if he did not try to slug me too. But I will not tolerate the creation of panics amongst the people by such insanity, and intend to hold to that position, and I am confident the people will be behind me."

As a sample of the manner in which the Toronto stampede was worked, General Hughes said it had been stated in the Toronto City Council by a controller that there were 47,000 German alleged hunters in Maine, all armed with rifles, ready for a raid on Canada, while it was even rumored that 7,000 Germans had mobilized in Toronto, with rifles hidden under their clothes with similar absurd stories.

"The fact is," said General Hughes, "that this year their are 1,314 hunters in Maine, as against 2,088 last year and 2,633 the year before."

"Then do you approve of the Home Guard Movement?" was asked.

"Yes, I do, if it is kept in its proper place," said the Minister of Milita. "I have nothing to do with it, but it is a splendid training for a lot of men who otherwise would not get it, if it is carried out without the panic features which I so objected to in Toronto.

"You people in Montreal have played the game finely with regard to the Home Guard movement, along constitutional and patriotic lines. I have seen no evidence of panic here. The men are doing good work, and I shall be glad to see it go ahead."

With regard to preparations for further contingents, General Hughes said that preparations were going ahead, and he anticipated that ultimately Canada would have 108,000 men under arms, as announced by Premier Borden on Saturady. Arrangements to resume recruiting in Montreal would be made without delay, and he expxected it would start again within a few days. And in the meantime," said General Hughes, "if any man wants to serve apply to Col. Wilson, they will get plenty of opportunity."

General Hughes leaves this morning for St. Johns where he will inspect the 22nd (French-Canadian) Regiment for overseas service.

ZOUAVE GAVE LIFE TO STOP TEUTON RUSH

Prisoner Was Marched in Front But Told Own Men To Fire

PARIS, Nov. 23.—There was given out semi-officially in Paris this afternoon the following recital:

"The other day in Belgium a German column was advancing to attack the forests of Brie, defended by a detachment of Zouaves. Our men noticed that before them the Germans forced a Zouave prisoner and at the same time they heard cries of "Stop firing!" For an instant our riflemen and the men in charge of our machine guns hesitated. Then from the German ranks they heard the voice of the Zouave prisoners, who called to them: Shoot!——it" (Tirez donc, nam de dieu).

There then flashed out from the trenches of the Zouaves a general discharged of rifles and machine guns. This fire laid low the assailants of the Zouaves and with them fell the heroic soldier, whose devotion made it possible for his countrymet to checkmate the use of the enemy.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—French dealers are inquiring about Canadian potatoes, and there is an opportunity for profitable trade in view of the removal of the French duty on potatoes, and also the exemption from the surtax for transshipment through a British port. The later used to average 33 cents per 100 lbs.

KAISER AT ROULERSS

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Germans captured near Ypres state than ten days ago the Kaiser spent four days at Roulers. Quarters were engaged for him in two houses at opposite ends of the village. The Kaiser wore the uniform of a calavry sub-lieutenant, and was continually passing from one house to the other. These elaborate precautions are the best compliment to the Allies' air service.

A FLAGRANT VIOLATION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

Attempt by Germans to Use Norwegian Ships to Coal Their Warships

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(Special)--Documents purporting to show that the Hamburg-American Line attempted to use the steamships Fram and Somerstad to supply coal and provisions to the converted German cruiser, Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and the German cruiser Karlsruhe, were turned over to Sir Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul-General here, today, by Ralph James M. Bullowa, counsel for Wrangell & Company, a Norwegian steamship firm which owns the Fram and the Somerstad.

Mr. Bullowa said he later would place the documents in the hands of the United States Attorney-General at Washington.

The alleged attempt to use the Fram and the Somerstad as auxiliaries to the German navy, was blocked by the interference of Mr. Bullowa on behalf of Wrangell & Company, but the Fram is now at Lerwick, in the Shetland Islands, after being captured by the British on the way to Norway with 4,000 tons of oil cake.

ONE YEAR IN PRISON FOR THE ALARMIST

How Munich's Head Would Keep Truth of War Reaching Germans There

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 23.—(Special)—The truth about the war is gradually permeating through Germany. The authorities are taking drastic measures to prevent the people from discursing too freely events at the front. The Commander-in-Chief at Munich, General Von der Tam, has issued the following decree in order to suppress alarming reports which are recurring with ever-increasing persistence: "I decree that anyone who spreads reports of a nature likely to alarm the population will be punished with one year's imprisonment."

SUSPECT NEW YORK "DANDIES" ARE HELPING THE GERMANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—United States Secret Service agents endeavored to-day to learn if the neutrality of the United States in the European war had been violated by sending wireless messages from a station under surveilliance in Bar Harbor, Maine, to Germany or German war vessels in the Atlantic.

The station under surveillance is said to be the private plant of Ernesto G. and Alessandro Fabbri, is said to be pronouncedly pro-German in his sympathies.

"Simply For Amusement."

At his home here Ernesto G. Fabbri denied that he or his brother had ever conveyed any information to German officials, and treated the whole story as a joke. He said his brother maintained a wireless plant simply for amusement.

Alleged close friendship of the Fabbri brothers and Captain Polack of the Kron Prinzessin Cecille was one of the chief reasons why the Government agents placed a watch on the Fabbri wireless. After the steamer had put in a Bar Harbor for fear of capture by British warships, it is said, Captain Polack was frequently entertained at dinner at the Fabbri cottage, and on one occasion the Fabbris entertained 250 of the ship's crew at a theatre at Bar Harbor.

Mr. Fabbri said to-day that he and Captain Polack were close friends.

Mends Broken Bone By New, Quick Plan

Dr. Kauffer Tells of Injecting Bone Dust in Petrolatum at Ends of Fracture

HASTENS GROWTH OF TISSUE

Experiments Give Hope That Grafting May be Simpler and a Quicker Process

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—Dr. H. J. Kauffer, a dentist and consulting oral surgeon to Harlem Hospital, announces in an issue of The New York Medical Journal the discovery of a new method for hastening repair after fracture of bones. The method consists of injecting with a hypodermic syringe a mixture of homogeneously granulated bone and petrolatum into and between the fractured ends of bone. This, he says, encourages repair, especailly in cases of delayed union.

A fresh piece of bone obtained from the Morgue was dried and ground to powder, mixed with petrolatum to the consistency of paste, and sterilized.

After the fracture has been located the needle is introduced through the skin to the seat of the break, then pushed between the broken ends of the bone, and the contents of the syringe infected as the needle is slowly withdrawn.

The injection may be introduced into the fracture at several angles, if deemed desirable, thus infiltrating the entire mass about the fractured ends with petrolatum and bone cells, which act as a focus for the formation of new bone.

Dr. Kauffer describes an experiment in which holes were drilled into the bone on the side of a dog's jaw. On the right side the mucous membrane was sewed together over the hole, but on the left side petrolatum and bone powder were used on the drill and then the whole was filled with the mixture before the membrane was closed over it.

Both wounds in the mucous membrane healed in five days. The animal was killed on the twenty-eighth day. There was no repair on the right side, but "on the left, where powdered bone was used, the hole was entirely filled with new bone, so that one cannot see where it was made."

One of the advantages Dr. Kauffer claims for his method is that bone grafts are thus introduced without converting the fracture into a compound one by cutting. He recommends the powdered bone and petrolatum wherever bone is required. The powdered bone invites calcareous deposits and encourages the transformation of adjacent tissues into bone.

GERMANY PROTESTS AS TO CONTRABANDS

Wants Neutral Nations to Define Their Attitude re Declaration of London

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Special—The Imperial German Government has addressed to the United States and to other neutral Governments a vigorous protest, in the form of a pro-memoria, against the attitude of Britain and France towards the treatment of contraband, and the Declaraction of London relative to the law of naval warfare.

Vital Points Ignored

Germany complains that the modifications of the rules of the Delaration of London regarding contraband, that have been made by the British Government, obliterate vital points covered by the declaration, and encroach on accepted rules of international law. After setting forth elaborately the German attitude toward the Anglo-French position, respecting contraband during the European war, the German Government asks for specific information from the United States and other neutral Governments on two points. These are: First, what position the "United States and the Neutral powers intend to take toward the attitude adopted by Great Britain and France, contrary to international law."

Maltreatment at Sea

Second, particularly whether it is the intention of the United States and other neutral powers "to take measure against the "Acts of violence committed on board their merchant vessels against German subjects and German property."

The official text of the pro-memoria, a copy of which has been handed to the American State Department, was made public to-day by Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States.

BRIEF SESSION OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Business Transacted of a Routine Nature--Mayor Wills Writes in Regard to C. N. O. R. Train Service and Council Endorse Same

At a regular meeting of the City Council held last evening the business was transacted most expeditiously.

Members present were: Mayor Wills, Aldermen Woodley, Platt, Smith, McFee, Duckworth and Wallbridge.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last meeting the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, communications, etc., Ald. McFee in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the civic committees were passed and the following recommendations were disposed of.

That a cordial invitation be extended to the Eastern Volunteer Firemen's Association by the Mayor and City Council to hold their annual demonstration in Belleville on the last Wednesday in July, 1915, assuring them that the Council will do everything in their power to make their stay a pleasant one.

That the workers for "Our Boys" be allowed the use of the City Hall for Tuesday evening, November 24th, for patriotic purposes.

That the services of a stenographer for the public works and water works department be dispensed with at once.

It was decided to pay a portion of the account of Mr. Wm. McGie for installing the new heating plant in the city building.

A few accounts were disposed of.

A communication was read from the City Council of Berlin in reference to having the law made clear that surplus revenues from the operation of public utilities should go into the general fund of the corporation.

The Council of Berlin asks the assistance of the Council of Belleville in bringing this matter to the attention of the Legislature directly as well as through your representative in that body.

A motion prevailed endorsing the proposition.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Under this head Mayor Wills read the following communication:

Mayor's Office,
Belleville, Nov. 23, 1914.

R. L. Fairbairn, Esq.,
Gen. Pass. Agt., C.N.O.R.,
68 King Street, E.
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I notice upon getting your time table this morning that our morning train on your lines is cut off. Now there are quite a number of us that have been depending on the Canadian Northern train to make our connection at Trenton both for Picton and Maynooth. I have to go out on the Trenton to Maynooth line on Wednesday next and I find that the only connection out of here is by the Grand Trunk to Anson. The Grand Trunk is leaving the 7.50 train on from Belleville west and consequently as far as getting to Trenton is concerned in the morning we will be able to do so by that train, but as for making connection on your trains from Trenton north and south it is going to be impossible except we wish to take a train at 3.40 in the morning, and you know that that is quite impracticable. Belleville is the county town of Hastings and has given every latitude to the Canadian Northern Railway and made its access to the city quite easy and has given every consideration to the Canadian Northern. The cutting off of the morning train making the connections to our immediate country and district both in going through Prince Edward and the County of Hastings is a direct attack upon our city and will undoubtedly be considered so by a large number of people. The traffic east of Belleville to Deseronto can be served with the present service, but for the west and connections it leaves out the most important time and traffic, from my observation that leaves Belleville.

We shall be glad to know that you have reconsidered the present time table and that a train or one car with an engine attached would leave here in the morning so as to make connection with the Toronto train and Picton and the north.

Yours faithfully,
J. F. WILLS, Mayor.

Moved by Ald. Woodley, seconded by Ald. McFee, that the communication be endorsed by the Council.—Carried unanimously.

Council adjourned.

DOES NOT BLAME KAISER

Archbishop of York Resents Vulgar Abuse

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Archbishop of York addressed a mass meeting of men at York today, said:

"I resent exceeding the gross and vulgar way in which the German Emperor has been treated in the newspapers, particularly in some of the comic papers. I have a personal memory of the Emperor, very sacred to me, which makes me feel that it was with great reluctance that he felt himself compelled to accept the fact that the conduct of his ministers and himself had involved war with Great Britain. I put the blame not on the Emperor, but upon his advisers.

"I speak with some personal knowledge of what is passing through the minds of educated men in Berlin when I say they are wholly ignorant of the true state of affairs, because they take their facts from the information which the state cares to give them. I believe I can still speak with admiration and charity about the Great German people."

Financial Questions Will be Discussed

Government Has to Arrange for Loans This Winter or Next Spring to Cover Revenue Decrease of Some Thirty Millions

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.— (Special)—Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, has gone to New York to meet Sir George Paish and discuss with him as the representative of the British Treasury now on this side of the Atlantic questions of finance affecting Canada and Great Britain. The Finance Minister will also probably discuss with New York financiers the probabilities of a Canadian loan in New York. The Government here will have to raise some twenty or thirty millions this winter or early next spring in order to meet the deficit between expenditures and revenue exclusive of the war expenditures. The latter will be provided for by loans from Great Britain, according to the announcement made last week by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lloyd George. But to meet a decrease in revenue of approximately thirty millions during the present fiscal year the Government will have to arrange for loans in New York. Present indications are that by spring the New York money markets will be open to loans from Canadian Governmental or municipal bodies.

HEAVY FOG INTERFERED WITH OPERATIONS

PARIS, Nov. 24.—An official statement this afternoon says:

Speaking generally it may be said that the situation during yesterday has showed no important changes.

Along the greater part of the front the enemy has manifested his activity particularly by intermittent cannonade which, however, was less spirited than on the proceeding days.. There were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed.. As we have come to expect, these attacks were particularly violent in the Argonne, where we gained some territory.

There is nothing to report between Argonne and Vosges, a heavy fog havinterfered with operations.

The Sanitary conditions of the troops favorable.

BERLIN SAYS SITUATION IN EAST NOT YET DECIDED

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—An official communication says:

"In the Eastern war Theatre the situation has not yet been decided.. In East Prussia our troops are holding their own to north east of the plain of the (Masur) Lakes.

In Northern Poland fierce fighting which has been taken place, still has been without result.

"In Southern Poland the battle in the region of Czenstochowa has come to a standstill."

A MAN FROM TORONTO SURRENDERS IN ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 23.—Special—Robert Brown, aged twenty-three, walked into the Franklin street station this afternoon and told Captain Mehle he had read in the Rochester papers that he was wanted in Toronto for shooting his wife and a man. He is said to have admitted the shooting, and was locked up on a charge of being a fugitive pending receipt of word from Toronto.

The man said he was willing to go back to Toronto. He did not think the authorities would punish him much for wounding the woman who betrayed him and the man who despoiled his home. He intended to kill neither, he said.

As soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, Brown will be brought to Toronto by a member of the Toronto police force. He will face two charges of attempted murder. The victims were Mrs. Brown and Norman Smith, and the shooting took place in a room at 206 John street, on Thursday last. Both victims were shot in the leg, the shooting being due, it is said, to jealousy.

JET AND NET GOWN

A beautiful gown, simple to childishness, despite its hybrid origin—classis from bust to shoulder "moyenage" from bust to hips and nineteenth century from hips to ankles—is a dress of black velvet over a slip of black satin one as full as the other. The bodice, free of the skirt from shoulders to hips is banded at the neck with a rope of jet, about the arms with fur and three times around the gown with heavy cordons of jet. Fur also borders the bottom of the skirt.

Condensed News Items For Busy Readers.

PICKED UP BY POLICE

The police last night gathered in two drunks and an alleged vagrant. The two intoxicants are residents of the county.

ACCUSED OF VAGRANCY

James Nash was last night arrested on a charge of vagrancy. The accused was this morning before Magistrate Masson and was remanded to jail until Friday.

PAID HIS FINE

George Ervine, a stranger in the ctiy, was this morning by Magistrate Masson ordered to pay a fine of $5 and costs for intoxication. The fine was paid.

CHIMNEY BLAZE

At about 6 o'clock last evening the fire brigade was called out, but fortunately their services were not required. A chimney blaze on Front street was the cause of alarm.

DIED IN TORONTO

Mr. T. P. Brown, a former well known Bellevillian who was in business in this city for some time, died yesterday in Toronto, where he had been residing for some time. We understand the remains will be brought here for interment.

OFF TO KINGSTON

Messrs. Frank Smith and James Simpson of Marmora Village, two young men who volunteered as members of the 49th Regiment for the second contingent, left today for Kingston. They had been inmates of the hospital here for a few days, having undergone slight operations.

SUDDEN DEATH OF HORSE

Yesterday afternoon a party named Charles Sargent, whose home is in Hungerford Township, was driving a team about the city in a rather reckless manner, owing to the fact that he was under the influence of intoxicants. Sergt. Naphin of the local police apprehended Sargeant on Pinnacle street and getting into the vehicle proceeded towards the police station. When in front of the Belleville Hardware factory one of the horses dropped dead on the street from heart disease. Sargeant was taken to the police station but was subsequently released.

FOURTH CONCESSION

The Ameliasburg Rod and Gun Club held their annual shooting match at Ameliasburg on Friday, the 20th. The members and several sport lovers from this vicinity attending. The day though not very promising in the morning proved to be an ideal one.

The club was well represented, but, owing to a shortage of live birds the match for the cup trophy was finished in the forenoon, there being only six birds per member. The cup, a handsome piece of silverware was won by Mr. John Anderson, of Mountain View, who made a possible score of six birds. There being plenty of clay birds made the free for all, in the afternoon a grand success, and a goodly number of ducks, turkeys and geese were well divided among a large crowd of enthusiastic sports. Small rifles were also used at short ranges, for those prefering that variety of sport. The Belleville Rifle Association was also well represented.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Parliament entertained the Jolly Eight Pedro Club on Monday evening last, and quite in keeping with the name a jolly time is reported.

Mr. Thos Wood, while attending the shooting match on Friday received word that his horse and carriage had made a flying trip home without a driver. Fortunately little damage was done, considering the distance.

NEW ASSAULT BEGINS

Germans Vigorously Bombard Ypres, Soissons and Rheims.

Belgian Town Held by British Is Now In Flames and German Generals Are Believed To Be About to Make Another Effort at Ypres to Break Through Line — Kaiser's Soldiers Chafe Under Long Delay.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The latest advices from France say that the town of Ypres, Belgium, held by the British, and the cities of Rheims and Soissons, in France, have been subjected to a heavy bombardment from hostile artillery, and that Ypres is in flames. The public markets, the cathedral and the belfry, the latter begun in 1200 and completed in 1304, are on fire. This bombardment is believed to herald another tremendous assault by the Germans in an attempt to accomplish at Ypres what has failed at Nieuport, Dixmude and elsewhere.

The following official communication was issued last night by the French War Office:—

"To-day, as yesterday, there was cannonading in the north and in the direction of Soissons and Rheims.

"In the Argonne there were violent attacks by both sides which, however, were without results."

The French Government issued the fallowing communique Monday afternoon:—

"Yesterday was marked by a violent artillery fire. The enemy directed his attention particularly to the town of Ypres, where the belfry, the cathedral, the markets and a number of houses were set on fire, to Soissons and to Rheims.

"In the Argonne the day was characterized by very hot fighting. The enemy delivered very spirited attacks, which were repulsd. In the Woevre and the Vosges the situation is without change."

The bombardment of Rheims and Soissons is believed to be an effort to turn the attention of the French from the vigorous campaign which they are prosecuting along the Meuse, and on the Lorraine frontier, where fresh successes are being achieved daily by the armies of the republic. It may also be intended to cover the transfer of German troops from the western to the eastern front.

There is a recrudescence of activity along the Belgian coast and British warships were engaged yesterday in a vigorous exchange with German land batteries. The extent of this action cannot be learned, but all reports agree that the Kaiser is evidently bent on another try at Dunkirk. Heavy guns have been mounted from Nieuport to Knocke, and the entire population of the latter town and Zeebrugge have been moved to Bruges. They were not allowed to rendezvous in Holland, but were coerced in going to Bruges. This place is declared to be garrisoned for the most part by German troopers suffering from trifling wounds. Similar reports of a wholesale exodus from St. Nicholas, a city of 40,000 people, between Antwerp and Ghent, comes by way of Holland. The German military officials have ordered every one in the town to move to Antwerp instantly, where they will be provided with quarters. The order is imperative, and is said to have specified that no one must remain in St. Nicholas.

A despatch from Thielt, Belgium, says:—

"There are clear indications that "General November" will take a leading part in the operations along the front by the Yser river. The days of cold wet weather have been followed by three days of frost over the entire territory outlined by the cities of Middelkerke, Thourout, Thielt, Ronlers and Ypres. Much of this region is covered with stubble fields, over which there is a coating of ice, making them almost impassible for man or beast.

"The German troops are living in the ruins of two scores of villages and small cities. They are becoming impatient at the delay and are suffering from icy winds which penetrate the windowless buildings in which they seek some sort of shelter. They would prefer a general attack to finish the battle, but any such sudden movement is prevented by the inundation along the front.

"The Germans are awaiting with great hopes the arrival of engineers, whose duty it will be to find some means of crossing the inundated territory, but the methods which are to be employed, if decided upon, are being kept secret."

SLAVS BREAK ADVANCE

Great Battle in Poland Turning in Favor of Russia.

Severe Reverse Has Been Inflicted Upon the Germans at Kutno According to Unofficial Reports—Gumbinnen, In Eastern Prussia, Has Been Captured After Five Day Battle—Successes In Galicia.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — The battle which is being fought in the region between the Vistula and Warta rivers in Poland appears to have turned in favor of the Russians. In fact, a special despatch from Petrograd to Paris says that the Russian army already has won a decisive victory. While this may be an exaggeration both the Russian and the German official reports suggest that Gen. von Hindenberg's second thrust at Warsaw has been checked.

Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces for two days in succession has recorded partial successes in this great battle and last night the German General Staff says that the arrival of Russian reinforcements has postponed a decision. Both sides have expressed the greatest confidence in the outcome of this battle. Grand Duke Nicholas and Gen. von Hindenberg heretofore have been so successful in their strategy that their adherents look upon them as almost unbeatable.

The German papers only yesterday were talking of a general Russian retirement despite the fact that the Russians have been advancing steadily in Galicia, have repulsed the Austro-German attack before Cracow, hold part of the German territory in East Prussia and were opposing Gen. von Hindenberg's advance on Warsaw. It is the same in Petrograd. All the correspondents there declare that it is certain that Russian numbers must tell when the Germans have reached the ground on which Grand Duke Nicholas has chosen to give them battle.

A Petrograd despatch says, commenting on the heavy fighting at Kutno, that it is now only a question of how many Germans succeed in escaping. The German losses are said to be enormous. At Kutno alone, 12,000 prisoners were taken. Another terrible battle is raging between Czenstochowo and Cracow.

German cavalry patrols have penetrated to within thirty miles of Warsaw. Heavy fighting is still in progress between Lowicz and Skierniewice, where the Russian force is opposing the main line of advance of the army of Gen. von Hindenberg.

Russian progress in Galicia against Austria is making steady headway. The situation of the garrison at Przemysl is said to be desperate, and there have been reports of an offer of capitulation from the commander, reported to have met with refusal by the Russians because it is known that the stronghold must fall ere long. It is not at all unlikely that the status of Russia with relation to the war for many months to come will be established by the operations under way. If the drive of Gen. von Hindenberg should gather renewed impetus and break through to Warsaw, then the Russian position will be perilous, and a withdrawal from Galicia and East Prussia inevitable. The alternative of defeat is even more disastrous to the Germans, who literally must win or fight on their own doorsteps under disadvantages.

As for the Russian advance in East Prussia, Petrograd despatches report the capture of Gumbinnen, in north-eastern Prussia by the Czar's armies.

Although official despatches only mention skirmishes in East Prussia, a despatch from a correspondent with the active army reports, with circumstantial details, the Russian capture of Gumbinnen after a battle lasting five days, the Cossacks being the heroes of the most stirring incident of the struggle, capturing the enemy's batteries by a daring charge which put the gunners to flight.

The German defenders declined to await a bayonet attack and the Russians entered in triumph to discover the town half demolished by shell fire and abandoned by the population.

Gumbinnen is about midway between Stalluponen, a point near the Russian frontier, which was captured after a stiff resistance by the Germans, and Insterburg, the latter an important railroad junction. Insterburg is believed to be the next objective of the Russian attack, and in the hands of the Czar would constitute a valuable base for operations against Koenigsburg, the principal city and fortress of East Prussia.

No Appointment Made.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—With regard to the revival of the rumor that Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C. P. R., is to be appointed Canadian High Commissioner in London, in succession to the late Lord Strathcona, it is stated here that no appointment will be made until Hon. George H. Perley returns, and it is unknown when that will be. He may not leave London until the end of the war.

The suggestion that Sir Thomas may be made High Commissioner receives high favor in official circles, and undoubtedly his appointment would receive very general approval.

Military News Of This District

The Liquor Shops are Placed Out of Bounds

(Kingston Standard)

The entire battalion was photographed Saturday afternoon on the Cricket Field. In addition to a panoramic view of the battalion, photographs were taken of each company and group view of the officers was taken also.

Shooting was commenced at the Barriefield ranges yesterday from the 100 yard firing point: A, B, C and D Companies will shoot each morning, and E, F, G and H. companies in the afternoons. Firing is started at 8.30 in the morning, so it is necessary for the first company to leave for the ranges at seven o'clock. It takes about three hours for a company to march to the ranges, have its rifle practice and return to the city. Each company supplies its own markers and register keepers. A house has been erected for the use of the men while on the ranges.

Major J. Hamilton, director of Transports and Supplies of the Third Military Division, is one of the busiest men in the department here, for, in addition to looking after the comforts and welfare of the men, arrangeing as to supplies, transport, etc., he has innumerable other duties which require a great deal of tact, energy and intelligence to carry out. That he does it all so well and so thoroughly speaks highly for the Major's splendid executive administrative ability.

The officers of the 21st Battalion are taking stringent measures to prevent drunkenness among the men. Already several men have been discharged from the regiment for this offence and a number of others have been heavily fined. The officers have further decided to place all liquor shops out of bounds at all times, and the men are forbidden to purchase liquor in any of the stores at any time.

Sergt. W. C. Bongard, H Co., Pte. R. Cunningham, E Co., Pte. G. Gerow, F Co., Pte. E. J. Roberts, C Co., Pte. A. G. Ingram, A Co., Pte. J. Murelle, D Co., and Sergt. E. Sleeth, E Co., are now being instructed as company armourers.

The funeral of the late Pte. W. Harrison, who was drowned last week, took place yesterday. The officers of the battalion delayed the burial while efforts were being made to locate the relatives of the edceased soldier. A cousin of the drowned man was in Kingston on Saturday, but did not care to take charge of the body, so the military authorities acted in the matter and the funeral was held. The members of the deceased's company attended the funeral. Interment took place in Cataraqui cemetery.

If the plans of the Ontario Department of Education are pursued it is understood that some well defined system of training school boys will be adopted in the near future and Cadet Corps will be formed in all public schools wherever possible.

The men of the new overseas contingent are working with an energy and cheerfulness that augurs well for the future of this unit. Early each morning officers and men go for a run of a mile or two, which is putting them in fine condition. This morning the men were on the Cricket Field before daylight, taking their physical drill.

Grand Trunk News

BRITISH COLUMBIA PORTS BENEFIT BY OPENING OF PANAMA CANAL

That the Canadian Railways operating in Western Canada intend to make use of new water route placed at their disposal by the completion of the Panama Canal, is the opinion of Mr. R. E. Mansfield, the United States Consul at Vancouver, B.C.

An official report filed at Washington, refers to the great harbor and dock improvemnts that are being carried out at Prince Rupert. He states that many millions of dollars have been expended there, or the expenditure provided for, so that the harbor facilities may be as ample and satisfactory as any on the Pacific Coast. Prince Rupert being the western terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway tapping the rich and new country of the north.

British Columbia, Mr. Mansfield thinks, will make considerable use of the canal for its European trade. It will be able to ship, without breaking cargoes, to any port of the world, and the almost untouched natural resources of British Columbia, it is said, will find a market abroad for many years to come.

Railway, was incorporated as a municipality in March 1910. It is one of the youngest of the Empire's bustling cities, yet a remarkable indication of the progress it has made is seen in its splendid response to the call for Canada's second contingent. News received at G.T.P. headquarters in Montreal, stated that the Company's steamship "Prince George" has left Prince Rupert for Victoria with 129 brawny sons of Northern British Columbia, en route for the front. Some were fresh from office and shop, but the majority had lived their lives in the out-of-doors toughtened by the saddle and the canoe. They were given a great sendoff by their friends in Prince Rupert.

BUILDING ACTIVITY AT PRINCE GEORGE

Good progress is being made with the execution of machine shops and round house for the Grand Trunk Pacific at Prince George, B.C. This district is showing rapid growth and it is probable that there is no other locality in British Columbia in which greater building activity is taking place. During the past three months there have been completed nearly $500,000 worth of new residences and business blocks. While at the present time there are buildings valued at $250,000 under construction.

CEMENT PROFITS HOLDING

Sales Smaller But Net Earnings Making Good Showing

Shareholders of the Canada Cement Company will be agreeably surprised to read an extract from a letter O'Brien & Williams recently sent to a client who had made an enquiry about the company's position. The letter said in part:

"With many of our industries almost at a standstill and general business throughout the country undeniably bad, it would only be natural to suppose that the Cement Company, especially in view of the let-up in the building trade, was one of the chief sufferers. It is true that sales have fallen off, but we have every reason to think that net profits will be quite as good as they were last year, a happy state of affairs brought about by efficient management resulting in substantial reductions in operating costs. It is, therefore, our view that business will have to be a lot worse than it is now before the preferred dividend is endangered."

Much More Material Wanted

War Office Open to Buy Warm Footware Here

A cablegram was received yesterday by Mr. Frederick Stobart of Montreal, from the British War Office, asking that he make inquiries at once regarding the likelihood of large quantities of lumbermen's socks and other warm footwear being secured immediately from Canadian manufacturers. Mr. Stobart stated that he did not know the exact quantity that would be required, but that he would be open for suggestions as to other war fotowear, such as felt boots, etc.

Another large shipment of materials purchased here left for the Old Country on Friday and will be followed by additional good sized consignments weekly. So far the shipments forwarded have consisted of sheepskin coats, mitts, socks and sweater coats. The order for one million and a half flannel shirts has not started to move out yet. This has been chiefly due to the manufacturers being delayed in securing the material. From now on, however, weekly shipments of these are expected to be made.

Illustrated Lecture At St. Andrews

Rev. A. McClurg, M.A. of Toronto, Delivers Interesting War Lecture, With Stereopticion Views

A large number congregated at St. Andrew's Chruch last evening, drawn thither by the announcement that Rev. A. McClurg, M.A., of Toronto, would deliver a lecture on "War, its Cause and Consequences." The speaker of the evening was well versed in his subject, drawing from wide information, and giving his audience added interest by illustrating with steroptican, field views, Britain's majestic warships, scenes in Belgium, France and other sections, which proved highly instructive.

A select programme, consisting of a song by Miss Ponton; vocal selections by Mrs. McArthur, songs by Miss Stork and Mrs. A. P. Allen filled out the occasion in an admirable manner. The evening was most enjoyable, and fully appreciated by all present. Rev. A. S. Kerr acted as chairman.

Obsequies of A Bright Young Man

That the late Sidney Taylor Newton of this city was a popular young man and had a host of friends was evidenced yesterday afternoon when his remains were consigned to the tomb to await the final resurrection morn. From the parents' residence on Ann Street the body was conveyed to Christ Church, where the impressive burial services of the Anglican Church were conducted by the Rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave. The cortege was a long one, comprising not only citizens but the boys of the High School who marched in a body. The choir of the church was present and assisted in the service. Two hymns selected by the deceased were rendered, namely, "Peace, Perfect Peace," and "Forever With the Lord." The interment took place at Belleville cemetery, Rev. R. C. Blagrave officiating. The bearers were: Douglas Reid, Garfield Arnott, Stanley Nurse, Mervin Wilkin, Reuben Cooper and Harry Fenn.

The floral tributes were not only numerous, but magnificent. The contributors were as follows:—

Pillow:—Family.

Gates Ajar:—Wm. McIntosh & Co. staff.

Crosses:—Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Arnott; Mrs. Tickell and Josephine; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collip.

Obsequies of Rev. Canon Bogart

The Brockville Recorder has the following in regard to the obsequies of the late Rev. Canon Bogert:

The obsequies of Rev. Canon D. F. Bogert, who died in Belleville on Thursday, took place Saturday afternoon upon arrival of the 2.35 train. The remains were conveyed to the family plot in the Church of England cemetery, where service was conducted by Rev. H. H. Bedford-Jones.

The pallbearers were Rev. Rural Dean Woodcock, Rev. H. H. Bedford-Jones, Rev. L. E. Davis and Rev. G. R. Beamish.

Mourners from out-of-town present were Archdeacon Bogert, Miss Bogert, Ottawa; Mr. Clarence Bogert, general manager of the Dominion Bank Tor-

THEY LOOK FOR RESULTS

Through its despatch of the first contingent, and its prompt organising of a second one, the Borden Government has made it solid with the West. The people of the western provinces are unconventional. They do not stand upon ceremony. They are not sticklers for methods. What they are especially concerned about is results. These they usually demand in quick time.

That is natural, for they have secured results in a surprisingly short period. Towns have sprung up all over the prairies within a few years. The area of cultivation has been extended with astonishing rapidity, while the country has been gridironed with railways within a comparatively short time. All this has meant work of the hardest kind, and when a Western man sees big things done quickly in other departments he realizes that someone has been hard at work, nor does he begrudge his due mede of praise.

The way the Militia Department organized, equipped and despatched the 33,000 men to the shores of the Mother Country has caught the eye of the Western man. It was a big job and the Westerner knows it. The organization for the bringing of such a force quickly into existence and equipping it did not exist. It had to be created and then set in operation. This was done, and, better still, splendid results were secured. Nothing like it was ever done so quickly on this continent.

In some respects the American settler understands this better than the Canadian, and he appreciates it even better than the Old Countryman. He knows how long it took to outfit the forces for the Spanish-American War. American papers have also told him how unprepared the American army was for the little affair at Vera Cruz and how long it would take to raise 100,000 men and equip and train them for such a conflict as is now raging in Europe. Consequently when he saw 33,000 men not only raised and equipped, but actually on their way across the ocean within three months, he knew that a big job had been done.

The Americans in the West are heart and soul with the Government in this war. They realize that it is a struggle between democracy and autocracy, with Great Britain as the great champion of democratic institutions. German militarism is opposed to the genius of American life. If other arguments were needed to convince them of the justice of the allies' cause they are to be found in the violation by Germany of Belgium's neutrality and the wanton destruction of Belgian cities with their priceless architectural treasures. This is of itself has decided many a waverer. The issue between humanity and inhumanity is clear cut, and the American realizes it.

Throughout the West the Americans have responded splendidly to the Patriotic Fund. Indeed, some of the communities, in which they are largely represented, have been among the most liberal contributors. And this has come about through a ready recognition that Great Britain is fighting, not her own fight so much as a fight for Anglo-Saxon civilization. In such a fight Canadians and Americans are one.

NOW SEES THE LIGHT

"Canada for Canadians. That is the motto which should direct all our public bodies if we are to see a relief of the industrial situation. Every dollar spent for Canadian made goods remains in Canada and helps to fight unemployment and misery."—Le Canada.

We are glad to take the sinners in. Le Canada is recognized as the mouthpiece of the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. In the House of Commons last session the ex-Postmaster General supported a policy diametrically opposed to the "Canada for Canadians" policy now advocated by the French-Canadian Liberal organ. He went so far as to say that he was prepared to support the gradual abolition of the tariff on all commodities, and to support his ideas quoted copiously from the Free tional Policy has come out with flying colors. Converts are being made every day. We are glad to see that they are coming to realize, as Le Canada says, that "every dollar spent for Canadian made goods remains in Canada and helps to fight unemployment and misery."

THE MONTREAL MAYOR

The Mayor of Montreal does not hesitate to tell the women of Montreal what he thinks of them. The Montreal Local Council of Women addressed him asking that no agreement be entered into with the Montreal Tramways Company. His answer was that "the Tramways question was probably not a pressing one for those who have horses and automobiles, but it requires an urgent solution for those living in the "outskirts," where there is no tramway service, who have to pay a ten-cent fare to go to their work and come back home.

There is outside of the wealthy and idle ladies of the Montreal Council of Women a large number of poor, hard working women, who, I am sure, would be very pleased to get a better street car service and a reduction in fares, and I intend to do my best during my term of office to secure that for them in spite of all the protest that may come from certain interested newspapers and associations.

Most people will agree with the Mayor, though his reasons for not complying with the request of the petitioners may not have been couched in the most polite words.

CURRENT COMMENT

What about an A1 hockey team for Belleville city this season? Speak up, Richard, we are waiting!

The Panama Canal, according to Colonel Goethals, has cost $353,559,000. It is a big sum, but the Canal is worth it.

A little more sand on our paved strets would help the horses and save the animals from bruised or possibly broken limbs.

Edmonton Journal: "Who was the first person to make the charge is not at all clear, but in street conversation the blame for the European conflict is now being placed on General Booth of the Salvation Army. Exen his warmest admirers cannot deny that he started the War Cry."

The town of Dundas, with a population of less than 5,000, has raised almost $9,000 for their Patriotic Fund. What do the well-to-do citizens of Belleville think of that?

Guelph Herald: "Australia is to become the custodian of the Marshall and other islands in the Pacific captured from the Germans by the Japs. How we envy Australia, with a navy of dreadnoughts and cruisers, that is able to do something for Britain."

Hamilton Spectator: "Chicago has received an order for 4,000,000 blankets for the allied armies, the total value being 2,000,000. As it is a rush order, the Chicago dealers are dividing it up among the woollen mills of the west. Canada used to have about one hundred or more woollen mills, but the number has been cut down to less than twenty. It might today have been able to take a part of the blanket contract had wiser conditions prevailed. We will learn by experience."

Leading business-men in the United States, including some of the most prominent bankers in America declare that there are unmistakable signs that the country is on the eve of a period of great prosperity. What is true of the United States, commercially, is largely true of Canada, for the trade relations of the two nations with Europe are practically alike, and the process of readjustment to changed conditions in Europe is to all intents and purposes the same in Canada as in the United States.

WAR NOTES

The Krupp factory in Germany employs in the neighborhood of 60,000 workmen a year, and pays out in wages $25,000,000. The chief owner of the works, Bertha Krupp Von Bohlen, receives a yearly income of $5,500,000. Krupps are now about to increase their capital, but if they are wise they will wait until they see what the Allies intend, doing with their works at Essen.

By way, perhaps, of discouraging a too-ready American sympathy for the French, a German paper calls attention to the following in a French paper:—

A famous Parisian beauty was once looking at a statue of General Washington. In the company was a patriotic citizen of the United States.

"There," cried the patriot, "was a true nobleman. Never in all his life did a lie pass his lips."

"Just so," remarked the beauty dryly. "Americans always speak through their noses."—New York Evening Post.

The effects of prohibition in Russia are almost unbelievable. From being the most drunken nation in the world, the Russians have been suddenly cut off from all access to vodka, with the result that they are now saving the money which they formerly wasted in liquor. Despatches from various cities announce that savings banks are being opened to receive the savings of the peasants, while from all parts of the country statements regarding the improved appearance and habits of the people are striking evidence of what prohibition means to a country. People who reviled Russia must now revise their verdict.

Agriculturists in the United States are beginnig to ask why they can only grow a dozen or so bushels of wheat to the acre, while most of the European countries grow double that quantity. For example, it is pointed out that France and Minnesota each plant 16,000,000 acres in wheat, but France produces 324,000,000 bushels, to 168,000,000 produced by Minnesota. Kansas, Missouri and Iowa have the same wheat acreage as Germany, or 5,000,000 acres. These three states combined grow only 55,000,000 bushels, while Germany produces 140,000,000 three and one-half months of war all of the capital ships, that is, the first class modern battleships, of all the nations involved, have escaped destruction. The Post thinks the fact that the British battleships have thus far all escaped is most surprising—"That the British have been able to protect their battleships is really amazing." Not only have the British been able to do that, but they are now putting more battleships into commission, new ones, carrying heavier guns than any other vessels of war afloat.

In the estimation of the small boy, Maj.-Gen. Sam Hughes is a very strong man, as the following story now going the rounds would indicate:

The six-year-old son of a well-known Ottawa woman went home from Sunday School and said that his teacher had told him about a strong man, whose feats of strength were elaborately narrated in the Bible.

"Say, he was a strong man, mother," said the boy. "He could kill men, throw doors and gates off their hinges, and pull down buildings."

"What was his name?" asked the mother. "Sam—Sam—," she prompted.

"Yes, that's it; Sam Hughes!" exclaimed the boy.

Astounding casualties which three and a half months of modern warfare has produced is a serious matter for the whole of Europe. A correspondent has authority for stating that this war has already accounted for something like five millions of the pick of European manhood. This is no fancy figure. It has been worked out carefullly.

A recent war measure introduced by the British government is significant. It provides that all dividends, profits, etc., owing to enemies from investments in Britain shall be paid to a public trustee, to be held until the close of the war. The final disposal of this money will depend on circumstances. German newspapers and publicists have been boasting that after the war Germans will repudiate their debts. This boast may have something to do with the action taken by the British government.

Hamilton Herald: "It takes two to make a quarrel, and the government at Washington is fixed as adamant in its determination that it is not going to be a party to any quarrel. And it must be admitted that from a business point of view the government at Washington is right. There's big money in neutrality at the present period of world history."

THE NATION'S GAME

"I'll go one," said Austria,
"I'll go two," said the Turk;
"De Wet and me (Beyers) we go three."
Italy said, "We will shirk."
"Then I'll go four," said the Kaiser,
"We will wipe John off the map."
But they looked half dead
When John Bull said—
"Then I'll go nap!"

"How does he do it?" asked Austria;
"How is it done?" asks the Turk.
"De Wet and me, we both agree."
The Kaiser said, "We have no chance."
John Bull said, "Then I will show you:
If you look into my lap,
I've got another pack
Called the Union Jack,
When I go nap!"

An Easy Way to Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomachs or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. J. S. McKeown's drug store and other leading druggists of Belleville and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution:—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

GOOD OUT OF EVIL

Life is full of troubles! No sooner had we mastered sufficient of the history and geography of Russia, Austria and East Prussia to be able to mumble over their unpronounceable names, than Turkey jumped into the fray with a lot of additional jaw-breakers. In a measure the entry of Turkey has been productive of good. Many men who had long since forgotten the geography and history taught them in Sunday School, to say nothing of the other Biblical lore, now find the Bible a ready reference when they want to learn the latest movements in connection with the Turkish army.

Turkey, as is well known, possesses the Holy Land. Fighting is now going on at Gaza, where Samson performed the herculean feat of carrying off the gates of the city. Troops are also congregating along the Tigris near the city of ancient Nineveh, towards which Jonah was headed when attacked by the first recorded submarine.

Jerusalem, the Holy City, is under the plans of the Turks can be carried out, thereby duplicating in a measure the achievement of centuries ago. Altogether there promises to be a revival in Bible reading which will at least counteract some of the vile feelings engendered by the entry of the Turks, and the ordinary man's profanity at its inability to spell, pronounce or locate the names appearing in the press from day to day. It is a strange old world! However, it might not do any of us any harm to read a little more from the pages of "the world's best seller"—the Bible.

Lights Betrayed Vandyck to Captors

Passengers Landed From A British Liner Tell How The Karlsruhe Caught Their Ship

SANK BOAT BEARING WINE

German Officer Balked Stewards' Plan to Save Liquor--Raider May Invade North Atlantic

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—When the 114 passengers from the Lamport & Holt steamship Vandyck, which was captured by the German cruiser Karlsruhe on Oct. 26, landed in South Brooklyn from the steamship Sao Paulo of the Brazilian Lloyd Line, from Para, they expressed thankfulness at being safe once more in the United States.

Twenty-five of the passengers were women and children, two were English and the rest were Americans. They said that they were treated with the greatest courtesy by the officers and crew of the Karlsruhe. This was in marked contrast to the behavior of the officers and crew of the Vandyck, who, they said, with the exception of the first officer and the assistant purser, were most surly after the Germans captured the vessel.

The most important news of the elusive German cruiser brought to New York by the Vandyck's passengers was given to them by Lieut. Count von Issen, who was in charge of the collier Asuncion, which conveyed them to Para. He said that the Vandyck would probably be sunk after the beef and coal had been removed from her, and that the Karlsruhe would go then to the North Atlantic to capture some of the big liners. If she was pursued closely by a British warship the cruiser would enter a port in the United States, according to the Count to be interned until the war was over. If there was not time to make a neutral port, then the Karlsruhe would be blown up, he said.

The stories of the capture of the Vandyck told by some of the passengers differed little except in minor details. Alexus Lindgren of Malone, Ill., and Sidney Goldschmidt of Brooklyn, gave this account of the voyage from Buenos Aires on the Vandyck:

"On Oct. 22 we were two out from Bahia, running with all light out or blanketed and all hands rather nervous at the idea of being captured by German cruisers. Later in the forenoon we sighted the British cruiser Bristol, and this cheered every one, as it looked as if the Vandyck was being protected. All went well, with fine warm weather until 10 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 26, when the Vandyck was about 200 miles east of the mouth of the Amazon River. Just after the four bells had been struck the officer on the bridge sighted a warship and a small vessel on the horizon to the east steaming toward our ship rapidly. In a little more than half an hour the leading vessel was close up, and hoisted the German naval ensign, and we realized that the Vandyck had been captured.

"The warship was the Karlsruhe and her Captain sent up a signal ordering our ship to stop. Capt. Cadogan of the Vandyck obeyed the order at once. A cutter was lowered from the cruiser and came over to our ship. The cutter was in charge of an officer and contained, in addition to the regular crew, four marines armed with rifles and wearing life-saving jackets. When the German officer had ascended the accommodation ladder to the upper deck, he introduced himself to Capt. Cadogan as Lieut. Fresse and said that the Vandyck must be turned over to him. The other vessel with the Karlsruhe was the Farn, a captured British freighter used as a collier.

"Lieut. Fresse told the passengers not to be alarmed, as they would be treated with every courtesy. Then he explained that he had been first officer of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm and had many friends in New York. The passengers went to lunch in the saloon and were much calmer than the English stewards, who were so nervous as to their own fate that they spilled the soup over those at the table and got the courses sadly mixed. After luncheon Capt. Cadogan told the passengers that the Vandyck had been captured and that he was no longer in command of the ship.

"Before leaving the Vandyck, Count von Issen, who was put in charge of the passengers on the collier with twelve marines, said that the passengers could take anything they wanted from the ship as souvenirs. One passenger took an electric clock, another carried away a bearskin rug but most of the travelers were contented with silver spoons of forks. A very stout man said he did not wish a souvenir, but he walked on the keyboard of the piano out of revenge for its having kept him awake on the trip. The stewards collected wines, whiskies and cigars which they lowered into a small boat as their share of the spoils. Lieut. Fresse looked over the side and saw what they had done. He gave an order to four stalwart marines and they lifted a heavy box of machinery to the rail and dropped it plump in the centre of the boat, sending the craft to Davy Jones' locker.

NEURALGIA SETTLED IN HER LUNGS

No Relief From The Pain Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., MAY 5th, 1913.

"I cannot speak too highly of "Fruit-a-tives". For over thirty years, I have suffered from chronic Neuralgia and Constipation, experiencing untold agony. The Neuralgia settled in my lungs and I took bottles of medicine without relief. The doctor told me I would not get better but "Fruit-a-tives" proved that the doctor was wrong by giving me quick relief and finally and completely curing me.

"I would not have my present health if it were not for "Fruit-a-tives" and I am glad of this opportunity of giving you this letter about such a splendid remedy as "Fruit-a-tives".

Another Shipment To Supply Demand

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelligencer's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. flagfi trated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really Illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

The Gentle Germans

Immanuel Braun writes in the course of a letter in the German weekly journal "Mars":

Near X. the brigade received the order to attack, and a little later we got the short command: "At six o'clock sharp the regiment is in possession of Y."

It was in the night—a cold fog lay over the field—when suddenly the first shots rang out. Three kilometres this side of Y. the hindrances began. The broad road was blocked by felled trees; the troops marching in the open fields fell into pits and were caught on barbed wire.....

Finally at half past five we were far enough advanced to storm the village. One section of our company had, as patrol, with great daring stormed one house in the darkness of the night and this section now experienced a fearful hail of bullets in the middle of the village. These comrades must be saved.

Out of every nook and hole the bullets whistled: stones showered upon us from the roofs. With a hurrah we went on notwithstanding the fact that we were received by a rain of bullets. Each hous was taken by our embittered soldiers. They broke the doors in and everything that came in the way was smashed. Women of fifty and sixty years, with faces frightfully distorted, came to meet us, revolver in hand. The bayonet did horrible service. Every room had to be fought for.

With aversion—but we had to bow to necessity—we dealt with women and armed boys. The houses were the graves of their possessors who were driven back into the flames. Our soldiers had compassion on the cattle; the animals ran roaring through the streets.

Farther we went over the field of dead. There are the smoking ruins of the village. Burning corpses of the former residents lie in the street. Everywhere a terrible smell. Smouldering sofas, beds, curtains, bodies, dead horses, a great heap of ruins!

Halt, what are those figures. Fifty, sixty, seventy women approach us. So soon as they see us there rises a terrible lamentation and praying. "Grace, monsieur, grace!" A pitiful procession of half-dressed people, with babes on the arm, and dragging with them greybeards and sick women. Women and children fall on their knees, grasp our feet, and stammer out words. They hold up before us crucifixes, money and silver spoons.

One's heart stops still at the thought—if this misery were to befall our own people in the dear Fatherland! It is only with great difficulty that the lamenting people can be calmed. Words are not sufficient. I show them the church as a place of refuge. They all crowd around us to press our hands to kiss them. My simple, brave fellows found it hard to bear this. One relieved his feelings by exclaiming: "I would rather fight with those accursed peasants than bear the weeping of these women!"—Manchester Guardian.

EXCITING INCIDENT IN IRISH CAPITAL

National Volunteers Ambushed and Carload of Rifles Driven off

A London Exchange Company's telegram from Dublin says: "A captain of the National Volunteers in charge of a carload of rifles was ambushed by fifty men on the Grand Canal bank. The leader of the ambuscade presented a revolver at the captain's head, ordering him to turn over the rifles, and the load of rifles was driven off."

In the absence of more details, the foregoing sensational incident in the Irish capital is apparently the outcome of the bitter feud between the original organizers of the National Volunteers and the Redmondites who have captured the movement.

The large bulk of the Volunteers hvae remained loyal to Redmond, but in Dublin the old committee, as well as a large number of the Volunteers, are hostile to the Irish leader and opposed to his recruiting propaganda.

It is an open secret that in Dublin the opposition to Redmond is very strong, the malcontents including not only the Sinn Feiners, but also the Larkinites.

There are at present two organizations of National Volunteers in existence, the old committee refusing to surrender their offices, books and arms to the new Redmondite committee.

The young fool is not excusable on the ground that there is no fool like an old fool.

Trampled To Death

Suppose you were to read in the paper some morning that a disastrous fire had wiped the town of Amherst, or Galt or Lethbridge completely off the map. That would be a hard knock to Canada wouldn't it?

Yet, figuratively and literally, Canadians are ruthlessly trampling a town that size under their feet every year,—actually obliterating it.

Every year we Canadians import $4,000,000 worth of boots and shoes from the United States. On them we pay over $1,000,000 duty.

That $5,000,000 if spent for Canadian-made boots, would keep six big shoe factories busy the year round,—employing altogether about 2400 hands, paying out $1,500,000 in wages, and supporting, in all, about 10,000 people.

Concentrate all these people in one place and you add to the map of Canada a good live town like Amherst or Galt or Lethbridge. Rather startling isn't it?

When out of pure thoughtlessness, you buy an imported boot you crunch under your heel the opportunity to build up such a town.

In buying Canadian-made shoes you are paying for quality, not duty. Dollar for Dollar they give you a value that is equal to, if not better than any others.

SHE HAS "AMBULANCEITIES"

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Magistrate Herbert in the Women's Night Court last night found a name for a new disease which has been causing the hospital authorities considerable trouble. Two physicians who had been at a loss for a name for the disease were present.

The occasion was the tenth arraignment named Jennie Reich. On nien previous occasions she had been dismissed after having been arrested for "creating a disturbance" by dropping in the street and being taken to a hospital, where on each occasion the examining physicians said there was nothing at all the matter with her. Her tenth arrest for the same cause took place been unable to find anything wrong with her. Dr. Patchin of Gouverneur Hospital, who has examined her twenty times, said the same.

"You've been arrested ten times, but I see no reason why I should not discharge you for the tenth time," said the Magistrate. "You have stumped the medical profession, but I am con-

EAGER TO SERVE AGAINST GERMAN RAID

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Plans for dealing with a possible German invasion were spoken of last night in the House of Commons by Under Secretary for War Ternant.

W. C. Bridgeman, member from Shropshire, asked whether the wearing of brassards would insure that persons taking part in the defence of the country would not be regarded as civilians. He also asked if the Government was aware that many active men over the recruiting age desire to fight in the event of an invasion and are prepared to furnish their own arms and equipment, if the War Office will design a uniform for such a force.

Mr. Tennant replied that the War Office felt it was the first duty of the navy to prevent a raid.

"In event of its taking place," he said, "it is our duty to drive the Germans into the sea as fast as we can, and I hope we shall be enabled to do so."

In regard to the action of the civil population if an invasion takes place, he pointed out that emergency committees had been formed in the various counties where there was any danger of an invasion, and instructions were being issued to those committees. He thought it was not desirable to state at this time what these instructions were.

The Pall Mall Gazette, referring to the report of "liveliness" at Emden, says it "accords very well with what passed in this country last week."

"Military movements took place," continues the paper, "which, of course, we shall not dwell upon in detail, but which gave rise to the almost universal belief that the authorities had news of some attempt to be made against us. The attitude of the public mind was one of interest. It certainly was not one of alarm."

ZEPPELIN FACTORY DAMAGED

British Aviators Worked Extensive Damage at Friedrichshafen.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It was announced officially yesterday afternoon that the British aviators who, Saturday afternoon raided Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance, report positively that all the bombs thrown by them reached their objective and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin airship factory.

Details were given in the House of Commons by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty.

"Commander Briggs is reported to have been shot down," said Mr. Churchill, "and to have been taken wounded, to a hospital, as a prisoner. The two other officers, Flight Commander Babington and Lieut. Sippe, returned safely to French territory, although their machines were damaged by the fire of the enemy. They report positively that all of the bombs reached their objective, and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin factory.

"This flight of 250 miles, penetrating 120 miles into Germany across a mountainous country under difficult weather conditions, constitutes, together with the attack, a fine feat of arms."

Another Raid Made.

BERLIN, Nov. 24. — The British aviators who attempted to destroy the Zeppelin headquarters at Friedrichshafen on Saturday are said here today also to have made an attack on the buildings at Manzell, to the west of Friedrichshafen, which are used for the housing of dirigibles. The attack was without results.

German Naval Station Found.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 24.—It is declared here to-day on what would appear to be good authority that the Germans have been maintaining what is described as a naval station outside of Valparaiso, Chile. Here they brought together a number of vessels having on board coal and provisions.

House-Cleaning at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24.—The annual house-cleaning in the Parliament Building which precedes a session of Parliament has already begun and the general opinion here has fixed upon Wednesday, Jan. 13, as the date of the opening.

It is reported that Hon. Dr. Sproule will be called to the Senate before the opening of the session and that he will be succeeded by Richard Blain, M.P. for Peel.

MAY ATTACK ITALY.

Austro-Turkish Fleet Ready For Hostilities, Says Correspondent.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — A despatch from the Rome correspondent of The Standard says:

"Germany, having succeeded in pushing Turkey into the war against the allies, Austria also is doing her utmost to induce Turkey to attack Italy. At the same time the Italian Government is well aware of what is going on, but none the less hesitates to believe the report that has just come in from one of its most reliable agents that common action by the combined Austro-Turkish squadron is expected to be taken against Italy at a very early date.

"What is undeniable, however, is that a violent anti-Italian agitation is being carried on by the Turkish emissaries in Albania. Germans are said to be actively countenancing this movement, the first consequence of which have been the raising of a corps of about 15,000 Albanian irregulars who are to be posted at Valona (Avlona), the principal seaport on the Albanian coast, the possession of which would give Italy control of the Adriatic."

Nathan Urges War.

ROME, Nov. 24. — "The hour for the supreme decision has struck," said former Mayor Nathan of Rome, and a leading figure in contemporary Italian affairs, at the Costanzi Theatre in an address to 6,000 people on the issues of the present war. He declared that the Italian army and navy is ready and that Italy must regain her lost provinces. His criticism of Italy's neutrality aroused the wildest enthusiasm.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

A casualty list dated Nov. 20, made public last night, gives the names of five officers killed, eight wounded and one missing.

The Marine Department expects that navigation on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence will close much earlier this year than last.

Capt. E. J. Lovelace yesterday announced that he would relinquish the Liberal candidature of Lincoln County for Dominion House. He will go to the front as an artillery officer.

A number of the Canadian officers at Salisbury Camp were entertained by the Lyceum Club at a dinner in London, Eng., presided over by Lady Strachey, Cols. Dunfee and Hodgetts being the principal guests.

The Cologne Gazette says it learns that Gen. von Hausen, aged 68, former commander of the second army corps, who was displaced by Gen. von Einem in September, has been sent to a sanitarium at Partenkirchen.

The London Board of Control yesterday recommended to the City Council that the Dominion Railway Commission be asked to compel the placing underground of all wires in the downtown section of the city.

French artillery succeeded Sunday night in getting the range of a chateau south of Dixmude, where the German General Staff was installed. The French shells compelled 20 officers to run from the building in night attire, during a blizzard.

FIFTY-FIVE IN PERIL.

Seven Persons Already Drowned as Result of Wreck In Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 24.—Five members of a crew of life-savers trying to reach the steam schooner Hanalei, wrecked on Duxbury Reef, nine miles north of San Francisco, were drowned last night. Two of the Hanalei's crew were drowned late yesterday while trying to make their way through the surf with lines. Two passengers swam to safety.

The lives of 55 other men and women, who were clinging to the sloping decks of the fast-breaking up realised that the only possible hope was to get a line out from shore.

The crew of the Golden Gate Life-Saving Station started to the scene of the wreck with a line-throwing mortar, and were due to reach the ship at midnight.

TURKISH TOWNS TAKEN.

British Have Now Occupied Basrah and Jaffa.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is officially announced that British troops have occupied Basrah, a town at the mouth of the Euphrates, on the Persian Gulf, in Turkish territory. The occupation took place on the 21st instant.

Basrah is an important cable station, the line from that place running to Bushire, Persia.

An unofficial report received here yesterday says the Turks have retired from the Sinai Peninsula as a result of their defeat at El Arish. It is also reported that Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem, has been occupied by British troops.

Two Are Reported Safe.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 24.—Alarm for the safety of the steamers Sinaloa, Nipigon and Niko, which were feared to have met disaster with the C. F. Curtis and her barges in last Thursday's storm was dispelled yesterday afternoon when at least two of the vessels were reported under shelter. No hope, however, is held out for any members of the crews of the ill-fated Curtis, Annie M. Peterson and S. E. Marvin.

To Let Big Contracts.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—L. A. Lacroix, a representative of the French Government has arrived in Montreal. He announces that he will let large contracts for armaments. The Ross Rifle Co. of Quebec, and United States firms will be given an opportunity to tender on a ten million dollar order for mitrailleuses and cartridges.

FOOTBALL IN DISGRACE.

Fifteen Thousand at London Match Did Not Yield Single Recruit.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — Indignation against the hitherto universally popular game of football is expressed by nearly the entire British press yesterday, because almost no men enlisted as a result of the recruiting rallies at Saturday's matches.

"It is time to eradicate the football cancer," says The Pall Mall Gazette, in an article which goes on to say that not a single man was recruited at London's principal football match, which was attended by 15,000 spectators. A colonel who lost a son at the front and was himself returning to the firing line, appeared at this game and pleaded with the men to enlist. His words were drowned by shouts which greeted the appearance of the teams.

In other parts of the country the same stolid refusal greeted the bands of speakers and recruiting officers.

The Westminster Gazette says that there is only one way in which the football association an put itself right in the eyes of the public, and that is by discontinuing its program.

ARMY AT FULL STRENGTH.

Germany's Western Force Not Diminished Says Copenhagen Despatch.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — A despatch from Copenhagen says that it has been learned in German military circles that, despite the serious situation on the eastern frontier, the Germans have not diminished their strength in the western theatre.

The Germans will not give up their position in northern France and West Flanders, unless it becomes vitally necessary, for such action would cause the spirits of the German people to fall so low that revolution might follow.

The Germans are expected to increase rather than diminish their efforts to get Calais in consequence of the Kaiser's special command. On account of the strategical and political importance of Calais, the Germans will disregard the cost in human life that its capture entails.

To Probe Copper Supplies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. — To maintain successfully her right to seize or detain cargoes of American copper carried on American or other neutral vessels to a neutral country, such as Italy in the south, or Holland in the north of Europe, Great Britain apparently finds it necessary to establish the probability that copper actually is destined for Germany, or Austria, or even Turkey.

One means of establishing this probability is to demonstrate that there has been an increase in the imports of copper to any neutral country in excess of the normal requirements of that country, as tending to prove that the surplus copper, or a corresponding quantity already in the country, has been allowed to pass across its borders into a belligerent country.

Kaiser's Fourth Son Improving.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 24.—"Prince August William, fourth son of the German Emperor, who was injured in a motor car accident, is improving, but complete recovery will take a long time," says the Berlin correspondent of The Telegraaf. The correspondent adds:

"The reports that the Crown Prince had been wounded are unfounded."

Jamaica Cable Was Cut.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — The official information bureau announced yesterday that a message from the Governor-General of Jamaica declares that there was interruption in the cable communication with Jamaica early in August of this year, which at the time was thought to be due to an earthquake.

It is now known that the Jamaica cable was cut by hostile cruisers on Aug. 3 at 6.40 a.m., before the declaration of war.

GERMAN CRAFT SUNK

Submarine U18 Is Rammed by British Patrol Ship.

British Destroyer Garry Comes Alongside Just In Time to See German Boat Rise to the Surface and Display a White Flag—All the Germans Are Saved But One—German Destroyer Lost.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that the German submarine boat U-18, which was reported off the north coast of Scotland yesterday morning, was rammed by a British patrolling vessel and foundered.

The patrolling ship rammed the submarine at 12.20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The U-18 was not seen again until 1.20, when she appeared on the surface flying a white flag. Shortly after this she foundered just as the British destroyer Garry came alongside. The destroyer rescued three officers and twenty-three of the submarine's crew, only one being drowned.

The names of the German officers captured are Captain Lieut. von Henning, Engineer Lieut. Sprenger and Lieut. Neuerberg.

The submarine boat U-18 of the German navy was built in 1912. She had a cruising radius of 2,000 miles and a speed of fourteen knots above water and eight knots submerged.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Copenhagen says the Danish steamer Anglodane collided Sunday night in the Ore Sund with the German torpedo-boat destroyer S-124, which foundered.

Another Copenhagen despatch says: The collision occurred in the Baltic Sea outside Falsterbo, Sweden. Two German torpedo boats went to the assistance of the destroyer as she was about to sink, and a majority of the crew was taken aboard them. Three of the men were rescued by the Anglodane, but one of them, the chief engineer, did a half-hour later.

The destroyer was towed by one of the torpedo boats to the Swedish coast, where she will be disarmed. The injured boat carried no lights. The Anglodane sustained no damage in the collision.

The German torpedo-boat destroyer S-124 was built in 1903. She was of 6,500 horsepower, and had a speed of 28 knots. She carried a crew of about sixty men.

Asquith at Salisbury.

SALISBURY, Nov. 24.—The Prime Minister, accompanied by his daughter, paid an unofficial visit here yesterday. He went over the whole four camps with the commander, and conversed freely with several Canadian officers. He seemed to take a particular interest in the arrangements made for the social entertainment of the soldiers.

The men soon recognized the Premier as he drove up in a motor, and gave him a rousing welcome. He was greatly impressed with the appearance of the troops and spoke of their sturdy physique.

SHOT HIMSELF

Gordon Smith, or Parham, had the misfortune to shoot himself through the arm the other day. He stood the gun on the cement step to put his gloves on, and it slipped off. The hammer hitting the edge of the step discharged the gun. The shot went through his left arm below the elbow, breaking one bone and cutting off the cord.

AT THE ALERT CLUB

The second meeting of the young peoples' Alert Club of the Tabernacle chruch, in the League parlors, last night, was a pleasing success, between thirty and forty being present. An interesting programme was rendered, consisting of Scripture reading by Mr. Newton Thompson; address by Mr. F. Snider; a chorus by members of the Apex Club; piano solo by Miss May Williams, which, with selections by the full company, made up a very enjoyable evening. New members are being added to the Club, which already numbers nearly fifty. A a social is being arranged for Monday evening next, to which the young people are invited.

1,000 MORE SOLDIERS

While nothing is as yet definite there is a very strong probability that Kingston will shortly have one thousand or more additional soldiers. Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock Col. Hemming, Major J. Hamilton and a corps of assistants, acting under instructions from Ottawa, made a visit to the Exhibition buildings at the Fair Grounds and also to the Malt House, King street west, now owned by the Maple Leaf Milling Co. The idea is to see at what cost these buildings could be fitted up to accommodate a portion of the larger number of men who will be called into service under the new order calling for a force of 50,000 men constantly under arms in Canada.

A TALK TO MOTHERS

Mothers, do you know that every time a member of your family sustains a cut, scratch, burn, or bruise, no matter how slight, you take a grave risk in neglecting the injury? The wound may start to fester, and develop into a running sore, or blood poison may set in, resulting in the loss of a limb, or even of life.

Do you know that whatever salve or ointment you apply to the wound enters into the blood and affects the entire system? Therefore in using an ointment containing coarse animal fats or poisonous minerals you are taking a further risk.

Use Zam-Buk—it is free from animal fats and mineral poisons. It is purely herbal, and is soothing, healing, and antiseptic. No germs can live where Zam-Buk has been applied. It will quickly ease the pain and heal the wound. Not only for the minor mishaps, but for the most serious accidents Zam-Buk is best; for babies as well as adults.

Teach your children to apply Zam-Buk whenever they have a mishap and you will save them much pain and yourself a lot of worry and grief. Keep Zam-Buk always handy; unlike other ointments it will not go rancid, but will keep indefinitely.

Zam-Buk is best for piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, cold sores, ulcers, and all injuries and skin diseases; also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sciatica, stiffened muscles, etc.

At all druggists and stores, or post-paid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. For free trial box, send this advertisement, name of paper, and 1c stamp.

NEW LINE HALF WAY TO PETERBORO

Good progress is being made with the building of the new Grand Trunk line from Belleville to Lindsay. At the end of last week the laying of the new steel had progressed until the workmen were conducting operations between Hoard's and Campbellford. This means that the new line, to which local people have looked longingly forward to for years, has been brought nearly half way from Belleville to Peterborough. It is probable that the 80-pound rails will be laid as far as this city about New Year's Day.

Turk is Held A Prisoner of War

Man Taken From Tramp Ship Declares He is a Greek

A Turk was taken off the grain tramp Horsley shortly after her arrival in Montreal harbor on Saturday, and he has been interned with the Austrian and German subjects. The man claimed to be a Greek, explaining that he had been born of Greek parents at Constantinople, but he did not have the necessary proof, and the Customs officials took him a prisoner of war.

The Horsley has a mixed crew, including representatives of Britain, Russian, Norway and Spain. The ship came to Montreal from Genoa, whither she had carried coal from England. Officers on board her said, yesterday, that there was no doubt the Italian people were strongly in favor of entering the war on the side of the allies. When the ship was in Genoa, two weeks ago, the citizens held a demonstration urging the Government to enter the struggle against Austria and Germany.

Posters with inscriptions antagonistic to the allies' enemies, and postcards caricaturing Emperors Wilhelm and Francis Joseph were posted conspicuously in many places in Genoa, the officers said.

DISCOVERY TO STOP BLEEDING OF WOUNDS

Coagulen Given to Troops So that Wounded May Not Bleed To Death

A prepartion which, it is said, will stop almost instantly the flow of blood from a wound has been invented by Prof. Theodor Kocher of Kocher of Berne, Switzerland, who was awarded the Nobel Prize for surgery in 1912, and his assistant, Dr. A. Fonce. The new preparation is called coagulen.

It is in the form of a powder, and is dissolved in water before being applied to a wound. The discoverers of coagulen have made a gift of their invention to the armies in the field, and have sent large quantities of the powder to the surgical headquarters of both the German and French armies. The discovery is regarded by medical men here as likely to save the lives of thousands of soldiers, since it can be applied by untrained hands, so that the wounded man himself or his comrade might use the solution.

Very valuable discovery of true.

And heretofore the Austrians have not been guilty of any atrocities. "hatpins with china tips struccoed with jewels" announced as being among the spring models.

Geography of The Apple

A Message from the Government to the School-Children of Canada

Your father and mother know most everything about the Canadian Apple—how it has come to be the finest in the world—why it is so good for children and grown-ups to eat—and why loyal Canadian everywhere are buying a barrel for the winter.

But here is something they don't know. So you learn this rhyme and surprise them by reciting it.

"APPLE GEOGRAHPHY"

Through the valley of Evangeline
In the Province by the sea,
Grows the famous Gravenstein,
So sought by you and me.

Prince Edward Island, true to name,
Grows the fruit of royalty,
The King, they call it, and its fame
Has spread far o'er the sea.

New Brunswick grows the Pippin rare
An apples large and mellow;
And other kinds no whit less fair
In tints of red and yellow.

La Belle Quebec the Fameuse grows
A dainty fruit, the same
It's rightly called 'Queen of the Snows'
The world well knows its name.

Ontario 'neath smiling skies
Grows fruits of many kind
In her rich orchards Northern Spys
Most everywhere you'll find

Now Manitoba, famed for wheat
Is planting apple trees also,
For hardy apples, large and sweet
Her fertile plains will grow.

Saskatchewan no apples grows
But she feels not the loss;
To her from Okanagan goes
The Spitzenberg, the McIntosh.

Alberta raises kine and wheat
That earn the world's first prize
But not an apple fit to eat,
She imports all her Spys.

Between the mountains and the coast
Grows Jonathan and the Wealthy;
It's hard to tell which does the most
To make her people healthy.

A Pleasing Evening

A musical and literary evening under the auspices of the W.M.S. of the Tabernacle church, was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. R. Davis, Victoria avenue. The following programme was given and a short address by Rev. W. G. Clarke. After which light refreshments were served and a social half hour spent, all present having spent a very pleasant evening.

Piano Solo—Miss Gladys Mayo.
Reading—Miss Jean McIntosh.
Song—Mr. E. Ridley.
Duet—Miss P. Davis and Mrs. Varley.
Reading—Miss L. Dyer.
Song—Mrs. Duff.
Violin Solo—Mr. M. Young.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by consitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MAN DIES AT SALISBURY

SALISBURY PLAIN Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Another name was added to the casualty list of the Canadian expeditionary force to-day when Private Ash of Chilliwack, British Columbia, died of spinal meningitis.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractic is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

Big Final Attempt To Reach Calais

FLANDERS, Nov. 23.—(Special)—From certain indications one is inclined to believe that a grand final attempt to break through to the Calais defences will be made in a day or two. That it is, in the event of failure, to be the final attempt is unquestionably shown by the extensive preparations made by Germans for immediate retreat eastward on Bruges and Ghent, and even on Brussels. Immensely strong positions, it is reported, have been made around those towns. All necessary transportation dispositions have been taken, and a very large number of German trains have been reported moving to and fro between the trenches in Belgium and the chief towns. Many packed troop trains passed through Bruges, Brussels and other cities, all travelling eastward. Evidently the course of events in Eastern Prussia and Poland has once more given rise to one of these dexterous shufflings of armies for which the German strategical railways are so well adapted.

From a well informed source it is gathered that the new forces which have been gather in Flanders under the Duke of Wurtemburg are at least the fourth new selection since the commencement of the North Sea campaign. It is also learned that the German official estimate of their losses during the battle of the Yesr amounts to two hundred thousand casualties during the battle of the Yser amounts ado of the allies provoked practically no response. A few shells fell at Ramscapell without serious damage, and an abortive attempt was made from an aeroplane to destroy the staff headquarters at Poperhinghe. Fourteen persons were injured and one killed by a bomb dropped. All were innocent citizens making market day purchases.

A fresh form of attack being planned by the Germans is a large number of armed motor boats sent forward for use on the canals of Belgium. They have a very high engine power and an armament of quick firing guns.

Will Send Delegates Abroad

Shirt Manufacturers Trying For More Army Business

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—Two representatives of the Shirt Manufacturers' Association of Canada, the organization formed here recently to grapple with problems presented by big army contracts, have left to interview the Britsih, French and Russian governments with a view to future business.

The million shirt order, recently placed by the Imperial Government, is keeping the shirt factories of Canada operating practically to the limit of capacity. Tooke Bros. have started night work to ensure the completion of their share of the contract on time. The order promises work for most of the factories for a month or so more and it is hoped that by that time additional orders will be received.

It was with a view to making every effort to secure the new business that will develop that the association decided to send two representatives abroad and have them interview the various governments personally. The move will commend itself to all who are interested in seeing Canadian manufacturers adopt an aggressive campaign to secure new business to replace that lost by disturbance in the usual trade channels.

Busybodies in War Zone Become Grave Nuisance

Private Persons With Self-Imposed Missions Hamper Military Authorities

NEW FORM OF JOY RIDING

Pseudo-Patriotic and Philanthropic Work Furnishes Excitement for Idle-Rich Class

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The London Daily News, in an article headed "Joy Riding at the Front," says:

"It is yet too early to comment on the interesting activity within the region of war of many private people with self-imposed mission, and on the work of the unofficial ambulance corps, now grown so numerous that the military are falling over them everywhere, with suitable comment.

"It has been evident to anyone who travelled lately in France and Belgian that the authorities would soon have to deal with the unauthorized and useless busybodies, many of them in khaki and the most in some sort of attractive uniform, who are met with everywhere on the lines of communication.

"The war, of course, being so near home, has proved more attractive to the normally idle class than the dubious problem play or the notorious novel, with all the consequences of popular attraction.

"Joy riding in the zone of fire is a form of mental excitement, in these days when laws have gone to the dogs, which has naturally attracted its enthusiasst, and if one has a private car and a Red Cross badge, it is not at all difficult to obtain it.

Options have been secured on two sites on the east side of the harbor.

IF SUEZ CANAL IS CLOSED ITALY TO JOIN ALLIES

ROME Nov. 25—Special—Information been received that Italy will not tolerate the closing of the Suez Canal, that she will hold Turkey responsible if such a situation should result and will resort to force is necessary.

Italy takes the position that the closing of the canal would be a violation of the Canal treaty of 1888 and of the Anglo-French conventions of 1904, since Great Britain is entitled to close the canal if Egypt is threatened.

The other signatory and neutral powers of the conventions, Spain and the Netherlands share Italy's views but the closing of the canal directly damages Italy's interests. That is the reason I am told why Italy will not tolerate such an event.

An important meeting was held at the Foreign Office to-day. It was attended by Premier Salandra, Minister of Foreign Affairs Sonnino, chief of the general staff of the army, General Codorna, and chief of the naval staff, Vice-Admiral Phaon di Revel. The meeting lasted two hours and secrecy was maintained by all the participants as to the subjects discussed.

The Giornal d'Italia says it dealt with the international situation as regards Italian interests, and that the two chiefs of staff outlined the present condition of the army and navy as the result of the preparations of the last three months.

CITY VISITED BY A DISASTROUS FIRE

New Balmoral Hotel and Two Places of Business Burned Out--Loss Estimated at Upwards of $20,000--Inmates All Removed to Places of Safety

This city was this morning visited by the most disastrous fire which has occurred here since the destruction of the Schuster block last winter. As a result of the blaze two business places and a hotel were burned out.

At a few minutes before four o'clock Capt. Bottum, one of the proprietors of the New Balmoral Hotel, was awakened by the smell of smoke and upon arising and leaving his room discovered the place well filled with smoke. Awakening other members of his family and Mr. Henry Johnson, his partner, they as quickly as possible aroused other inmates of the house who were in their rooms. In a short time all were out and taken to places of safety. In the meantime an alarm had been sounded, and when the fire brigade arrived upon the scene it was apparent that they had no easy task on their hands. Just where the fire originated is a matter of conjecture.

Adjoining the hotel proper was Mr. J. B. Black's restaurant, and next to this business place was Mr. S. Amodeo's fruit store. Above Mr. Black's store were the kitchen and rooms used by help employed in the hotel. It was somewhere in this locality where the fire originated, but how is not known. The fire fighters made a determined effort to check the onward march of the devouring element, but it proved futile. The upper portions of the premises occupied by Messrs. Black and Amodeo were burned, as was also the upper portion and the Mansard roof of the hotel premises. The smoke was so dense that it was impossible to save anything. It was indeed fortunate that all of the inmates of the hotel were rescued. The rooms in the hotel were all filled with guests and help. The fire brigade were kept busy upon the scene the greater portion of the day.

The premises burned are a portion of the Lister estate and built of brick and stone. The two business places burned are situated on Front street and that portion known as the Balmoral Hotel is upon the corner of Front and Bridge Street. The latter premises were well furnished and it was an up-to-date hostelry. The boarders and guests lost their belongings as they had no time to save anything. At times the fire was spectacular and during the progress was witnessed by hundreds of citizens who gathered from all parts of the city. At one time six streams of excellent force were playing upon the blaze.

Mr. Charles Bishop, who conducts a seed and grain business adjoining Amodeo's store, sustained a loss by the burning out of an electric motor used for cleaning grain, and his stock was damaged by water. His loss is covered by insurance.

LOSSES.

The loss to buildings and contents is estimated roughly to be at least $20,000, and by some is said to be more than $25,000. As already stated, the block is a portion of the Lister estate. It would no doubt require some $10,000 or $12,000 to replace it in the condition it was in before the fire. The insurance, we are informed, will cover the loss, and it is placed in several companies.

Messrs. Johnson & Bottum had an insurance of $5,000 on the effects of the hotel, bar fixtures, etc. Their loss will be upwards of this amount.

Mr. J. B. Black had some insurance on his stock in the Factories Insurance Company. We are informed that the loss he has sustained is at least double his insurance.

Mr. Amodeo had insurance upon his stock which will cover his loss.

Some of the guests at the Balmoral who lost their all, had no insurance.

NOTES.

During the day the fire brigade was called out twice as the fire had rekindled and threatened to extend.

Some telephone and electric wires were put out of commission by the fire.

CHEESE INDUSTRY LEFT TO INEXPERIENCED MEN

Older Makers, Says Mr. Echlin, Drifting Out--Big Output of Creamery

RENFREW, Nov. 24.—(Special)—Mr. J. B. Ferguson, District Director, presided at the Eastern Ontario District dairy meeting held in Renfrew to-day, and was nominated director for another year. He promised to work hard to secure for Renfrew the meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association for 1916.

Addresses were delivered by G. G. Publow, H. W. Coleman, J. H. Echlin, and M. H. Winter, B.S.A., all of whom spoke hopefully of the outlook of the dairy industry in this section of eastern Ontario. Mr. Echlin, however, stated that the older cheese makers were drifting into other vocations, leaving a great national industry in the hands of young inexperienced men. To make a man fit for the work he declared years of training and experience to be necessary.

He told of having visited the Renfrew creamery once during the season now closing; when the day's output was 5,230 pounds, the largest output of butter for any one day since the creamery opened twenty years ago.

TWO LONDON BANKERS QUIT PRIVY COUNCIL

Requested to Retire Because of Their German Birth--Unprecedented Occurrence

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—Sir Ernest Cassel and Sir Edward Speyer have been excused from the Privy Council by King George. At the outbreak of the war both were informed that their presence at the Privy Council meetings was undesirable during the war, but this did not dispossess them of the right to inspect the minutes of such meetings, which privilege they now lose. This is the first time on which a member has been retired from the Privy Council.

Both above-mentioned Privy Councillors are prominent financiers and bankers, and are both of German birth. Sir Ernest Cassel was one of the closest and most intimate friends of the late King Edward.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—General Blanco, left Mexico City at 3 a.m. yesterday and the forces of Zapata immediately took possession of the city.

WHY SHOULD WE BUY AT HOME?

1 Because our interests are here.
2 Because the community that is good enough for us to live in is good enough for us to buy in.
3 Because we believe in transacting business with our friends.
4 Because we want to see the goods we are buying.
5 Because we want to get what we buy when we pay for it.
6 Because some part of every dollar we spend at home stays at home and helps work for the welfare of our home town.
7 Because the home man we buy from stands back of the goods, thus always giving value received.
8 Because the man we buy from pays his share of the taxes.
9 Because the man we buy from helps to support our poor and needy, our schools, our churches, and our homes.
10 Because, when luck, misfortune or bereavement comes, the man we buy from is here with his kindly expressions of greeting, his words of cheer, and, if need be, his pocketbook.
11 Let us make Belleville a good place in which to work and live.
12 It's easy and certain if each one will contribute his share.

Carranza Men Are Arrested in Mexico City

Governor of Capital Jails, General Obregon, Villareal and Hay--American Forces Under Gen. Funston Leave Vera Cruz

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Nov. 24.—Provisional President Gutierrez has been notified by General Lucio Blanco that the latter had taken possession of Mexico City in the name of the convention.

General Blanco reported that he had placed under arrest General Alvaro Obregon, General Antonio Villareal and General Eduardo Hay, all Carranza supporters, on the charge of violating their oath to sustain the actions and sovereignty of the convention. Villareal was president of the convention.

President Gutierrez and the officers and members of the convention are delayed in going to Mexico City until the rialroad is sufficiently repaired for them to make the trip.

General Villa with 10,000 men is at San Juan Del Rio, south of Queretaro, awaiting the arrival of the President Gutierrez, whom he will escort to the capital.

The attack on Guadalajara by the army under General Felipe Angeles is still in progress and reports received here are to the effect that the town is completely surrounded and that Governor Dieguez, in command of the Carranzistas, is expected to surrender within a short time.

An army of 15,000 men, which will be under the direction of Secretary of War Robles, is being prepared by Villa to march against Tampico. Ten cannon and 20 machine guns will accompany the column. The movement will commence probably to-day.

Tampico is held by General Luis Caballero in the name of Carranza.

Vera Cruz Evacuated

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 24.—At 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a speck on the horizon showed the last of the transports which were bearing away from Mexico the soldiers of the United States. Five hours and a half before that the outposts, who have been guarding the interior approaches to the city shouldered their arms and began the general closing movement that ended in the city plaza, where eight months before they stood with smoking rifles.

It was a different city that these marines and soldiers entered yesterday. Many business houses had closed their doors for the day and the saloons had to close on the order of General Funston. The streets were thronged with men and women who came to see the Americans marching to their boats and to receive General Aguilar and his 8,000 constitutionalist soldiers. Bands were playing under Mexican flags and for everybody except the busy soldier it was something of a holiday.

Previous to the embarkation General Funston conferred with Colonel Elmundo Martinez, the personal representative of General Aguilar. United States Consul W. W. Canada also talked with Colonel Martinez and the result is a working agreement under which it is hoped peace may be maintained.

Promises have been given that the Americans remaining in the city will not be molested. Notwithstanding these assurances, more than 500 refugees and 253 Americans decided to leave with the troops. The refugees included 200 men, 56 women, 30 children and 30 priests and nuns. These people will be brought to Galveston.

Desperate Fighting at Three Points

EL PASO, Nov. 24.—Desperate fighting is in progress at three important points in Mexico, according to advice reaching El Paso, and in two of the battles the Villa forces are said to have met severe reverses.

A combined Villa and Zapato force, operating between Puebela and Mexico City, has been defeated with great loss at Tiaxala, near Puebla, according to Carranzist advices received by Consul Garcia. The Carranza forces were under command of General Maycot. The advices state that 400 of the enemy were killed, wounded or captured and that two cannon and eight machine guns were captured.

The defeated force is said to have numbered several thousand men. Villistas deny their defeat and assert that the Carranzistas were whipped.

Dame Fortune is a stranger to the majority of people, but her daughter, Miss Fortune, call on them daily.

OUR BOYS' CONCERT PRONOUNCED A SUCCESS

The Splendid Programme Rendered in Perfect Form--New Voices Receive Favorable Comment--A Fair Audience in Attendance--A Worthy Purpose Fully Recognized

Another example of Belleville's generosity was demonstrated at the City Hall last evening, where a fair audience gathered and listened to an excellent programme arranged by prominent local ladies in behalf of "Our Boys' Fund" (sick or well). To this the city's best musical talent contributed cheerfully, with the result of a thoroughly enjoyable event. As explained in the daily papers, the object was to obtain money for filling kits composed of useful articles to be sent to our boys at the front, all of which are made in Canada, and made by the wives and mothers of those who are giving their lives in the country's defence.

During the programme intermission, Mrs. C. J. Bowell exhibited and explained a generous-sized packet, the contents of which, in the way of pajamas, soldiers' nightshirts, slippers, brushes, even to face-cloths, were a revelation to all.

Too much credit cannot be extended to the promoters of this admirable scheme, and last evening's effort to consummate the work of adding to the comfort of our brave boys is worthy of the unlimited recognition from our people.

The Fifteenth Regimental Band occupied the platform throughout the evening, and under the direction of Mr. E. R. Hinchey discoursed high-class music. Right here we are well within the limit in remarking that for faultless execution and perfect harmony the Fifteenth has no superior in Ontario, the rendering of Home, Sweet Home, as played in various countries, attracting especial attention.

The programme throughout was select. Mrs. James Grant, in her usual fine voice leading the numbers, while the piano solo by Mrs. Col. Campbell was well received. Miss May Wallace, in a quaintly pathetic battlefield recital, did herself great credit. Mrs. C. C. Leavens' rich mezzo-soprano in "The Serenade," followed with good effect. A piano solo by Mr. Kenneth Ross was a pleasing contrast to the vocal numbers, Miss Ponton's beautiful voice being heard next in "Your King and Country Wants You," to the delight of the audience.

Everyone in Belleville is proud of Miss Joy Higgs as a violinist, and last evening's renditions in sweet, rounded tones were an inspiration to those present.

The mandolin selection and piano accompaniment by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holton was extremely pleasing.

A new and pleasing voice in the person of Miss Dorothy Grant, daughter of Mrs. James Grant, was a pleasing feature of the evening, the young lady's rendition of a difficult selection drawing forth favorable comment.

The piano solo by Mrs. Wegner was well received.

In "The Call of the Motherland," Miss Lillian Sharpe's rich soprano voice found high favor, and as a new acquisition to Belleville's vocalists was received with words of commendation.

Mr. Ralls' high tenor was heard to good effect in "An Evening Song," and "The Angel's Serenade," by Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin in exceptionally pleasing voice, with violin obligato, was an attractive number.

Always heartily welcomed, Miss Maysel Stork was heard to good effect in "Jack Briton", Mr. Dan A. Cameron's magnificent baritone concluding the programme in a faultless rendition of "Requiem," followed by a "Soldier Song," in a manner that sent the blood of loyalty coursing through every being. There are few, if any, voices equal to that of Mr. Cameron in this section and last evening he was at his best.

The accompanists were Mrs. Col. Campbell, Mrs. A. P. Allen, Miss Dorothy Grant and Mrs. James Grant.

Following the programme refreshments were served to the participants, bringing to an end one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season.

SECOND AUSTRIAN CAUGHT TRYING TO CROSS BORDER

He Had Told of Paying Snyder to Row Him Over the River

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 24.—(Special)—Stiro Podunic, an Austrian was made a prisoner of war today by immigration officials. Podunic came to this city from Welland, accompanied by his hotel proprietor, and attempted to cross the upper bridge.

In answer to questions the immigration officials learned that Podunic had come to Canada some time ago and had evaded the immigration laws by doing so. It was also learned that he had served some time in prison at Lackawanna, N.Y. Podunic was one of the witnesses at the trial of Joseph Snyder, who was charged with treason on Friday, and testified that he paid $10 to Snyder to row him across the upper river. This is the second one of the four Austrians who were witnesses at the Snyder trial who has been captured by immigration officials in making a second attempt to cross to the American side.

BERLIN CLAIMS GERMANS HOLD THEIR OWN IN THE EASTERN THEATRE

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—An official communication today says that the Germans claim to have made progress at Arras, and to have repulsed all the Russian attacks in East Prussia and to have checked the Russian counter attacks in Russian Poland.

SIXTY MEN ASK TO BE SENT TO JAIL IN ONE WEEK, SAYS JUDGE

Majority Declare There is no Work to be Found-- Buffalo Has 15,000 Unemployed

BUFFALO, Nov. 24—What is Buffalo going to do with its "worthy" army of unemployed? is a question that needs to be solved very soon. Judge Keeler says that there are 15,000 men in Buffalo out of work.

Ask to Go to Pen

During the past week Judge Keeler sent to the penitentiary for terms of four months at least 60 men and boys who requested that they be taken out of the cold, biting nights and be given a place to sleep and eat. The majority of these men and boys, some 18 and 19 years old, said there was no work to be found in the city.

The case of Oscar Wilde, a 19-year-old boy, who pleaded with Judge Keeler to be sent away for four months, in police court to-day, attracted more than the usual attention. He said he had been hunting for work ever since he came from Winnipeg. He had no overcoat and wore a short coat with a thin blue shirt. Judge Keeler gave him a four-month sentence and told him if he got sick of staying in the penitentiary to write to him and he would release him.

Urges Soup Kitchens

"The only practical way of solving this matter, it seems," pointed out Judge Keeler, "is to establish soup kitchens, and put them in the hands of capable men. Let these poor beggars get a stomachful of something warm and nourishing once in a while.

"There are some that will say that the bums, panhandlers and drunks will take advantage of such a scheme, but I will guarantee that if the right men are put in charge of them very few will get what they don't deserve."

SITUATION WITH THE ALLIES IS ALMOST A DEAD CALM--INDIANS CAPTURE TRENCH, SUSPENSION OF HOSTILITIES REFUSED

PARIS, Nov. 25.—An official statement this afternoon says:

From the North Sea to Ypres there have not been any infantry attacks.

Between Langemarck and Zonnebeckew, we have gained territory. In the vicinity of La Brassee the Indian troops recaptured from the enemy a certain trench, which had been taken from them the evening before.

From La Brassee to Soissons there has been almost a complete calm.

We have made slight progress near Berry—Au Bac, and in the Argonne.

At Bethin Court, northwest of Verdun, the German attack has been repulsed. A suspension of hostilities requested by the enemy has been refused.

In the region of Pont Au Meusson, our artillery has bombarded Arnaville.

Nothing has happened in the Vosges.

RUSSIANS MAKING IMPORTANT ADVANCE ON FRONT FROM CRACOW--ENEMY IN A DISORDERLY FLIGHT--SPREADING PANIC IN GERMANY

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Matin under date of Monday wires that the Russians have made an important advance on the Front from Cracow to Czenstochowa, and are continuing an energetic offensive movement on the line from Plock to Lenezyca. The enemy is in a disorderly flight, which is bound to spread panic throughout Germany.

SUCCECSFUL ZEPPELIN RAIDERS ON FRIEDERICHSHAFEN HONORED, DECORATED AND BANQUETTED

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A despatch to the Express from Geneva says the British airmen returning to Belford, from a successful raid on Friederichshafen, had been honored by a parade of the garrison and were decorated with the Legion of Henor and banquetted by the officers.. Two Zeppelins at Friederichshafen are reported to be seriously damaged.

NOW PROVEN THAT FRENCH PASSENGER SHIP WITH 2,000 REFUGEES ABOARD WAS VICTIM OF GERMAN SUBMARINE

LONDON, Nov. 25.—An Admiralty statement issued today says that the French passenger steamer Admiral Ganteaume, which was sunk on October 26th, while on her way from Calais to Havre, with two thousand refugees aboard, many of them woman and children, was the victim of a German submarine. To prove this, a photograph is displayed of the fragment of a torpedo, which was found in one of the steamer's life-boats. It was previously supposed that the Ganteaume had struck a mine.

SERVIANS WIN A VICTORY CAPTURING FIVE HUNDRED PRISONERS AND THREE MACHINE GUNS

PARIS, Nov. 25.—A Servian victory in the fighting with the Austrian invaders is reported in a despatch today to Havas Agency, from Nish.

The Austrian columns, which on the night of November the 22nd, crossed the Kolumbara River, in Northwestern Servia, were put to rout by the Servians, with large losses.. The battle continues.

The Austrians are said to have lost five hundred prisoners and three machine guns.

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS SETTLE IN CANADIAN WEST

546 Homesteading Entries in Two Month in Prairie Provinces

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—(Special)—Despite the war, Germans and Austrians are still taking up homesteads in western Canada in considerable numbers. During August and September, the first two months of the war, no fewer than 478 Austro-Hungarians and 69 Germans made entries for homesteads in the Prairie Provinces, principally in Alberta. Evidently these "alien enemies" have decided to throw in their lit with Canada rather than fight for the Fatherland.

LOOKING FOR A SITE

A number of prominent citizens, who are interested in the Children's Aid Society, with some members of the County Council, yesterday afternoon were out site seeing. The object of their pilgrimage was to see if some suitable site could be secured for the erection of a new shelter. Whilst no definte site was selected one in the near future, we are informed, will be chosen.

A CHURCH WEDDING

At eight o'clock this morning a wedding occurred at St. Michael's church, at which Rev. Father Killeen officiated. The bride was Miss Clara Luscombe, daughter of Mrs. J. Luscombe, who resides on Grier street in this city, and the groom Mr. Eddie Britton, also of this city. Miss Lillie Palmer was bridesmaid, whilst Mr. John Fahey did honors for the grooms. After the ceremony the bridal party had a wedding breakfast at the residence of the bride's mother. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Britton later left for a western trip. Their many friends in the city will wish for them years of happiness and success.

REMAINS BURIED HERE

The remains of the late Mr. T. P. Brown, a former well-known resident of this city, who died at Toronto, arrived here at noon to-day and was taken to Belleville cemetery for interment. A number from the city met the train and accompanied the body to the cemetery. Burial services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Baker, Principal of Albert College. The bearers were Messrs. D. V. Sinclair, C. H. Vermilyea, F. C. Clarke, W. S. Clarke, Wm. Dickens and D. Watkins. Deceased, who was about 50 years of age, was born at St. Thomas, Ont. For some years Mr. Brown resided in this city, having been employed with the Ritchie Company, and afterwards went into business for himself. Of late years the deceased had lived in Toronto, being engaged with the T. Eaton Company. A widow and one daughter survive.

Millions of Dollars' Worth of Purchases From Middle States' Firms

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—British orders aggregating more than $15,000,000 worth of automobiles, waggons, sleds, harness and other equipment of a similar character have just been brought back from Britain by Frederick S. Fish, President of the Studebaker Corporation.

In addition to this an order for 500 automobile trucks has been let by Britain to the Thomas B. Jeffery Automobile Company of Kenosha, Wis. The Jackson Automobile Company of Jackson, Mich., also has been awarded a contract for $1,000,000 worth of automobiles by the French Government.

Another big British order, let to the Cudahy Packing Company of South Omaha calls for 5,000,000 one-pound tins of corned beef.

Montreal May Rival Carlsbad

Investigations Being Completed as to Existance of Radium in Spring Water

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—An investigation is being completed by the Mines branch as to the existence of radium in spring water in Ottawa, Montreal, and at various points between the two cities. Slight traces of radium have been found in spring water in Ottawa, but the full results of the investigations have not yet been reported.

The object is not to ascertain if it is feasible to extract radium from the water, or to discover the source of the radium, but rather to learn whether there is enough of it in the water to give the latter the healing quality of the Carlsbad Springs in Germany. It is only in recent years that it has been discovered that it is the radium and not saline, contents that give the Carlsbad waters their curative power, and if there are springs of the same nature in Canada their value will be very apparent.

BELGIAN BEER WAS GOOD

Bavarians Each Drank 18 Pints in Two Hours

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Berliner Tageblatt relates that in the Belgian village of Beveren, one hundred and fifty Bavarian soldiers, who had taken part in the siege of Antwerp drank 1,485 litres of beer within two hours. Each Bavarian soldier thus drunk, in round figures, about 18 pints within two hours. The Tageblatt has not other comment than that it was satisfactory to find that Belgian beer was fit for the Bavarians' consumption.

HUGE GERMAN CASUALTIES

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 24.—(Special)—The 83rd German official list of casualties brings the total killed, wounded and missing, officers and men, to 601,438. This figure does not include the 58 lists for Saxony, 56 for Bavaria and 61 for Wurtemburg. The list covers the losses from the middle of September to the end of October, and none after November 1. Among the names are 16 flying officers killed or wounded. Several cases of typhoid fever among the troops in northern France are recorded. This has caused excitement in medical circles. The total German losses to date are set down at about a million to a million and a half.

Swollen, Aching Veins

A COMMON CAUSE OF DISCOMFORT.

The army of people troubled with swollen veins is a large one and was steadily on the increase until the discovery a few years ago that a germicide-liniment of marked value for other ailments gave prompt relief from this aggravating trouble.

Since this accidental discovery hundreds of sufferers have proven its efficiency—it has made good even in cases of long standing.

Mr. R. C. Kellogg, Becket, Mass., before using this remedy, suffered intensely with painful and inflamed veins; they were swollen, knotted, and hard. He writes: "After using one and one-half bottles of Absorbine, Jr., the veins were reduced, inflammation and pain gone, and I have had no recurrence of the trouble during the past six years."

This germicide-liniment—Absorbine, Jr. is made of herbs and safe and harmless to use, which in itself makes it distinctive. Most druggists have it or send $1.00 to the manufacturer, W. F. Young, P. D. F., 457 Lymans Bldg., Montreal Can., and a bottle will be mailed to you promptly. Safe delivery guaranteed.

TURKS ASSIGNED TO KILL MAJOR-GENERAL HUGHES

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 24.—That the arrest of the three Turks at a Wellington street house last Thursday night by Detectives Eggleton and Down, frustrated an attempted assissination of Major-General Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, is the allegation made to-day by police authorities.

Letters found in the possession of the prisoners and interpreted by a Government secret service man, are claimed to be a direct indication that an attempt was to have been made on the life of General Hughes when in the city to-morrow.

One of the letters, bearing a Detroit postmark on the envelope, urged the Turks to "do their duty" and to not be afraid of "getting" the man they had been instructed to kill.

This same letter also contained information about "one of Canada's biggest military men" coming to this city.

This reference, say the police, is one to General Hughes' visit. Another letter, turned over to the military authorities at Ottawa and the contents of which the police will not divulge, is said to have contained information that definitely assigned the Turks to the assassination of General Hughes.

Tip Came From Detroit

Details of the plot which was to have culminated here first leaked out in Detroit. Secret Service agents there are said to have sent out the first alarm. Chief of Police Williams admits this and to the London Advertiser to-day said:

"It was information from the Government authorities in Detroit and Ottawa that led to the arrest of the men.

"As soon as we had our instructions the detectives were assigned to the case and made the capture."

Since the arrest of the trio, in whose possession a military Ross rifle and a quantity of ammunition was found, the detectives have been searching for a number of other letters and papers said to have been in the possession of the Turks before they were arrested.

She Claims He Deserted Her in Kingston

Also Claims He is a Native of Belleville

KINGSTON Nov. 24.—Claiming that her husband had deserted her, a young woman giving the name of Mrs. Charles MacDonald, and her home as Syracuse, N.Y., called at the office of Felix S. S. Johnston, United States consul, on Monday morning and told her story.

The woman stated that she was married to McDonald in Syracuse three months ago. They came to Kingston a week ago last Friday, and have been stopping at the Prince George hotel. On Saturday her husband disappeared without telling her where he was going and she had come to the conclusion that he had deserted her. She says that McDonald is a native of Belleville, and that he told her that his father was the proprietor of a big hotel there. She further stated that since coming to Kingston her husband had made a trip to Belleville.

The woman was left without funds, and on this account had to apply to the United States Consul for assistance. Mrs. McDonald was assisted by the United Consul and left this afternoon on the boat for Cape Vincent and will go from there to Syracuse to look for her husband. Mrs. McDonald also told her trouble to Mayor Shaw at the City Hall. She says that she can give no reason whatever for her husband's sudden flight, other than that he wanted to desert her.

From the description given of McDonald, officers on the Cape boat identified him as a man who crossed over the border on Saturday.

Mr. J. Hirschberg, Toronto, made several calls in this locality on Thursday. He was accompanied by Mr. Richard Blakely, Consecon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weeks attended the funeral of the late Mr. Jacob Sayer of Victoria on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wood, Ameliasburg, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Morton.

Rev. A. H. Hoare, B.A., occupied the pulpit here on Sunday evening, our pastor, Rev. E. Harston, taking Mr. Hoare's work on the Aemliasburg circuit. Seventeen years ago, Rev. Mr. Hoare spent one year among us, as assistant to Rev. R. Bamforth, B.A., then superintendent of Hallowell circuit; therefore the people of this locality who were then members of the congregation, were much pleased to welcome him. His sermon was an earnest appeal to the young people of the congregation to give the best of their life's service to the Master.

For the sake of greater convenience in his pastoral work, Rev. E. H. Harston will change his place of residence from the parsonage at Mount Pleasant to Melville, where Mrs. R. Eaton's residence has been secured. The people of Melville extend a hearty welcome to Mr. Harston and hope the change of residence will aid materially in the more efficient work of Hallowell circuit.

Miss Lida Weeks visited friends at Chisholm last week.

Among those who disposed of cattle last week were Messrs. F. Weeks, Allan Spencer, G. Osborne and W. H. Morton.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. French spent the week-end with friends in Belleville.

The debate in the school on Friday afternoon, "Resolved that more pleasure can be obtained from the possession of a horse than of an automobile," with Master Clifford Carley as leader of the affirmative and Miss Edna Chase as leader of the negative, resulted in a tie. These debates are not only interesting but most beneficial to the pupils in producing deeper thought, quicker wit and an enlarged vocabulary.

Mrs. A. Davern and Mr. William are spending a few days in Picton.

Mrs. Frank Zufelt spent Saturday in Trenton.

A large number of Melville residents spent Saturday in the Bay City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chase spent Sunday in Consecon with Mr. and Mrs. H. Baxter. Mrs. Baxter is very ill, and will be removed this week to Belleville hospital.

Lieutenant J. C. Palmer, writing to his parents from Salisbury Plain, England, says he is enjoying his sojourn in the old land and expects six days leave of absence, when he will accompany a comrade on a visit to the Emerald Isle.

Miss L. Knapp spent the week-end at her home in Frankford.

Miss Ethel French is spending this week with friends in Belleville.

How To Stop Stomach Torment

Sound Advice From A Well-Known Physician

Men and women who suffer from what they call Dyspepsia, Indigestion or just plain "stomach-trouble" usually seek regular relief in the form of some pepsin pill or tablet, or other artificial digestant. This, experience teaches me, is a serious error. In nine cases out of ten the distress is caused by the development of acids in the stomach—formed by the fermenting of the food. Instead of a digestant being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity, when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermenting food from the stomach to the intestines, where the poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of Bisurated in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort. Sour, acid, glassy stomach, heartburn, belching, bloating, etc., would then be a thing of the past. "Bisurated Magnesia" is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it will stop the sharpest biting stomach distress in five minutes from the time it enters the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.

THE DELEGATES FROM KINGSTON Y.M.C.A.

There will be a splendid delegation from Kingston for the boys' work conference at Belleville, commencing Friday evening and ending Sunday evening. SUBMERGED NAVAL WEAPONS

There seems to be much misapprehension as to Germany being the only power equipped with submersible weapons of warfare. This is a mistake, though Germany has accomplished much in the way of destruction of vessels, for the reason that with her "all is fair" in war time, and therefore has planted these destructive machines without any regard for hitherto recognized modes of warfare, regardless of whether the vessels destroyed by coming in contact with these submerged machines were vessels of neutral nations or those of the powers at war.

The truth is, as pointed out by a contemporary, "Great Britain and her allies are strong in submarine craft, which has been almost forgotten by the more timorous. As a matter of fact, the nations that are giving battle to the German, Austrian and Turkish empires are vastly the stronger in submarines. They have a total of 225 built or building to the enemy's 67. The figures for the allied fleets are:

	Built	Bldg.
Great Britain	64	22
France	67	9
Russia	29	19
Japan	13	2
	173	52

as against, for the enemy combination:

	Built	Bldg.
Germany	23	38

"The foregoing figures were compiled from Lloyd's A B C of the War, an English publication, and they agree with other reliable statistics. They are convincing and are a guarantee that Germany's time of naval punishment will inevitably come if the war lasts long enough and if the foe only dares to essay its marine strength against the watchful fleet that has so far successfully held it in complete check. The German submarines may succeed in isolated attacks on the enemy's warships, and in destroying neutral trading ships, but under present conditions it is believed they can do no general harm as they are vastly outnumbered.

VICTORIA ELECTION VOIDED

The election of Philip Macleod for Victoria, Cape Breton, has been declared void on the ground of corrupt practices by agents. The Judge acquitted the respondent of personal responsibility of the acts of his agents and adjudged costs against the petitioner.

The trial occupied two weeks and disclosed rampant corruption and bribery, with extensive use of rum and money. His Lordship declared the election void, and found that: "Corrupt practices extensively prevailed," that "abundant evidence was offered of acts of bribery and corruption and subornation of personation on the part of agents of the respondent," naming no less than twenty-four persons who had been proven at the trial to have been guilty of corrupt practices.

All these corrupters are subject to punishment, if proceeded against. In the past those who have been proved, at election trials, of being guilty of violations of the election laws have been allowed to go scot-free on the ground that "all do it." This is a great mistake. Corruption and bribery at elections will never cease until the severist penalties of the law are enforced against the offenders. This should not be confined to the parties who buy a voter only, but to the voter who sells his vote, he being as great a criminal as the man who buys him, if not a greater.

While there are voters to sell themselves, and there always will be, so long as the franchise is given to men who have no stake in the country, other than their own existence, and what they get for their votes, bribery and corruption will continue to be practised. Send corrupter and corrupted [illegible] a few months at stone breaking [illegible] it is possible that honest elections [illegible] be the result.

TURKS ASSASSINS

The arrest of three Turks in London, Ontario, is evidence that there exists not only in the border cities of the United States, but also in Canada, murderous villains who are ready to commit any and every crime, if it be thought in the interest of the countries now at war with Britain, France and Russia.

If it is established that the three Turks now under arrest in London, are guilty, there should be no sentimental dallying in dealing with their case. A court-martial and a file of riflemen should at once put an end to their days, as a warning to other miscreants of a like character.

ABOUT CONSUMPTION

Picture to yourself a young man who instead of feeling the throb of pulsing life in his veins is doomed to watch the passing hour with feelings of despair and gloom. His hours are numbered. He is another victim of the dread "white plague." Hope is dead. Nothing is worth while. Each hour weakens his hold on life.

Such was the condition of Mr. M. J. Hamilton, of 4 Tiverton Avenue, Toronto, before he heard of Copeland's medicine. He procured one bottle, then another and another until he had so far recovered as to be able to write as follows:

Mr. W. R. Copeland,
511 Pape Avenue, Toronto.
Dear Sir,—Your wonderful medicine is giving me back my health and strength. I thought it was all up with me, but now I am feeling fine. Am working hard every day and can eat anything, which was an impossibility a few months back. I will be pleased to tell anyone, troubled with lung troubles, what it has done for me.
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) M. J. HAMILTON,
4 Tiverton Ave., Toronto.

To-day, life holds prospect to Mr. Hamilton. Like others in vigorous life, each hour has its fulfilment of conscious work, pleasure or rest. The difference was caused by a medicine—the medicine that he needed—the medicine that fought his disease and strengthened his vital powers.

He is still living in Toronto and for the good the medicine did him he welcomes the opportunity to tell others what "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" did for him.

Maybe you, or your child, relative or friend are not so far gone as Mr. Hamilton was. Still, there is weakness, distress or pain. Try this medicine as he did. It can do you no harm; it is more than likely that it will be found to do you a world of good. Try it.

Several letters have been received from people who have taken this medicine for bronchitis. Two of these cases resisted for over 30 years every effort of medical men and medicine to benefit them. "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" achieved complete victory.

If you suffer from this distressing ailment, send us your address and copies of these letters will be forwarded to you.

This medicine is procurable at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle, or it can be had, at the same price, in a plain wrapper, direct from the Copeland Medicine Company, Limited, 511 Pape Avenue, Toronto. 5-14

Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really Illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait but bring in your certificates and get your Bibles. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

Enemies Fraternize

Frenchmen and Bavarians Drink From One Spring

PARIS, Nov. 24.—An aviator officer tells the Temps how French and Bavarian troops fraternize at the only available spring near the trenches on the Alsation frontier. He says:

"At the beginning each side fetched water separately, with the tacit understanding that both should be unmolested. Then gradually parties going at nightfall talked with the enemy, and even exchanged cigarettes and newspapers. Throughout the rest of the day, both maintained the most active hostilities, the German fire destroying the French works, while the French cannon was equally effective.

"Finally, during an evening truce, two German officers met us, suggesting the absurdity of both sides destroying each other's work, and offered to leave us alone in return for similar immunity. We agreed.

"Before leaving one of the Germans said they expected shortly their removal elsewhere. They did not know what troops would replace them, but if they were Prussians, they would warn us by attaching white paper to the barbed wire entanglements, as the Prussians hated the French bitterly."

CANADA'S WAR POSITION

108,000 Soon to be Under Arms—50,000 to be Drilled—Enlisting Forthwith

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Premier Borden has announced an increase of twenty thousand in the total strength of the force which is to be kept in constant training in Canada during the progress of the war. Instead of thirty thousand men in training there will be fifty thousand, exclusive of the eight thousand now on active service on garrison and outpost duty. The announcement in brief is that Canada's preparations will not fall short of the liimt of her capacity, having regard to the questions of Winter accommodation, equipment and the provision which can be made for additional training in the British Isles. Canada will thus have no less than 91,000 troops on active service in Canada, in England, and in Bermuda (the Royal Canadian Regiment) when the second expeditionary force is sent to England and a further enlistment of 17,000 takes place, the total will be brought up to 108,000, increasing thereafter by ten thousand at a time as succeeding contingents of reinforcements are despatched.

Sir Robert Borden's statement follows:—

On the 19th October an official statement was given out by the Prime Minister respecting the defence of Canada against any probable raid or attack, and with regard to the organizing, training, equipment and despatch of further expeditionary forces. It was then pointed out that two considerations must be taken into account. First, the provision of rifles, guns, ammunition, and other equipment; and, second, the ability of the British Government to receive further expeditionary forces and give them the necessary final training, having regard to the enormous number of troops now being organized and trained in the British Isles. The proposal embodied in the statement of October 19th provided for maintaining under arms about 8,000 of the Canadian militia, employed in garrison and outpost duty.

It further provided for the immediate enlistment of 30,000 men to be trained and sent forward in detachments of not less than 10,000 men for service at the front. It also provided that whenever any force was thus despatched to the British Isles further enlistment should take place so that 30,000 men would be continuously under training in Canada in addition to the 8,000 men doing garrison and outpost duty.

ENLISTING SUCCESSFUL.

The work of enlistment was immediately undertaken under the direction of the officers commanding divisions and military districts, and has been successfully carried out. The response has been highly satisfactory and in many parts of the country men have offered themselves in greater numbers than required at the moment.

Meantime communications from the War Office set forth the following desired organization of the second expeditionary force to be formed out of the men thus under training:

Officers and men, about 17,000; horses, 4,765; field and heavy guns, 58; machine guns, 16. This force includes infantry, artillery, engineers, signal and cyclist companies, army service corps and field ambulances, with ammunition park, supply column, reserve park and other line of communication units. It is being organized as speedily as possible, and two brigades of infantry, if so required by the War Office, will be ready to go forward at an early date.

The Prime Minister, since his return, has had many conferences with the Minister of Militia and the chief of the general staff respecting an increase in the force under training. The number of men that can be trained usefully in Canada is limited by the following considerations:

(1) Provision of necessary accommodation for them during the Winter;

(2) Provision of arms and equipment. Training for a lengthy period without arms or equipment is not considered effective;

(3) The necessity of organisation by different arms and branches, infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, supply, transport and medical services. A large surplus of some particular arm may be available, but is practically ineffective by itself;

(4) The ability of the British Government to receive and finally train expeditionary forces from Canada in view of their enormous task in training an immense army in the British Isles.

After taking into account all considerations it has been determined that the number of men under training can be increased in the immediate future to 50,000 in addition to the 8,000 men engaged in garrison and other duty. Instructions will be given immediately that the additional number thus proposed shall be enlisted forthwith.

STRENGTH OF TOTAL FORCE

The Canadian forces thus organized for active service will be as follows:

Forces already despatched (including regiment garrisoning Bermuda) nearly 33,000; forces engaged in garrison and outpost duty in Canada, about 8,000; forces under training in Canada 50,000; total, 91,000.

As soon as the second contingent goes forward a further enlistment of 17,000 men to take its place will be made, bringing the total up to 108,000.

Thereafter the forwarding of further expeditionary forces will be followed by the enlistment of men to take their places as arranged in the proposals made public on the 19th October.

In the Western Provinces large numbers of men anxious to serve as mounted troops are available. They are excellent riders and good shots and the Government has made special efforts to arrange that their services can be utilized. Recent cable communications with the British Government lead to the hope that opportunity to make the services of these men effective in some theatre of active operations may be found in the early future.

In Great Britain as well as in Canada and all the dominions the great difficulty in organizing the immense forces needed for the present war has been the provision of arms and equipment on so tremendous a scale. These are being provided rapidly and the Government of Canada is co-operating effectively with the Government of Great Britain under well considered arrangements so that the resources of the British Islands and of Canada and all other available resources shall be utilized in the most efficient manner for the common purpose.

STILL MUDDIED OAFS

One Recruit from 30,000 Football Spectators

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The futility of trying to carry on recruiting on a football ground was demonstrated on Saturday, when Col. Burn, M.P., and aide-de-camp to King George, addressed a crowd of spectators before the match stared. The kick-off interrupted his words, and although Col. Burn tried again at half-time and at the end of the game, the crowd of thirty thousand yielded only one recruit. Similar efforts at other football fields proved equal failures.

FATAL ACCIDENT

Robert McMahon Struck With Train and Died Instantly

PORT HOPE, Nov. 24.—Robert McMahon was instantly killed last night about 11.30 o'clock, by being struck with a train on the Midland division. Mr. McMahon had gone through a lane near Dr. McKinley's residence, reaching the railway just as two cars were being shunted at the siding. Not hearing them approach, he walked directly in front of them. He was struck on the back of the head and evidently knocked to the side of the track. His skull was fractured, his right arm cut off, his left hand crushed and his chest badly injured.

The train crew heard his groans and immediately ran to his assistance. Doctors were at once summoned but he passed away in a few seconds.

Boy is Made A Sergeant

Edouard Martel, 15, Has Fought Since the War Began

PARIS, Nov. 24.—At the Duchess of Sutherland's hospital at Malo les Bains, says the Journal, is Edouard Martel, only 15, but a full-fledged sergeant of engineers. Born at Malzeville, near Nancy, he joined a company of engineers who were passing through the village, became useful, and stayed with them.

During the retreat from the Meuse to the Marne he fought in the ranks and shot two Germans.

On the Marne he showed gallantry in protecting by rifle fire the soldiers who were entrenching. He also, under heavy fire, took supplies to the advanced trenches. Capt. Bedos made him a sergeant, which was confirmed by Col. Durieu, who embraced him before the regiment.

On October 20 he was taken with appendicitis in Flanders and was removed to the hospital, where he was operaetd on successfully. He will return to the front soon, but in the meantime is in charge of a Senegalese non-com whose two arms have been amputated.

The Matin suggests editorially that no further space be devoted to stories of youthful heroes, which are rapidly filling the majority of small boys with a desire to leave home to become soldiers. The Matin suggests that they would much better be empolyed as boy scouts, doing useful work, rather than risking their lives where trained men are needed.

WILL FIGHT IN JANUARY TO CUT OFF 33 LICENSES

Temperance Forces Prepare For Local Option Battle--Repeal Moves, Too

Local option contests will be fought next January in three towns, seven villages and nine townships.

Towns: Bala, Picton, Ridgetown—10 licenses.

Villages: Bradford, Caledonia, Hagersville, Holland Landing, Jarvis, Newbury, West Lorne—12 licenses.

Townships: Chapple, Cornwall, Dilke, Emo, Harwich, Horton, Palmerston, Pelee Island, Rolph—11 licenses.

In addition to these, license reduction campaigns are being carried on in Hamilton and London.

The liquor traffic organizations have succeeded in insuring repeal contests in the following local option municipalities:

Towns: Durham, Midland, Thornbury.

Villages: Teeswater, Shallow Lake.

Townships: Raleigh and Moore; the latter place, however, may be struck out, as it is said that a faked petition was presented.

A Dominion Alliance Field Day was carried on in Bruce County on Sunday in a driving snowstorm. The attendance was surprisingly large.

HORRORS OF SHRAPNEL FIRE

New York Surgeon Says Wounds Are Like those of Dumdums.

Discussing his observations of the care of the wounded in Paris hospitals Dr. H. MacDonald Peggs, the New York surgeon who recently returned from Europe, said yesterday:

"To the French has fallen the difficult task of caring temporarily for nearly all the wounded; and though at the outset this was an almost impossible task, at this moment they have good command of the situation. Lack of dressings, instruments, nurses and doctors, and adequate facilities for removing or quartering wounded, has been among the many difficulties that have been partly overcome, and today one finds the well-conducted hospitals throughout the city and suburbs, but filled to overflowing.

"From the surgical standpoint many things have presented themselves as noteworthy. First of all is the large percentage of recoveries from penetrating wounds of the abdomen and lungs without surgical aid of any description—hitherto a very doubtful possibility in the minds of most medical men. Nevertheless it is true that many who have suffered these injuries are now well on in a convalescent stage.

"These cases, however, it must be understood, are bullet wounds, and can be accounted for in the following manner: The modern bullet is pointed, travels at a very high velocity, and must be practically sterile at the time it reaches the body of the victim. If it has encountered no obstruction and enters the bodys head on, the wound is of very small calibre; and if no large blood vessel is severed, it is only a short time before contraction takes place, the raw surfaces of the divided tissues coming in contact with each other and union resulting. It is also possible that the opening may fail to close for a time, and nature thus provide drainage. It must also beunderstood that in the case of such bullet wounds the soldier himself, being provided with an emergency surgical outfit, can in many instances, apply immediately a sterile dressing, thus avoiding infection.

"It is unfortunate for the men engaged that this is not more a war of bullets and less of shrapnel and shell, for it is a fact that the bullet wounds are much in the minority. It is demonstrated in the hospitals that the Germans are largely depending upon their big guns, and it is from this fact that the idea is so prevalent that they are using dumdum bullets. The shrapnel makes large, lacerated, and horrible wounds, while the results of the bursting shells are worse. It is to be understood that in the event of wounds from either shell or shrapnel the soldier is more than likely to be so severely wound that he cannot assist himself, and it is more than likely, too, that pieces of the shrapnel will be imbedded in the wound, while in the event of wounds from bursting shells the fragments are usually dirty and infection, gangrene, or tetanus follows by the time the wounded are transferred to the hospitals In such conditions there is very little in the surgical line to be done, with the exception of opening the wound for drainage, irrigation, and dressings. Tetanus has been showing a mortality of 100 per cent., but with the recently discovered serums and vaccines this has been reduced.

"With the large percentage of wounded reaching the hospitals in the condition described, it is easily seen how little can be done surgically and how remarkable are the results already obtained."

GIRLS ARE PREFERRED

"The French are receiving in their homes refugees from Belgium and northern France. The Germans are doing the same as regards the refugees from Oriental Prussia."

The speaker, says the Philadelphia Bulletin, was a returned tourist. He went on:

"Many French and German households have neither room enough nor means enough to take in a whole family. They must confine themselves to one child. Well, they invariably bid then for a little girl. They never want a boy.

"I have seen in my travels several hundreds of these offers to take in children—and every blessed offer was for girls. What is the cause of this? The cause must evidently be that girls are better behaved, more amiable, and nicer all round than boys.

"The war, besides teaching me geography, has taught me that female children stand miles higher in popular esteem than male children."

Hearing Is Restored To Deaf

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices. Deaf hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread interest throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St. Montreal, P.Q., who make a speciality of it.

BRADY FORTUNE IS HUGE

Placed at Over $72,000,000 in Official Inventory.

Anthony N. Brady belonged to that rare class of American business men whose wealth actually exceeds the figures named in popular imagination. The inventory of his estate just filed in New York shows a net value of $72,215,863. The actual size of the Brady fortune was even greater. It was not less than $100,000,000, and was probably nearer $120,000,000. Mr. Brady, during the last years of his life, wisely shifted much of his business responsibility and probably some of his wordly goods to his sons who have succeeded their father in most of the corporations in which he was vitalling interested.

The largest stockholding are in tobacco companies, United States Rubber Co. and gas companies, including 32,344 American Tobacco comman, 288,235 British-American Tobacco Limited, 9,000 Consolidated Gas, 36,185 Kings County Electric Light & Power 75754 United States Rubber, and 45,020 first preferred, and 22,029 Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

Mr. Brady's estate holds $605,160 pfd stock and $516,727 common stock of Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, a company in which there is a fair-sized Canadian interest.

GIVE THANKS FOR WAR OR FOR PEACE?

Many Confused and Perplexed Worshippers.

How "In Everything Give Thanks"—Knowledge Necessary Approaching Throne of Grace—Variant Praises and Thanks to God Throughout the World—The Solution of Our Perplexities—The Bible the Only Guide—The Spirit of a Sound Mind Rare—Hence Majority of Thanksgiving Vain Formality Unnoticed or Resented.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Pastor Russell, at Frankford Theatre, had for his text the words, "In everything give thanks."—1 Thessalonians 5:18.

Reviewing briefly the condition of the world, the speaker declared that it must be a difficult matter for the majority of people to determine correctly the nature of the thanks they would [illegible] God. Three hundred and fifty millions of humanity, our blood relatives, are at war, seeking to destroy each other. Ninety million Americans, deeply interested in them, are invited by our Honorable President and the Governors of our several states to render thanks to the Almighty. Truly, we have many causes for thanksgiving to our Creator; life itself is a blessing, a boon; our nation in many respects is the most favored on the face of the earth, enriched by God's bounty above all others, not the least of our blessings being our civil and religious liberties.

Surely no one of even average heart and head has cause for other than great thanksgiving to our Creator. "Our lines have fallen to us in pleasant places." Those who feel no gratitude are surely soured by discontent, the fruitage of ignorance, selfishness and sin. How appropriate, then, that each and all bow heart and head before the Giver of every good and perfect gift! To whatever extent this course be followed heartily, without hypocrisy, undoubtedly a blessing will result, individually and nationally. The custom is a beautiful one.

There is a difference between thanksgiving and prayer. None have the right or the privilege of approaching the Throne of Heavenly Grace except those who have come into covenant relationship with God. The Jews came into covenant relationship with God through their Law Covenant by Divine arrangement through Moses. The followers of Jesus, who accept the Divine arrangement of the Gospel Age, are privileged thus to come, into relationship with the Creator through Him. He is our Advocate, who has opened up for us a new and living way, through the sacrifice of His flesh. All whom the Father has accepted through Him—all whom the Father has begotten by His Holy Spirit—are Scripturally termed sons of God, children of God, heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ their Lord.—1 John 3:1; Romans 8:17.

These are invited to come to their Father and to address Him thus: "Our Father who art in Heaven," and to ask for the blessings which God has provided for His children, according to His Divine purposes and arrangements. But none others are permitted to come to this Throne of Grace, because not in covenant relationship with the Saviour, because in God's arrangement "There is none other name given in Heaven or amongst men, whereby we may be saved" from our sins, or be brought into relationship with God.

Thus we see that only a limited number may enjoy the privileges of prayer or expect answers to their prayers. But, thank God, others may worship and bow down! "Come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker." Many have this privilege, and the exercise of it is sure to bring a blessing. Whoever has a thankful heart, which takes delight in offering worship to the Giver of every good gift, will surely receive a reflex blessing. His love of righteousness and truth, holiness and goodness, mercy and justice, will thereby be strengthened; and so also will be the probability of his some day reaching the point where he will see the wisdom and the desirability of giving his heart—his little all—to the Lord in consecration—to be a faithful footstep follower of the Redeemer.

Very evidently the majority of mankind have an insufficiency of knowledge of God, of the Bible, and of the Divine Plan therein set forth, to thank God for the present state of war. But to the Church, whose eyes of understanding have been opened and who are able to see the lengths and the breadths, the heights and the depths, of God's Love in the Message of the Bible, St. Paul writes: "In everything give thanks!"

Ripe Christians have learned to give thanks to God for the adversities of life in their own experiences, convinced that under God's supervision the direst of calamities may be overruled for good to His people and for glory to His name. But only the advanced, the developed, Christian is able to give thanks under circumstances of severe trials and testings. Only those who have great faith, built upon clear knowledge of the Divine promises, can realize thoroughly that all things are working together for their good.

Similarly, in respect to the great European war now in progress, its casualties, desolations and wounds, only the well-instructed of God's people may understand the Divine plans and arrangements so thoroughly as to be able to give thanks in respect to the War—and able to exercise confident faith that the outcome of it will mean blessings of instruction and preparation for future blessings.

If the Scriptures did not foretell this time of world-wide "distress of nations," we might not know that God had foreseen it and had made provision for its results before permitting it. But the same Bible that foretells the war tells of its results, saying, "When the judgments of the Lord are abroad in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." (Isaiah 26:9.) If, then, the war is teaching the world lessons along the lines of righteousness and justice, it will be doing permanent good. Moreover, the same Bible tells that the war is merely the outgrowth of human selfishness, ignorance, superstition and false doctrine, and assures us that although it will lead on to revolution, anarchy and the utter wreck of the present order of things—the present civilization—nevertheless, God is prepared for the emergency. "Man's extremity will be God's opportunity."

The hour having come for Messiah to take the reins of government, He will stand forth in Power and Majesty at the proper moment, and exclaim to the raging elements of the restless human sea, "Peace! Be still!" And there will be a great calm. The lesson learned in the Trouble will be a lasting one; and the blessed opportunities of Messiah's Kingdom, which will be built upon the ashes of present institutions, will bring everlasting life and everlasting joy to all the willing and obedient.

Those who see the war from this viewpoint may indeed in everything give thanks; rejoicing that the reign of Sin and Death will soon be ended! rejoicing that God's Kingdom will soon come, and His will be done on earth, even as in Heaven! rejoicing that soon the knowledge of the true character of God will be universal! rejoicing that then, in the light of that knowledge, "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God"! rejoicing still further, that any who under all those favorable conditions will refuse to make a full surrender to the Lord, will be mercifully cut off from life in the Second Death!

The explanation of the sorrows of the world is given in the Bible, which tells us that sin lies at the door, and that the mental, moral and physical blemishes which cause humanity such distress are incidental to the penalty pronounced against sin; namely, death. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." When Father Adam was on trial representatively for his race, he sinned and came under the penalty for sin—"Dying, thou shalt die." Therefore all his children share by heredity his imperfections and are likewise imperfect—sinners, as St. Paul explains. (Romans 5:12.) Thus, during sixty centuries, approximately twenty thousand millions of Adam's children have been "born in sin and shapen in iniquity," and have entered the world condemned and dying, mentally, morally and physically.

Divine sympathy exercised toward this race of sinners provided a Saviour, "who for the joy set before Him" sacrificed His life for the world. (John 3:16; Hebrews 12:2.) "Jesus Christ by the grace of God tasted death for every man." (Hebrews 2:9.) Then, instead of setting up the promised Kingdom to bless the world, instead of saving the world, the Saviour did something else; and that which He has been doing from the time of His resurrection until now is, as the Apostle explains, a Mystery. (Ephesians 3:3-8; Colossians 1:26, 27.) "The Mystery of God" the world does not understand; for He prefers to keep the matter from them. But "the secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will show them His Covenant."

This Mystery is that God has purposed that the blessing of the world should be accomplished by our Saviour in association with a select class gathered out of the world and especially prepared in the School of Christ during the Gospel Age. During the centuries required for the finding of this saintly class for whom the Lord has been searching with the magnet of Truth, various false theories have sprung up and found acceptance in the world. One of these is that God does not love the world and has never purposed its salvation; but that, on the contrary, He has predestinated all except the saints to suffer eternal torture, because He wished to have it so.

Another of these false theories is that whilst God wished to save the world, He is unable to do so, because handicapped by human self-will and by Satan's aggressiveness. This theory declares that God loves the world, including the heathen millions; that He longs to have the Gospel taken to them, but cannot do so except through human agency; and that He is baffled and disappointed because those who profess to be His people fail to raise sufficient funds.

To rational minds these theories are no longer satisfactory; hence many are turned to infidelity. But leaving these errors of the Dark Ages and going back to the Scriptures, we find their teachings consistent; namely, that as soon as the Mystery of God, the Church, is finished, the Divine blessings will proceed through The Christ—Jesus the Head, and the Church the Body—to the world. As it is written, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The Mystery of God is that the spiritual Seed of Abraham is not the Lord Jesus only, but also His members—the Church.—Galatians 3:8, 16, 29.

During Messiah's Reign of Righteousness, all nations will be instructed, enlightened, blessed. The merit of Christ will then be applied on behalf of the billions who have gone down into the prison-house of death—Sheol, Hades, the grave. The Church will constitute the First Resurrection. All sharing in it will attain life on the spirit plane. Later, during the Millennium, the world will return from the tomb, "every man in his own order." The process of resurrection will continue with them, in order that the willing and obedient may rise gradually towards perfection on the human plane and finally attain it. Meantime the earth will be rejuvenated and become the promised Paradise restored.

Looking down into the future, the Psalmist exclaims, in view of the Kingdom blessings promised the world. "O, give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good! for His mercy endureth forever!" It is the mercy of God toward us—toward all who need His mercy and who desire it—that constitute the ground for thanksgiving. It is true that praise must come from thankful hearts; and that, to be properly thankful, one must see more than is now visible to those who have not the eye of faith and the Divine revelation of things to come. But these very opportunities the Lord's consecrated ones possess. As it is written, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear."

Not only so, but to the extent that any sees and hears of the grace of God he has responsibility. To possess the knowledge of God and to disdain it is to receive the grace of God in vain.

God's people not only give thanks for future blessings received now by faith, but additionally they appreciate blessings granted them in the present life, and give thanks for these. The first of these is the knowledge of the goodness of God in releasing us by faith from sin and its penalty, so that without waiting for actualities we can now rejoice in the mercy which has justified us freely through the blood of Christ. The realization both of the rolling away of our sins and of our forgiveness by the Father calls for gratitude. All other blessings rest upon this one, and all thanksgiving should properly include thanks for

ELDERLY PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE VINOL

Aged Texas Woman Says: "Old People Who Are Weak and Feeble Should Know the Merits of Vinol.

Grand Saline, Texas.—"I am an aged woman, and for a long time was weak and feeble, but I have found Vinol to be the best medicine to create strength for old people and for chronic colds I have ever taken. It has restored my health and strength so that I feel almost young again; in fact, I am now doing all my own housework.

"Old people who are weak and feeble should try Vinol and know its merits as I do. I have proved Vinol a good reliable medicine and much cheaper than paying doctor's bills, and you may publish what I say about Vinol for the benefit of others."—Mrs. FANNIE E. RODGERS, Grand Saline, Texas.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, sharpens the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, building up natural strength and energy.

We have seen such splendid results from its use that we return the money in every case where Vinol fails to build up and strengthen feeble old people, delicate children and the weak, nervous, run-down and debilitated, or stop chronic colds, coughs or bronchitis.

ENVOY TO VATICAN.

Britain Appoints Sir Henry Howard Ambassador to Rome.

ROME, Nov. 25. — The appointment of Sir Henry Howard as envoy from Britain to the Holy See was announced here yesterday. Great pleasure at this appointment was expressed at the Vatican, where it was said that it always had been regretted that Great Britain and the United States were not represented among the diplomatists accredited to the Pope.

A report from Paris some days ago said: In speculations regarding the reasons for Great Britain's present step it is pointed out that, while the enemies of Britain are represented at the Vatican by three envoys, those of Austria-Hungary and the kingdoms of Prussia and Bavaria, the allied countries are represented by only two, those of Belgium and Russia. France has not had an envoy at the Holy See since the separation act was passed in 1905.

Another point which is brought up as a possible explanation of the move is the political unrest in Ireland due to religious differences.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

An official despatch from Pretoria announces the capture of 100 more Boer rebels, including Commandant Jordaan and four other officers.

Another name has been added to the casualty list of the Canadian expeditionary force. Private Ash, of Chilliwack, British Columbia, died of spinal meningitis.

A despatch to The Paris Journal des Debats from Bordeaux yesterday says that the French Government, probably will prolong the moratorium for another period.

The cruiser Goeben was only slightly damaged in her battle with Russian warships in the Black Sea and is being rapidly repaired at the Nicodemia drydock.

Dr. Fred. Frank, one of the pioneer residents of Orangeville, and a native of the neighboring Township of Caledon, died yesterday at his home, following a paralytic stroke on Sunday night.

Lt.-Col. Lowther, A.D.C. to the Duke of Connaught, who is now sufficiently recovered from wounds received at Mons, is gazetted as Brigadier Commander and temporary Brigadier-General.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent says that from a usually well-informed democratic source, he hears a report that William Jennings Bryan will retire from the Cabinet on or about March 4 next.

Mrs. D. J. Schumacher, of Windsor, carried out her suicidal plans yesterday by leaping from the second storey of Hotel Dieu Hospital, where she had been taken after being rescued from Detroit river, in which she had attempted to drown herself.

WAR OVER BY MARCH?

Lloyd's Underwriters More Inclined To Favor Idea.

LONDON, Nov. 25—Brisk business was done at Lloyd's yesterday in "end of the war speculation," that the war would be over by March. There is a certain volume of opinion there that thinks the chance good. Enquiries in the city yesterday showed that last week 75 guineas per cent. was quoted for a policy under which the total loss would be paid over by the end of next March. The rate had fallen yesterday to 60 guineas.

On the other hand there has been an increase during last week or ten days of 5s. to 7s. 6d. and even 10s. in the full war risk rates of insurance of private house property on the east coast. For big works such as the Tyne yards the rate has advanced from 10s. to £1.

What is in the minds of a few underwriters who are speculating on the duration of war is a secret, but the question of German's supplies is being much talked about in the city.

CARDINAL CAVALLARI DEAD.

Patriarch of Venice Was Born at Chiogga, Italy, In 1849.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from Venice says that Cardinal Aristides Cavallari, patriarch of Venice, died yesterday.

Cardinal Cavallari was born at Chiogga in 1849, and was raised to the cardinalate in 1907. He was noted for his simple piety. On various occasions he expressed himself volubly against the immodest dress of women and once is said to have stopped a church service in order to make a woman worshipper cover her open work shirtwaist.

In January of this year he issued an episcopal letter strongly condemning the tango dance, declaring that only "those persons who have lost all moral sense can endure it." He ordered all the ecclesiastics to deny absolution to those who having danced the tango, did not promise to discontinue the practice.

Kitchener Takes Over Hides.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, yesterday issued a decree reserving all the hides of full grown cattle for military purposes. A special company having charge of the leather business of the country is organized. All the tanneries will be operated in connection with this company, receiving their quotas of hides, which they are to tan for the army from it.

Loss of Life Under Twenty.

KAISER WANTS YPRES

Germans Making a Last Desperate Attack in Force.

Attacks Supported by Heaviest Guns Yet Used Have Been Going on For Forty-Eight Hours, But Every Onslaught Has Been Repulsed—British Guns Do Effective Work at Zeebrugge.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Intense anxiety is again apparent in Belgium and Northern France and the Kaiser's legions reinforced and heavily armed with big guns are making another desperate plunge to break through to the coast.

The London Standard prints the following from its correspondent in Northern France:—

"The combined French and British armies have been attacked by the Germans in force from Ypres to La Bassee, and a battle on the scale of the battles on the Marne, of the Yser, and of the first and second battles of Ypres, has commenced.

"In this terrific struggle, into which the Germans enter with large reinforcements and fresh guns, the French and British armies are acting directly in concert. Already the fight has been in progress forty-eight hours. The mightiest guns in the world's military history have been brought into action, carrying death and destruction for fifteen to eighteen miles from their emplacements. Under cover of those infantry attacks are being developed.

"The German objective is the town of Ypres, to capture which they have sacrificed thousands of lives under fire of the British during the last month. Their guns are battering the town once more. Everywhere along the line I hear that the allies have succeeded in checking all the enemy's assaults, which were allowed to exhaust themselves, so that a fresh and significant phase of the battle has opened a phase in which the whole line of the German trenches are threatened by British and French infantry."

Advices from Paris state that the determined efforts of Germany to turn the left wing of the allied armies, or to penetrate it at Ypres to clear a roadway to Dunkirk, have resulted in failure. In a summary of the operations of the last six weeks, The Bulletin Des Armes estimates the Kaiser's forces in Belgium at 15 army corps, or 750,000 men; declares that the German troops were ordered to capture Ypres by Nov. 1, so that the annexation of Belgium might be proclaimed on that date. The Bulletin further tells of orders issued by the Crown Prince of Bavaria and Duke Albrecht of Wurtemburg, exhorting the soldiers to win success for their emperor, who would be at the battle front to "animate" them.

French troops on Monday defeated the Germans in the Argonne district and captured ground of strategical value, hitherto held by the invaders.

The following official communication was issued last night:—

"To-day has been relatively quiet.

"There has been intermittent cannonading on the front, and a few attacks in the Argonne, all of which have been repulsed.

"Speaking generally, it may be said that the situation during Nov. 23 showed no important changes. Along the greater part of the front the enemy manifested its activity particularly by intermittent cannonade, which was, however, less spirited than on the preceding day. Neverthe less, there were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed. As we have come to expect, these attacks were particularly violent in the Argonne, where we gained some territory, and in the region of Four de Paris.

"There is nothing to report between the Argonne and the Vosges, and, furthermore, a heavy fog has interfered with operations. The sanitary conditions of the troops are favorable."

The British Admiralty last night announced that on Monday all points of military significance in Zeebrugge were subjected to a severe bombardment by two British battleships. The German opposition was feeble. The extent of the damage done is unknown. The British ships returned safely.

Advices from Amsterdam say that before sunset the electric works were fiercely burning and also the Palace Hotel and other buildings. The church steeple at Heiht was damaged, and it is reported that the sluices at Zeebrugge were destroyed. The German firing suddenly stopped, and the German submarines left the port. After some manoeuvring the British fleet disappeared in the fog. Part of Zeebrugge was burning, and the population had fled in all directions."

Bulgarians Prepare For War.

LONDON, Nov. 25—During the sitting of the Bulgarian Parliament yesterday, says a despatch to the Central News Agency from Sofia, the leaders of the Agrarian, National and Liberal parties delivered speeches in which they called for the formation of a genuine national ministry.

The deputies also urged the occupation by Bulgaria of Macedonia, which, it was argued, could be carried out in agreement with the triple entente powers. Austrian troops, said the speakers, were approaching the Bulgarian frontier, which it was feared they would cross with a view to co-operating with the Turks.

Several Killed at Warsaw.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A bomb from a German airship fell in front of the American consulate at Warsaw early yesterday, breaking the windows of the consulate, but injuring no one within, according to a telegram dated yesterday from Ambassador Marye at Petrograd.

Several persons in the street in front of the consulate were killed and wounded.

After living on bread and cheese and kisses in a cottage for a few weeks the young married couple begin to economize by cutting out the kisses.

BODY TO BE EXHUMED.

French-Canadian Will Be Buried In Protestant Cemetery.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25. — Justice Robideux handed out a judgment yesterday afternoon which provides for the exhumation of the body of the late Mr. Hormidas Lafond, of St. Scholastique, whose burial in a Catholic cemetery, against his own wish, created a sensation some months ago. The deceased was a French-Canadian Protestant, and was treasurer of the Belle Riviere Presbyterian Church. Although he has arranged that he should be buried in a Protestant cemetery, some relatives insisted that he be buried in the Catholic cemetery.

The judgment now determines that the body be exhumed and reburied in the Belle Riviere Church cemetery.

Hon. S. H. Blake Left $206,819.

TORONTO, Nov. 25. — The late Hon. Samuel Hume Blake, K.C., who died at his residence, 46 Maples avenue, on June 23 last, left a will typical of his simple life. His estate reached a grand total of $206,819. His widow, Elizabeth Blake, is to receive $50,000 worth of bonds in the Canada Bread Co., and the balance of the estate is to be divided, his son, W. H. Blake, K. C., of Toronto, and a daughter, Katherine Rhinelander of New York. To his daughter Mabel, who had asked that she should not have a share in the estate, he gave all and any such books and papers that she might wish to take.

Half Recruits Secured.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—It is reported that 25,000 of the 50,000 men who are to be recruited have already been enrolled, so great is the rush of patriotic young Canadians to serve the Empire. This leaves 25,000 of the 50,000 to be recruited.

The disposition of the new infantry regiments is expected to be as follows: Five or six to Ontario, two or three to Quebec, four to Manitoba and Saskatchewan, three or four to Alberta, two to British Columbia and one or two to the Maritime Provinces.

Convicts Sentenced.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Nov. 25.—Four escaped convicts from the Central Prison, M. J. Mulhall, E. Schiever, J. Edwards and J. Spence, who were arrested some time ago in Gravenhurst for housebreaking and theft, were yesterday sentenced by Judge Mahaffy to three years in Kingston Penitentiary. The prisoners will complete their terms in the Central before being sent to Kingston.

Building For Earthquakes.

In the seismic districts of Italy all new buildings are being erected under strict supervision with respect to their ability to resist earthquake shocks. Prof. Omori, the Japanese authority, has estimated that 99.8 per cent. of the deaths in the great Messina earthquake of 1908 would have been prevented if the buildings had been properly constructed.

CARPET BALL TOURNAMENT

Baptists Vs. Methodists

Four rinks from the Business Men's Bible Class of Bridge street church journeyed up to the Baptist church last night and played a friendly set of games with the Yokefellows' Bible Class. The carpet-bowling was of a high order, and the teams were very evenly matched, the Methodists winning out by four points on the total count. Special mention should be made of the splendid playing of Mr. J. J. B. Flint and his rink, who were largely responsible for the success of the visitors. Mr. A. C. Chapman, the President of the visitors' class, put up a splendid game with his team, defeating the crack Baptist rink by the narrow margin of 2 points after playing two extra ends to break the tie. Mr. F. E. O'Flynn and Rev. Mr. Osborne also distinguished themselves by skilful well-judged shots.

After the tournament refreshments were served, and short speeches were made by Mr. O'Flynn and Messrs. A. R. Walker, C. M. Reid, David Price, P. C. McLaurin, Rev. H. S. Osborne and Rev. C. G. Smith. Two patriotic songs were rendered by Mr. Chapman, the men joining heartily in the chorus. The following is the list of players and scores:

A LONG WAY TO ST. HELENA

The boys and girls around town are beginning to sing the following new verse to the tune of Tipperary:

It's a long way to St. Helena,
It's a long way to go;
It's a long way to St. Helena,
Where the Kaiser's bound to go.
Good-bye Kaiserina, farewell Germany;
It's a long way to St. Helena,
Where the Kaiser soon will be.

SLAVS IN HOT PURSUIT

Von Hindenburg Is Decisively Beaten in Poland.

German Force of Four Hundred Thousand Men Is Badly Cut Up In Battle With Reinforced Russian Army—Another Great Battle Is Developing Farther North at Lodz—Germany Admits Reverse.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A severe German defeat in Poland is reported from Petrograd. Gen. von Hindenburg, after having pushed back the Russians almost on Warsaw, is said to have suffered a serious reverse when the enemy, which had been strongly reinforced, made a brilliant stand between the Warte and the Vistula rivers.

Von Hindenburg's army of 400,000 men is said to have been badly cut up and thousands of prisoners are reported to have been taken by the Russians who are now in pursuit.

German reinforcements, however, are arriving, and another great battle is likely to develop on a line nearer the frontier, westnorthwest of Lodz.

Official German statements admit the defeat, but say there has been no final result in the fighting west of Warsaw. Additional information given to the press in Berlin, says the Austrians have abandoned several passes in the Carpathians to superior hostile forces.

The latest reports of Germans reverses come from Russian Poland along the River Bzura. Desperation, wherein strategy was thrown to the wind, appears to have characterized the German campaign in this district, the army commanders acting under the Kaiser's orders that for its moral effect on the campaign, in Belgium, a victory must be achieved at any cost. In spite of their frightful sacrifices of men at the Bzura, the Germans were unable to break through the Russian line and they are now in full retreat from their advance positions between Strykow, Zogierz and Wola Wizinki retiring toward the River Warte.

GENERAL VON HINDENBURG.

The Russian army of Grand Duke Nicholas, now undoubtedly holds the advantage in Poland. For the moment the German forces of Gen. von Hindenburg which struck boldly at Warsaw, for a second time are put on the defensive.

In some places the Germans are said to have fallen back 25 miles.

Last week Berlin declared the greatest hope of the eastern campaign was placed on the outcome of the battle about Lodz. The German forces there, however, failed to push forward on a line with those which had advanced to the Russian defences between Lowicz and Skierniewice. This necessitated the lengthening of the entire line extending to the southwest to protect the German flank and line communication.

The Russians have gained a decisive victory on the front from Plock to Ilezyca, and the Germans, after heavy losses, are fleeing to the Prussian frontier, says a special from Petrograd to The Matin.

An official report issued in Petrograd last night says there have been continued Russian successes on the Czenstochowa-Cracow front, where on Nov. 22 the Russians took 6,000 prisoners.

The following official statement was given out from Berlin by wireless last night:—

"While an eventual victory for the Teutonic allies in the eastern theatre of the war is expected as confidently as ever, official reports from the German and Austrian military headquarters make it appear that a decision will not be reached as soon as had been expected. The final result has been delayed by the advance of new Russian forces from Warsaw.

"The Austrians announce that they have abandoned to superior hostile forces several passes in the Carpathians. The Russian troops which are investing Przemysl have been driven back by a sortie, and are not within range of the cannon of the forts."

Manufacturers and Farmers Wait on Government.

Demand Is Made For Better Highways, Removal of Injustices to the Farmer From the Tariff, Lower Freight Rates and Government Bank Which Would Lend Postal Savings.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—The demand of the western grain growers for redress of grievances was presented to the Prime Minister and a number of his colleagues yesterday afternoon by E. G. Henderson, of Windsor, Ont., president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He explained that a committee of the C. M. A. had recently conferred with representatives of the western farmers at Winnipeg and while there were some points in dispute between them, they agreed upon a printed memorial to the Government. The memorial set forth the need of legislation dealing with the financial situation, the tariff and the transportation problem.

As to transportation he confined his remarks exclusively to the necessity for better highways, alleging that it cost the English farmer but 7 cents per ten miles to transport his products to the railway station while it cost the Canadian farmer twenty-five cents.

The tariff was touched upon with the suggestion that, if in any respect it was unjust to the farmer, such injustice should be rectified. As to the financial question, the speaker said that the farmer should not be charged a higher rate of interest than any other producer.

Roderick MacKenzie, secretary of the Manitoba Grain Growers Association, insisted that the Government should also enquire into the transportation charges by rail and water including ocean freight rates. He favored a Government bank which would loan the postal savings and other Government funds to the farmer at six per cent. and quoted from the legislation of West Australia. It was unfair, he said, for the Government to receive deposits from the farmers at the postoffice and at the Government savings banks and then hand them over to the chartered banks to be loaned for commercial purposes.

Sir Robert Borden said the two associations had set a good example to all Canadians. He was glad to say that his Government was devoting a great deal of time and money to demonstration and educational work among the farmers, and still further expenditures would be authorized in the near future. It was not the fault of the present Government that nothing had been done to improve the highways of the country. They had been thwarted in their earnest efforts along those lines by the Dominion Senate.

The memorial, he said, asked for the appointment of a commission to enquire into vast and intricate problems and for legislation to be founded upon their report at the coming session. It was a large order and he could not at the moment give any definite answer.

As to the financial question, the Prime Minister said that he regretted the absence of the Finance Minister. It struck him, however, that the subject of agricultural credits was one to be dealt with by the various provinces instead of by the Dominion Government.

Roderick MacKenzie: If the provinces establish banks to extend agricultural credits, will your Government deposit with those banks the postal savings and other Government funds?

Sir Robert Borden: I cannot answer that question offhand.

MASSASSAGA

The November meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. D. A. Anderson on Wednesday afternoon and was conducted by the president, Mrs. Frank Lent. During the afternoon a selection was sung by Mrs. Wilbert Osborne and Miss Clara Gunyou, and was much appreciated.

Mrs. Pye of Rose Hall and Miss Beatrice Jones of New York have been spending several days at the home of Mr. J. Anderson.

Rev. Mr. Harston of Hallowell, preached a splendid sermon on Sunday morning to a large congregation.

Mrs. Byron Adams and children spent several days of last week visiting the Misses Anna and Hattie Brond.

Elections By Acclamation

Save $1,000 and Donate it to Patriotic Fund

A proposal is being subscribed to by many of the county of Simcoe councillors to have all municipal elections throughout the county of Simcoe by acclamation and to devote the money saved by not holding a poll to the Patriotic Fund. It is estimated that over $3,000 will thus be saved for patriotic purposes, and most of the different municipal representatives are gladly falling in line, and have declared their intention of dropping out of the field if they have opposition.

This idea has also met with some local favor.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS

A rare opportunity for obtaining household treasures and of making a sterling investment, that like diamonds grows constantly in value without risk. Old Mahogany sofas, card tables, parlor tables, and mantles, massive hall pieces for the mansion, cosy tetes and chairs for the parlor or den, steel engravings, old clocks, china ware and curios. One genuine Chippendale toilet glass and hand carved cabinet desk.

Possessions, that gives joy to the home and enlists the admiration of friends and is the very best evidence of refinement and good taste.

The list embraces 200 pieces. John L. Palmer, Auctioneer.

Example of Plant Mimicry.

A most curious example of mimicry is supplied by a newly discovered South Africa plant, Mesembryanthemum lapidiforme. In summer the plant consists only of two half-buried leaves, each an inch or a little more long and wide, and these, shaped like a tetrahedron with blunt edges and angles and brownish red in color, are so like the surroundings it is hard to detect the plant.

Two flowers, one at each side, are borne in spring, their stems being so thin that the ripe seed vessels are easily carried away by the wind.

Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

DYNAMITE FOUND IN HOUSE

THOROLD, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—In searching a foreign boarding house here on a warrant issued at the instance of an Austrian who claimed to have been robbed of $58, Chief Taylor found six sticks of dynamite in the premises. The occupants of the house, who are Italians, declared that the explosive had been left in the premises by some Austrians who departed from the place for parts unknown.

American Ship At Port With Cargo Missing

Captain Claimed Coal and Provisions Had Been Confiscated by German Warship

TWO ANGLES TO INCIDENT

Either An Affront to United States by Germany or Breach of Neutrality by Steame r

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The American consul at Valparaiso, Chile, has been asked to report the circumstances surrounding the arrival at that port last week of the American steamer Sacramento, without her full cargo of coal and provisions. The case of the Sacramento is believed to involve elements of great importance. The Sacramento was formerly the Hamburg-American steamer Alexandria, but was transferred to the American flag, under the new ship registry law, was taken over by a newly former American company and renamed the Sacramento. Under this new name the vessel sailed from San Francisco on Oct. 15, having cleared for Valparaiso with a cargo of sixteen thousand tons of coal and considerable provisions. The Sacramento has just arrived at Valparaiso but its entire cargo of coal and provisions was missing. The commander of the vessel, Captain Jacobson, is reported to have explained the missing cargo on arrival at Valparaiso by saying that his steamer had been halted by a German warship, seized and taken to the Chilean island of Juan Fernandez, where, he claimed, the coal and provisions were confiscated by the officers of the warship.

The case of the Sacramento has been a very peculiar one from the beginning and if it is true, as reported, that the steamer failed to deliver its cargo at Valparaiso, the case at once assumes considerable importance. If the Sacramento was transferred in a bona fide manner to a new American company and its transfer of registry is absolutely bona fide, then, if it is also true, as attributed to the steamer's captain, that its cargo of coal and provisions, while sailing under a neutral flag to a neutral port, was seized by a German warship, such action may mean a serious diplomatic incident with the German Government.

On the other hand, if the registry was not bona fide and the coal was not actually seized by the Germans, but was secretly intended to be delivered to German warships cruising off the Chilean coast and so delivered, then it becomes a case of possible collusion against the neutrality of the Government of the United States. There seems to be no doubt that the coal, which was consigned to Valparaiso, mysteriously disappeared from the Sacramento while en route from San Francisco, and its disappearance must be explained to the satisfaction of the American Government. Which ever angle the case takes in the impending investigation, the outcome is considered highly important in government circles at Washington.

TRAIN OF GERMAN DEAD

Thirty Carriages Each Held One Hundred Corpses

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A traveller just arrived from Belgium, where, according to the Daily Mail, "his position gives him exceptional opportunity for observation," tells the following story as illustrative of the awful nature of the German losses in that country:

"At Ghent the other day a friend of mine was on a railway bridge on which a German military train had stopped. He noticed that all the blinds were down and asked the German sentinel on the bridge for the reason. Without a word the sentinel opened one of the carriage doors. A ghastly sight met their gaze. The carriage, an ordinary first-class compartment, was filled to the roof with German corpses, naked, save for their socks. In every carriage there were one hundred bodies, and the train had thirty carriages."

CONFISCATED NETS

AUDACIOUS HIT MINE

Trawler Swept up 81 in 20 Mile Zone

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—One of the naval reserve men arriving on the Cunarder Franconia to-day from Liverpool, was on the Olympic when she went to the rescue of the battleship Audacious on October 27, off the coast of Ireland. He said that there was no truth in the report that the Audacious was torpedoed by a submarine.

"The Audacious hit a mine", he said. "While we were standing by the trawlers swept up 81 mines in a zone of twenty miles, a zone that the Olympic had passed through that morning."

He added that the naval authorities, hearing of the presence of submarines in the English Channel off the Solent, had issued orders at the last minute to have the Canadian transports taken to Plymouth instead of brought on to Southhampton, where preparations had been made for feeding the troops and sending them to camp at Salisbury.

Robbed of His V. C.

British Officer's Complaint in New York Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Captain Samuel C. Gale of the British army, who has been buying horses in this country for the British Government, appeared in the West Side Court today and complained that with his jockey, Joseph P. Schweiger, he had been held up in a saloon at 65th Street and Broadway and robbed of his Victoria Cross, won in the Boer War; a gold watch and chain, and $22. He charged Joseph Burns, Joseph Pyke and Joseph Smith with assault and robbery. Magistrate held them in $4,000 each for examination. The captain said that he and Schweiger were in a saloon early today when the three men entered. One of them struck the jockey on the head with a black jack, while another held up the complainant with the revolver. Captain Gale and Schweiger followed them to the street, shouting, and detectives Madigan and Campbell captured three men, while a fourth escaped with the stolen articles.

The name of Captain Gale does not appear in the official list of recipients of the Victoria Cross.

WILL SELL ART WORKS

The War Will Mean Sacrifices for Many Families

LONDON, Nov. 24.—According to art dealers, many well-known families here will be forced at the conclusion of the war to get rid of art objects of great value. The heirs of some prominent families have been killed in battle, and it is believed that this will mean the dispersal of some famous collections. Speaking of this, a dealer said to-day that for a long time after the war, art dealers would have to look to America and its millionaires for the disposal of works of arts. It was said at Christie's that no auction sales have been planned for months to come. Dealers seen here said that they had no commission from Americans for purchases of art objects at present.

PORT NEVER BUSIER

Supplies of All Kinds Pouring Into London

LONDON, Nov. 24.—J. E. Broadbank, a member of the Port of London authority, states in an interview that the port has never been busier in its history than at present. Timber and sugar are pouring in. The stock of foodstuffs is five times larger than at the same time last year. Meat supplies have been well kept up. Twenty per cent. more dock laborers are being employed than is usual at this time of the year. Mr. Broadbank particularly remarks the tremendous trade between London and Archangel, Russia.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAYS NO IMPORTANT DETELOPEMENT IN NORTH--THE ALLIES MAKE SLIGHT GAINS--SOME LOSSES TO GERMANS

PARIS, Nov. 26.—An official announcement this afternoon says:

No important developments marked the day of November 25th. In the north cannonading is diminished, and no infantry attacks was directed against our lines, which made slight advances at certain points.

In the region of Arras, there was a continuation of the bombardment of the town and its environs.

On the Aisne, the enemy endeavored to deliver an attack on the village of Missy. This movements resulted in a complete failure, with considerable losses to the Germans.

We have made some progress in the region to the west of Souain.

In the Argonne and in the Woevre district, and in Lorraine, and in the Vosgoes, there is almost a complete calm along the entire front.

There has been a heavy fall of snow particularly in the higher portions of the Vosges Mountains.

ALIENS IN CANADIAN FORCE TO BE SHIPPED BACK

LONDON Nov. 26—(Special.)—Good progress is being made with the Winter quarters for the Canadians at Salisbury Plains, nearly 1,500 carpenters being busy constructing huts. The Ninth Infantry Battalion have taken possession of their huts at Bulford, seven miles from Bustard camp. In addition to being more comfortable, the new quarters are more convenient, being on the railway.

Another detachment of undesirables are to be shipped back to Canada this week. It is understood that the men are mostly aliens or of doubtful nationality.

Guy Ernest Hamilton, aged 20, son of Lord Ernest Hamilton, committed suicide with a rifle at his home in Hertfordshire because he was unable to obtain a commission in the naval division owing to ill health.

GERMAN SUBMARINE DRIFTING IN NORTH SEA--TRIED TO ENTER NORWEGIAN HARBOR TO REPAIR MACHINERY

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 26.—(Special)—The German submarine U-17 is believed to be drifting in the North Sea with her machinery damaged. The marine station at Bergen was notified yesterday morning that a submarine was approaching the harbor. Two Norwegian torpedo boats went out to meet her.

The captain of the submarine said that he wished to enter the harbor of Bergen to repair his machinery. He was informed that his craft would be disarmed and interned, whereupon he quit the territorial waters, under the escort of the torpedo boats. It is believed that the submarine since has been in difficulties.

AN INDIAN SUBALTERN RECEIVES THE VICTORIA CROSS

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Times Boulogne despatch, says that among the eight Victoria Crosses recently bestowed, is one to Ganna Sing, an Indian Subaltern.

With fifteen of his regiment he was attacked in a trench just before dawn by a large body of Germans.

He is the sole survivor of his party and before being disabled by five bullet wounds he shot a German officer and seizing his sword, killed ten more of his attackers.

"Had I not been disabled by bullet wounds in my foot," he says, "I should have killed more."

He is on the Hospital ship at Boulogne, a mere bundle of splints.

FIFTEEN RUSSIAN REGIMENTS WITH SEVENTY BARGES OF AMMUNITION AND SUPPLIES HAVE ARRIVED IN SERVIA TO ASSIST AGAINST AUSTRIANS

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Times Correspondent at Sofia, wires, that fifteen Russian regiments with seventy barge loads of ammunition and supplies have arrived on Servian territory, to assist the Servians in their campaign against Austria. The Russians came up the River Danube from Russian territory.

British Battleship Bulwark Blown up

Only Twelve of Large Crew Saved

LONDON, Nov. 26.—It was officially announced here today that the British Battleship Bulwark had been blown up off Sheerness. Only twelve men of her large crew were saved. The Bulwark was a pre-Dreadnought of relatively small size and power.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The disaster to the Battleship Bulwark was announced in the House of Commons this afternoon by the First Lord of the Admiralty. The explosion is supposed to have originated in the Bulwark's magazine.

UNCONFIRMED REPORT OF MASSACRE OF 2,000 RUSSIANS THAT COMES FROM GERMAN SOURCES

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Telegraphing from Amsterdam the correspondent of Reuters says that the Berlin Tageblatt has published a despatch from Constantinople to the effect that two thousand Russians have been massacred at Tabriz by Persians. The British official press bureau, while assenting to the publication of the above despatch says that it appears to be false and to have been spread under German instructions.

PREMIER ASQUITH SAYS SUPPRESSION OF FOOTBALL AT PRESENT UNNECESSARY

LONDON, Nov. 26.—"The situation at present does not demand legislation for suppression of football," said Premier Asquith in the House of Commons today replying to a question as to whether such a move was under way. The Premier added that negotiations with the football magnates were progressing from which satisfactory results were expected.

AN OFFICIAL DESPATCH SAYS ROUT OF GERMANS AND AUSTRIAN FORCES COMPLETE

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An official report received in Russian circles in London today, declares the rout of German and Austrian forces in Poland has been complete.

The General Staff, however, is not yet able to give any details of this [illegible]ting.

FRENCH MARINES RE-CAPTURE DIXMUDE, LOST 300 MEN AND FORCED GERMANS BACK SEVEN MILES

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Daily Mail correspondent at Dunkirk, says that the Allies have retaken Dixmude. The French marines accomplished it Tuesday and Wednesday, with a loss of three hundred men, causing the Germans to retreat seven miles.

THE GERMANS CLAIM A BIG WIN 40,000 PRISONERS 70 CANNON MANY MACHINE GUNS AND WAGONS TAKEN

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—An official statement today claims that the German troops at Lodz and Lowicz have inflicted heavy losses on the Russians, who suffered many casualties. The Germans took forty thousand prisoners, seventy cannons and many machine guns and wagons. Final result of the battle is still pending.

Sir Oliver Lodge Replies to Critics

Sticks to His Guns in Controversy Over Communications With The Dead

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(Special)—Sir Oliver Lodge, who startled the scientific world by asserting on November 22 that he had talked with the dead, has made public reply to the demand by many critics that he furnish proof.

Sir H. Bryan Donkin, one of the greatest living physicians, led those demands for substantiation, and in this morning's London Times Sir Oliver publishes the following signed statement:

ARE BEYOND PROOF.

It scarcely comes under the head of the legal proof of Sir Oliver's assertion, but the inference is obvious that Sir Oliver's communications with the dead lie in the region of telepathy.

"People cannot receive proof so long as they shut their minds to evidence. The beginning of proof is telepathy, that is, the connection between minds through unknown and apparently immaterial channels, but no paper, even on telepathy, has been accepted by any orthodox scientific society. The whole subject is taboo. Whatever may be said in favor of this attitude as a safeguard against superstition and cranks, and I am far from denying that workers are wise to attend to their own business and not lightly enter upon strange fields of inquiry, the fact is undoubtedly so, notwithstanding grave judicial favor shown by some leaders in science to the examination of an unrecognized human faculty.

A REAL REGION.

"In any public utterance of mine I am careful to say words to the effect that I am expressing my own conviction, based upon many years of skeptical inquiry, and that while a few scientific men, more or less, agree in having gone through a similar training, the majority do not consider that such a region exists, save in the imagination. I do not expect a favorable scientific atmosphere in my lifetime; I anticipate a continuance of strong hostile pre[illegible]e. Nevertheless I feel entitled [illegible] state the results of my experience for what they are worth and leave the judgment to posterity."

FRENCH SHELL ARNAVILLE TEN MILES FROM METZ

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Special—The French have bombarded the village of Arnaville, a point on the Lorraine frontier, important for its position on the railway and near the Moselle. It is only ten miles from Metz, the great German fortress.

The announcement, briefly made in the official bulletin, is a significant commentary on the advance made by the right wing of the allies.

TWO YEARS FOR HEINOUS CRIME

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 25.—Special—Two years with hard labor was the sentence meted out on Charles Pettitt of this city, who was found guilty of criminal assault on a six-year-old girl.

Farmer Wins Suit At Osgoode Hall Today

Case Was Heard at Belleville and Judgment Given by Chief Justice Falconbridge

(Canadian Press Despatch

TORONTO 26.—The Canada Cement Company, must pay a farmer named Fitzgerald $1,500 damages, for depriving him of the right to drive his cattle to water across a marl deposit at Dry Lake. The farmer sued for damages and the case was heard at Belleville, and Judgment was given at Osgoode Hall today by Chief Justice Falconbridge.

MAY REQUIRE CIVIL SERVANTS NATURALIZED

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—(Special)—The Government has under consideration the passing of an order in Council compelling all members of the Civil Service to become naturalized. At present appointees to the service are required to take the oath of allegiance and the oath of office. Many men of alien birth, especially in the technical branches of the service, are not naturalized Canadians. Though they take the oath of allegiance, the latter cannot be considered to be binding upon them if they ever sever their connection with the Civil Service.

Though the Government professes not to fear espionage among the public employees, it is felt that stricter conditions should be imposed upon appointees, to insure, as far as possible, their loyalty. Not a few of the servants of the people holding responsible confidential positions are men whose native land is now at war with Britain and Canada. While most of these are faithful workers, it is felt that their presence would be fraught with less distrust and danger if they were naturalized.

BRITISH SUPPLY SHIP TAKEN BY GERMANS?

Rumored in New York That Cymric Was Captured in North Sea

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Special—It was rumored in shipping circles today that the White Star steamship Cymric, which was converted into a supply ship for the British Government, has been captured in the North Sea. Nothing was known of the report at the White Star office where one of the officials said that they would not be notified, as the Cymric had been taken over by the Admiralty six weeks ago.

YOUNG WORKING WIDOW HURLED TO DEATH

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Special—Mary Ebnen, widow, Assyrian, aged twenty-eight, was almost instantly killed last night in a fall down an elevator shaft at Joseph Simpson Knitting Mills, 10 Berkeley street. The woman fell a distance of forty feet, sustaining a fractured skull and fractured arms.

The woman was working on the second floor of the mills. She hurried to the elevator shaft to catch the descending freight car, and in some manner slipped in under the door after the elevator had passed.

"MADE IN GERMANY"

Scurrilous Postcards of Kaiser Sold To Swiss

BERNE, Nov. 24.—The Swiss Government has just received a remonstrance from the German Government for allowing the sale of what was regarded as particularly scurrilous postcards of the Kaiser. Inquiries showed that the postcard was made in Germany and was placed on the Swiss market by a German firm.

RESCUE 100 SCHOOL GIRLS FROM BLAZING DORMITORY

ABINGDON, Va., Nov. 25.—Clad only in night dresses and unable to save many of their possessions, more than 100 terror-stricken girls were rescued with difficulty when fire destroyed the school building and dormitory of Stonewall Jackson institute, a Presbyterian school for girls here.

A light wind spread the flames toward the Martha Washington (Methodist) college dormitory but an early shift in direction prevented this building from igniting.

The fire spread to a Presbyterian church adjoining the Jackson institute. Firemen from Abington and Bristol, Tenn., were called to battle with the fire which at one time threatened the entire town. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Society Ottawa Lionized "Count" Spy of The Kaiser

Was One of the Guests of Honor at State Ball Last January

HAD INQUISITIVE NATURE

He Disappeared Suddenly, Dodged False Pretence Charge in U.S. and Was Last Heard of in Germany

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—A former social star, one of the brightest that ever shone in the society constellation in Ottawa, has been proven by the officials at the Militia Department a German spy.

When "Count" Max P. Lynar Von Loudon was here during the latter part of last January and the early part of February, he was a veritable lion amongst the Four Hundred. He was one of the guests of honor at the state ball at Government House last January. He entertained several of the elite and was, in turn, entertained by them. Fully caparisoned officers were constantly in his suite at the new Russell Hotel.

But the "Count", who posed as a former officer of the famous or infamous Prussian Guards, had an eye for business when he wasn't attending to the social side of his nature, which was apparently well developed. He tried to sell the Militia Department several articles of his own invention, from a wonderful ammunition pack to a nailless horseshoe. If he got sufficient orders he and his partner, who was apparently a silent one, would build large factories in Buffalo and Fort Erie. The ammunition pack was tested by the Department and approved, but the order wasn't placed. The "Count" had only one sample.

"The "Count" came to Ottawa with letters from the British ambassador at Washington, who gave him letters following an introduction from the German ambassador in the American capital.

What We Wanted to Know

He put in a lot of time in the Militia Department building and was particularly quizzical on matters pertaining to equipment of the Canadian forces in the event of war. He wanted to know if Canada would help Great Britain should she and Germany take up arms against each other. He told of his experiences in the Prussian Guards and had pictures of his estate in Germany.

He was suspected first of being a faker by an exceptionally efficient officer at military headquarters when he went to the state ball at Government House. Thither he went attired in khaki uniform, which he said was the uniform of an officer of the Prussian Guards. But the local officer saw that the uniform was incomplete in several details—in short, he detected it was a fake. Later the German army list was consulted, but the "Count's" name could not be found there.

Now the militia officials have learnde that the "Count" was here solely for the purpose of gathering all the information he could about the Militia Department for the German Government.

He disappeared suddenly from Ottawa and the next time anything was heard of him was when he was arrested on a charge of getting $2,000 from a woman in Niagara Falls, N. Y., under false pretences. He represented to the woman that her money would be for the purchase of shares in a company he was forming to manufacture military equipment. However, he managed to dodge conviction and the last heard of the "Count" was from Germany.

KAISER'S CARRIAGE TAKEN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—The Army Messenger asserts that among the trophies taken by the Russians at Czentochowa was Emperor William's carriage and that in it was Emperor's blue coat.

Dealing with the fighting north of Lodz The Army Messenger says:

"The Germans are making attack after attack in order to break the Russian forces, but without success. The Austro-German army is staking all on this battle."

The newspaper adds that on the Galician front the Russian offensive is becoming more energetic and is reducing the enemy to a state of impotence.

Nothing warms up the congregation like cold facts from the pulpit.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

FOR 2-CENT NEWSPAPER

One New York Publisher Holding Out Against Advance

The newspaper publishers of New York held a meeting a few days ago to consider raising the price at which papers are sold. It was proposed to sell the one-cent newspapers at two cents in the future, but the proposition was defeated because one of the most powerful newspaper proprietors refused to agree to the plan and held out against all arguments that were brought to bear on him, much to the disappointment of the other publishers.

The European war has created a serious situation for the big dailies. With an increased price for white paper, they have found their circulation also expanded and their advertising contracted. The average cost of the white paper used in printing a New York daily today is said to be six-tenths of a cent. With decreased advertising most of the owners of the big dailies find that they are now publishing at a very considerable loss.

The situation of the newspapers is also much affected by the greatly increased cost of the news departments since the war. The cost of covering the war news is a heavy burden, which, taken into consideration with the advance in wood pulp and white paper has resulted in the necessity of adopting some radical means of meeting the situation. The publishers were almost unanimously in favor of doubling the price of the papers and this would have been done if one of the largest owners of newspapers in the United States had not been opposed to the plan.

The times have improved. There are no scandals in food supplies to the foreign armies.

Clifford Winston Shaw, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shaw, who resides in the 5th concession of Thurlow Township, died this morning.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT

Last evening the fire brigade was called out, and again this morning, owing to the fact that fire again broke out in the Lister Block on Front street.

TRESPASSER SENT UP

George Provost, who claims to be a typo, was yesterday afternoon arrested as a trespasser on G. T. R. property here. This morning he was by Magistrate Masson fined $10 and costs, or in default 30 days in jail. As Provost was minus the change he was committed to jail.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Monthly meeting of the West Belleville Women's Institute, Friday, Nov. 27, at 4 p.m., in the assembly room of Queen Mary School. The programme consists of a report of the convention from the delegates. Piano instrumental from Miss S. Walton.

NOTES OF OUR BOYS' CONCERT

Thanks are due to Mr. Givens, florist, for the decorations for the platform, and Mr. Chas. Ling of the Empire Cafe, for hot coffee at the close of the concert. The receipts were $38.00, the expenses $30.00. A donation was received from a friend for $2.00 for wool for slippers.

AN APPRECIATED GIFT

Mr. John Donovan of this city, today shipped from here 200 pairs of sleeping blankets. The blankets were consigned to the Belgian Consul, at St. Peters Street, Montreal, and are intended for use by the poor people of Belgium. The gift is one that will be much appreciated.

DEATH OF A VETERAN

Mr. John F. Way, a well known and much respected resident of Mountain View, Prince Edward County, died this morning in his 73rd year. Deceased was born in Ameliasburg Township, and had resided there all his life. Mr. Way was a veteran of 1866. For many years deceased had been a member of the Methodist church. A widow and three daughters survive. The daughters are Mrs. Ed. Kitchredge of Rochester, Mrs. George Spencer and Mrs. M. Moy, of Ameliasburg

MEETING OF PRESBYTERY FIELDS REARRANGED

At a special meeting of the Standing Commission of the Presbytery of Kingston, held to consider petitions from several congregations, asking for rearrangement of fields in portions of Hastings county, it was finally agreed to unite Stirling and West Huntingdon into one charge, thus making a strong, self-supporting congregation. Foxboro, Roslin and St. Andrew's, Thurlow, were also united, thus constituting another self-supporting congregation. It was also agreed to retain Fuller as a mission field, to be supplied regularly by a student and by ministers of adjoining charges in the Presbytery. The changes will result in relieving the Home Mission Fund from heavy calls necessary under the old distribution of the congregations. The changes are to come into effect on December 1st.

POPULAR COUPLE WEDDED

At Bridge Street Methodist Church at 7.30 last evening, a wedding was solemnized by the pastor, Rev. H. S. Osborne. The bride was Miss Eva May Skinner, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Skinner of this city, and the groom, Mr. Frank Russell Wotten, who is connected with the Ritchie Company here. Miss Doris Brooks was bridesmaid, and Mr. Charles Skinner, brother of the bride, did honors for the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the residence of the bride's parents on Catherine street, where a most tempting repast was partaken of. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts, which attested to the popularity she is held by her numerous friends. Mr. and Mrs. Wootten have taken up their residence at 26 Catherine street. The many friends of the young couple in this city will unite with The Intelligencer in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

W. C. Mikel, K.C., is attending Supreme Court in Toronto to-day.

Mr. Walter Newton has returned to Toronto after being present at the funeral of his brother here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kehrer have arrived from San Francisco, Cal., to spend the winter with Mrs. Kehrer's aunt, Mrs. A. E. Fry, Murney street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wilson and son Clinton, of North Bay, returned home yesterday after attending the obsequies of her brother, the late Sidney Taylor Newton.

RUSSIAN SENTRY'S DEED HELD UP TO TROOPS

He Refused to Quit His Post for Six Days

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Special)—The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd relates the following incident:

The tradition of the Russian army is that, once a sentry is posted, only his officer who posted him and the Emperor himself can relieve him. Even in time of peace cases occur which require the personal interference of the Emperor to relieve the sentry from his post. The first case that has happened in this war occurred with the convoy train of the Siberian division, which, on meeting the German outpost was fired on. The officer who had posted a sentry named Popoff over the regimental treasure chest was killed. For six days Popoff remained at his post, refusing, as regulations directed, to hand over his charge until a telegram arrived from the Emperor to relieve him. A deed like this is put in orders and read before every battalion squadron and battery of Russia's armies.

WORK TO BE PROVIDED FOR PRISONERS OF WAR

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—(Special)—There are now considerably more than a thousand Germans and Austrians under military guard at the various detention points in Canada. The number of prisoners of war is being added to daily. Their interests are being looked after by the United States Consul-General, J. G. Foster, who has been acting at Ottawa for the Governments of Germany and Austria since the outbreak of the war and the departure of the German and Austrian Consuls. The Canadian Government is co-operating with him in devising measures for the proper custody and care of the alien victims of the war in Canada.

The Federal Government is conferring with the various Provincial Governments in regard to public work which might be done by the German and Austrian prisoners. In Quebec a considerable area in the Abitibi region will be cleared and prepared for agricultural settlement. It Ontario it is probable several hundred men will be put at similar work in Northern Ontario. In the west some of the prisoners will be employed in building roads and in clearing up Dominion parks. With few exceptions, none of the men now in detention is regarded as likely to require any special watching, or to cause trouble if they are let out on work of this kind, of course, under proper surveillance.

Trouble is Over In Free State

The De Wet Uprising Has Spent Its Force--Botha is Master

CAPETOWN, Nov. 25.—(Special)—There is little doubt that the crisis in the Free State is over. Small scattered bodies of rebels are still in the field, but they will gradually surrender. At one time the position looked serious. De Wet was inducing many to join him, in the belief that there would be no fighting, it being represented that the whole Free State was rising, and the Government could do nothing. These illusions were shattered by the fight in Mushroom Valley on November 12. The rebel losses on that occasion were much heavier than is generally known. De Wet was caught napping; in fact, he was actually in bed, when General Botha opened a fierce attack. The rebels, completely dumfounded, are now like sheep without a shepherd, and will not face the music again.

ISLE OF MAN AFFAIR INCENSES GERMANY

U.S. Attache Investigating and Will Report to the German Government

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The recent shooting of prisoners on the Isle of Man is creating a most disagreeable and unfortunate impression in Germany, according to advices received. There is fear that Germany may take some reprisals, if only according British prisoners there more severe treatment.

Chandler Hale, attache to the American Embassy, in charge of Austrian affairs is to-day at the Isle of Man concentrating camp investigating the shooting. His report will be cabled to the German Government by the Embassy. It is hoped that this will assist in allaying German feelings.

Reports from Germany indicate a growing bitter hate for the British which it is feared may take form in the mistreatment of the British.

Hale is making the round of all the camps, yesterday visiting Newberry, where there are three thousand prisoners. The Embassy to-day forwarded to Berlin a favorable report on the treatment accorded prisoners.

Advices from Vienna indicate that reports of ill-treatment of Austrian prisoners here are published there. These reports are even worse than those current in Germany. The American Government is making every effort to prevent friction over the prisoners.

CHARLES C. FARR DEAD; HAILEYBURY'S FOUNDER

HAILEYBURY, Nov. 25.—(Special)—The whole town today mourns the death of C. C. Farr, founder of Haileybury 25 years ago. Mr. Farr had been ill for several days, but death came as a surprise.

Charles Cobbold Farr, who was a graduate of Haileybury College, England, came from the old country to Canada in 1871, and spent his first few years in Muskoka. About 1875 he entered the employ of the Hudson Bay Company at Kippewa Post, and was transferred to the old fort at Lake Timiskaming, in 1881. For eight years he remained in the company's service, but in 1889 he realized the possibilities of Haileybury, and with great daring, set up as an independent trader at this post, and made good. Until the building of the Timiskaming and Northern Railway he was isolated in the north, but through the long years he was buoyed up with absolute faith in the future of the country. When the railroad was built he reaped the reward of his faith, and became a wealthy man as the result of the sale of his farm as town lots in Haileybury.

He was a good many years editor and proprietor of the Haileyburian, which his personality made unique in Canadian journalism, and some years ago he contributed extensively to many well-known English magazines. He was an intrepid bushman, and he had a fund of wood-lore almost inexhaustible.

HUGHES WOULDN'T TAKE KITCHENER'S ADVICE

Claims That His Rejection of It Saved Canadian Transport Fleet

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 25.—Speaking at the Canadian Club here to-day Major-General Sam Hughes declared that it was his carefulness that prevented the first Canadian contingent from danger of being blown up by German submarines on its way to England.

"I would not accept Lord Kitchener's advice that ample protection had been afforded for the transports and demanded to know what ships were being provided, what guns they carried, and so on. As a result of this continual hammering away, the people of England came to know that German submarines were hovering in the British Channel."

The Minister also claimed that, having discovered that spies for the German Empire were busy, he had sent out misleading statements on the sailing of the contingent which completely foiled the Germans.

The Major-General was accorded a big reception here and seemed in an unusually gracious mood. He refused to discuss the alleged assassination plot which was to have culminated here to-day. His only comment was that he was glad the Turks had not Ross rifles to do the shooting with.

Playing Safety.

There was a diplomat whose mind
Was one of wondrous strength,
Yet who in speech was not inclined
To go to any length.

On the piano he could play,
Likewise the violin.
He touched the harp strings in a way
That great applause would win.

The classics he would sound with zeal,
With ragtime, too, he paced.
He was equipped for an appeal
To every style and taste.

And now when interviewers seek
His presence to commune
He smiles on them, but does not speak.
He simply plays a tune.

Real Need of Two Cars.

"Still have two cars?"

"Yes."

"I thought you intended to sell the older one?"

"No. My son and his high school friends keep the old car busy."

"I see. You get the use of the new car yourself."

"No; I don't. It keeps the new car hustling to tow the old car home."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Suspicious.

"Did you ask your girl's father for her hand in marriage?"

"I did."

"And he refused you. I can tell by the way you look."

"No, he didn't. He gave his consent."

"Then why the peculiar look you are wearing?"

"He was so very willing."—Houston Post.

The Forest Lovers.

"Pine knot for me," the woodman said,
"I'll soon return to yew.
The train I take at Oakland branch pulls out of town at two."
She saw him board the waiting train. His face was all a-beam.
They took his trunk and threw it in, and the engine got up steam.
When all spruced her beau returned, a poplar man of mark,
She kissed him thrice, and at each kiss her little dogwood bark.
—New York Mail.

Consolation.

"So you don't care for those fancy bred dogs?"

"Oh, I suppose they're not so bad as they might be," replied the weary looking man. "I'm glad we don't have dinosaurs and pterodactyls nowadays. My wife would be sure to want one of them for a pet."—Washington Star.

Nonrusting Hooks.

NOVELTIES IN STYLE.

Dyed laces are to be used.

A new idea is the combination of black satin and plaid serge.

Frocks of net arranged in plaits or ruffles are favorites.

Skirts are made entirely of roman stripes.

Extreme suppleness of tissue and shot metal effects will lead in silks and velvets.

Flounces and ruffles share the interest with tunic and pleats.

Many of the new suits are trimmed with bands of velvet.

A pretty new fashion is that of "the court panel" of velvet worn with the afternoon or evening frock of different material.

Checked materials with rough surfaces, such as zibeline, velours de laine and duvetyn, are numbered among the smartest fabrics for topcoats. For a schoolgirl there is one of checked blue and green woolen velours.

Most of us would rather preach than practice anyway.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BIBLE SOCIETY

Appropriate Address by Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas of Wycliffe College--Officers Elected and Reports Presented

The annual meeting of the Belleville Bibel Society was held last evening in the Parish Hall, of Christ Church and was well attended.

Rev. A. M. Hubly, President, occupied the chair, filling the position in a most acceptable manner. Other ministers present were Revs. A. S. Kerr, C. G. Smith, R. C. Blagrave, H. S. Osborne, A. L. Geen and Dr. Baker.

After the singing of the hymn, "Soldiers of the Cross, Arise," an appropriate prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Blagrave. Rev. Mr. Smith read the scripture lesson, namely, the 3rd chapter of II. Timothy.

Rev. A. L. Geen, Treasurer, presented the following financial report, showing the receipts for the year:—

Collected by,—

Miss Morton	$ 61 30
Mrs. Hubly	44 52
Mrs. Waddell	21 80
Mrs. J. Elliott	15 50
Mrs. McCarthy	10 10
Mrs. Elvins	8 35
Mrs. Phillips	2 50
Misses Carr	1 10
Total	$165 17
Amounted collected at last annual meeting	10 01
Total	$175 18

On motion of Rev. H. S. Osborne, seconded by Mr. Wm. McIntosh, the report was adopted.

Mr. S. A. Gardiner, Secretary, reported as to what had been done by him during the year as to correspondence, etc. He also referred to the fact that the Society had distributed considerable literature.

The nominating committee reported the list of officers for the ensuing year as follows:—

President—Rev. A. M. Hubly.
1st Vice President—Walter Alford.
2nd Vice President—W. B. Deacon.
Secretary—S. A. Gardiner.
Treasurer—Rev. A. L. Geen.

Executive Committee composed of the Pastors of the city churches and the following laymen: Bridge St., C. M. Reid; St. Andrew's, W. McIntosh; John St., S. Russell; St. Thomas, J. Elliott; Christ Church, F. P. Thompson; Emmanuel Church, E. T. Thompson; Holloway St., A. E. Bailey; Baptist Church, C. A. Hurte; Tabernacle, J. E. Walmsley.

Rev. A. S. Kerr moved, seconded by Mr. Walter Alford, the adoption of the report, which wts unanimously adopted.

Rev. Mr. Hubly referred to the fact that there was a demand for copies of the scriptures by the soldiers and that Mr. Lane, an evangelist, was at present at Salisbury Plain and was distributing the Bible and literature.

Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was the speaker of the evening and his address was of a high order. He referred to the circulation of the Bible and the fact that it was printed in several languages. The Bible was the only book that tells of God and His love, the only book that tells how to be delivered of sin, the only book that tells of the transformation of life, of holiness, comfort and hope. The Bible was unique in its circulation as it is the only book that has been translated into so many languages. It is a book that holds the thought of man. The Bible was a great missionary society in its circulation and was a great source of consolation in the present crisis.

At the close of the address Rev. A. L. Geen moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, the lady collectors, the Rector and Wardens of Christ Church, Mrs. Col. Campbell and the press of the city. Mr. J. Elliott seconded the motion, which was adopted.

The singing of the National Anthem and prayer by the Rev. Dr. Baker brought the proceedings to a close.

100,000 MUST DIE

Kaiser Orders Calais Taken by December 10

WEST FLANDERS, Nov. 24.—A despatch to the London Standard says that behind the statements of the German official wireless news, one may read determination to continue the attack and confidence in the ultimate triumph of Germany.

An effort is to be made this week to burst through to Calais, and half a million German troops will be engaged in it. Within the next few days perhaps one hundred thousand Germans will lay down their lives in the effort to form a passage way for the survivors, obeying the Kaiser's orders that Calais must be taken by December 10.

The Germans know how to die, and legions are marching across Belgium to join battle with the Allies in the decisive contest in this region.

There are two dominant impulses which make the Germans fling themselves headlong upon death with such recklessness as to inspire sheer admiration in their enemies.

One is genuine devotion to the Fatherland. Every German soldier now realizes, whatever his opinion about the war in general and this part in particular, that success for the German arms can alone avert disaster to his beloved country.

The other impulse is terror of their officers. The tyranny permitted to the German officer enables him to make his men's lives a purgatory of torment, and often the men who suffer most are superior to their officers in intellect, education and refinement of mind and behavior.

HOLDING C. N. R. TO AGREEMENT

Liberal Prophecies Now Proven False

Liberal prophecies last session that the Government would permit the Canadian Northern to violate the agreement entered into with the Government when that company received a guarantee of bonds have been proven false. At that time the Government undertook to act as trustees for the creditors, and that the money raised on the bond guarantee should be so applied that within a year ending June, 1915, these debts would be liquidated. The debts in all amounted to about $21,000,000.

BONDS UNDERWRITTEN.

Previous to the outbreak of the war the Canadian Northern succeeded in having underwritten $15,000,000 worth of the Government guaranteed bonds. This money has all been received by the Government and applied as proposed under the agreement. All debts due not only now, but up to December 31st, have been paid except drawback deposits on unfinished contracts and some few accounts in dispute. If the money market permits the whole of the debts will be liquidated in the time allowed.

GRADING COMPLETED.

The Canadian Northern announces the completion of the grading of their transcontinental from Montreal to Vancouver. By the end of the year steel will be laid and the road in operation throughout the entire system. The Government's wise bargain has rescued this road from a state of semi-bankruptcy and made it an active competitor o fthe other systems.

A WISE POLICY.

If the road had been permitted to go into bankruptcy it would have meant ruin for Canada as well as the railway system. The repudiation of $300,000,000 worth of bonds would have utterly destroyed our credit on the money market; would have ruined financially several of our provincial governments, and left this country with a railway wreck and a ruined credit.

The wisdom of the Government's bargain has been proven. The completion of the railway gives to the Government a two-fifths valuable interest in an active transcontinental without any expenditure, and gives to the people additional railway facilities and an active competition with other roads.

DEATH OF WILLIAM S. FALLS

His Family Sorely Afflicted With Illness and Death

COBOURG, Nov. 25.—Special—William S. Falls of Osaca passed away in the hospital at Port Hope from typhoid fever. The circumstances of his death were particularly sad, as at present a son, sixteen years of age, is very ill with fever, a daughter, ten years of age, is just recovering, while a little four-year-old child died while the father was in the hospital. A sister of Mr. Falls' wife was buried only a few days ago. He was forty-six years of age, and a prominent resident of the township.

How Thin People Can Put on Flesh

A NEW DISCOVERY

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of the body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 20 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and J. S. McKeown's Drug Store and all other druggists in Belleville and vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Russia's Ideals

Will Re-Unite Both Poland and and Armenia

ROME, Nov 24.—A prominent Russian diplomat, speaking to-day on the situation in the eastern theatre of war from the Russian point of view, said: "Our aspirations are almost realized, as what we desired to obtain was the annexation of Galicia, which already is in our hands, and the conquest of East Prussia, which is about to occur, thus fulfilling the promise of the Czar to reunite Poland under the Russian sceptre. Poland, therefore, is returning free in faith, language and autonomy. The occupation of East Prussia as far as the Vistula River is a strategical necessity for Russia. It is a question of life for Poland, which otherwise would have no outlet to the sea.

"Other problems which Russia wishes to solve are the neutralization of the Bosphorous and Dardenelles, the independece of Armenia, which is now divided among Russia, Turkey and Persia, and the freedom of the Balkan States from any Austro-German threats."

ROUMANIA MAY SOON ENTER WAR ON SIDE OF ALLIES

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—Special—The belief now prevails that Roumania has finally decided to enter the war. Her politicians are convinced that she cannot expect to secure Transylvania without firing a shot as she gained Dobur and Dobrudsche in the second Balkan war. The constitution of Roumania requires the Legislature's sanction for mobilization, and the Senate and Deputies are being convoked by Royal decree for next Saturday, when the necessary measures, including a moratorium, will be prseented. It is expected that the Government therafter will be authorized to declare war against Austria and Turkey.

THE HUGHES PLOT A FAKE

The Chief of Police in London, Ontario repudiates the story based upon statements alleged to have been made by him, that a plot to assassinate Major-General Hughes by three Turks who had been arrested. A telegram from London of the 24th inst. says the Chief of Police "emphatically denied the truth of a report in circulation that letters found in the possession of three Turkes arrested there indicated that an attempt was to be made upon the life of Major General Hughes upon the occasion of the Minister of Militia's visit to that city. The report that an attempt was to be made upon the life of General Hughes was a pipe dream pure and simple," declared Chief Williams.

If there is no law to punish people who invent and put in circulation lying reports of the kind under consideration, there ought to be.

A DOUBLE ECONOMY

Economy and efficiency are two things that the world is getting hammered home as a result of the war. Waste is always a loss; inefficiency is worse. Industry that stands up against the conditions imposed by the war must be efficient. Canadian manufacturers are testing themselves out in efficiency. They are under an economic contract to produce what Canadian consumers need to buy. A factory or a plant that might have been ninety per cent. efficient before the war is a hundred per cent. efficient now. When the whole country hums along on the full tide of prosperity it is easy to hold business without testing the mettle of every department. When the tide turns the weak business lets go. It is no longer able to compete.

The economy of buying goods made in this country is a double economy. It means the efficiency of our manufacturing industries as a whole and that means no unemployment and the return of good times. It means also in many cases an actual saving in dollars and cents to the individual consumer because he gets as good or better value for the same money or, in many cases, gets as good or a better article at less cost. There must be no question as to the relative value of the goods. The Canadian-made article must be the equal of the goods. The Canadian-made article must be the equal of its competitor. It can be bought for less money, because it does not have to take away from the quality in order to meet the Canadian price, nor add to the price in order to make the same relative profit on goods of the same quality.

If the Canadian made article is not at least as good value for the same money as anything imported it has no right to ask for the made in Canada preference.

In borrowing $50,000,000, without interest, from Great Britain until the end of the war, Belgium probably has a fairly good idea where the money will come from then.

The Mayor of Ottawa has had his wages garnisheed for office rent. This is dreadful. Surely a Mayor has some privileges and latitude that the ordinary mortal cannot claim.

A Toronto negro slipped and fell, and in doing so a revolver in his hip pocket exploded, and tore the seat out of his trousers. In these war times the event would be referred to as firing on the rear.—Guelph Mercury.

Few countries are in a better position to profit by the trade opportunities that have developed since the war began than Canada. For that reason a far greater area than ever should be placed under cultivation next spring.

Already the names of Canadians serving with the Imperial forces are appearing in the honor roll at the front. This brings the war nearer home. It will be brought still nearer after the Canadian contingent is sent to the firing line.

Defective teeth should not keep any man, otherwise physically fit, from going to the front. A few hours spent with a dentist will suffice to overcome that obstacle. A staff of dentists might be kept at the recruiting camp to put every soldier's teeth in first-class condition at the country's expense.

British airmen, early in the war, raided the German Zeppelin sheds near Dusseldorf. Lately they attacked the sheds at Friederichshafen and damaged at least one of the structures. One machine was lost and its navigator fell into the hands of the enemy. The Germans are beginning to realize that they have need to be as careful of their air craft stations as of their ship refuges, experiencing as they are, a little of their own mode of warfare.

MADE A MAN

By Harberton Lulham.

My lad went wild and careless like
And laughing to the war,
But in his look there's something now
I never knew before.

Your lad has felt his soul leap up,
One with his nation's strife;
He's looked Death level in the eyes
And learnt the worth of life.

I used to fear his love was light
And just a passing whim:
But, somehow, now he's back with me
I know I'm safe with him.

He learnt the worth of quiet love
Out where the fierce blood ran;
Your lad was but a lad, my lass,
He's come back made a man.

Another Shipment To Supply Demand

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelli- Bible ever published. It did look for genecer's distribution of the greatest a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. flagfi trated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really Illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait but bring in your certificates and get your Bibles. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

Kentucky Hunter Fought German

Cantrell, Caught in Belgium by the War, Enlisted After Saving His Wife

SAW WOMEN SHOT DOWN

And Countless Instances of Belgian Courage--Got a Cigarette from King Albert

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Edward Allen Cantrell, formerly a Kentucky sharpshooter, but more recently a soldier in the Civil Guard of Belgium is back in this country. He and his invalid wife thank the Germans for some acts of kindness and for some poor shooting. Except for these they would never have come out of Belgium alive.

It was Cantrell's worry for his invalid wife that got him into a lot of trouble. And when he had saved her he was filled with the love of adventure and repeated his perilous trip through the war zone. The second trip proved more dangerous than the first, and landed him though he is an American citizen in the Belgian trenches. Cantrell became so interested as he told his story last night that he forget that he had lost his fortune, baggage and home as the result of the war.

Cantrell is a true son of Kentucky. He is tall and wiry, and his dark eyes flesh fire. He is alert and enthusiastic and he likes a good fight. He is the kind of man that can use his fists when necessary, but who can use a gun, too.

Seized by War Lust.

"Yes, I can shoot a rifle," said Cantrell. "I handled a Winchester in the mountains from the time I was 10 years old. But I never in my life dreamed that I would have to shoot at human beings. I have had to do it and I shot to kill. That was after I had seen the death pallor come over the faces of my comrades in the trenches, and had heard the groans of the dying soldiers. I became possessed with a mania to kill Germans just as many as I could kill. But it is all over now and I am neutral. I never want to see war again. If a war could be staged for the general public, with all its horrors, it would end war forever."

Cantrell was in Brussels when the war broke out. He went to Belgium from this country twenty years ago, married a Danish girl and established himself with an English commerical houses. He travelled to Russia, Japan and practically all over the globe. He built a home in Brussels and lived there most of the year. He had a wide acquaintance in Belgium.

"I realized that things were going to get hot," said Cantrell, "but I had no idea that the Germans would eat their way into Belgium so fast. Why, they assured everybody that the Germans couldn't get by Liege. I left my wife in Brusesls on Sept. 14 and went to London. While in London, a few days later, I heard of the rampage of the Germans and I realized that my wife was in danger. Ambassador Page said at first that he couldn't do anything for me, but I told him it was a matter of life and death. He sent me to the American Ambassador at The Hague, however, and he sent me to the German Ambassador at The Hague. This German Ambassador sympathized with me when I explained that I had a sick wife in Brussels. But he warned me that I would be shot as a spy if my story was untrue. He gave me the necessarp papers and I started for Brussels.

"I had a hrad time getting to Brussels. Everywhere I was stopped by Germans. I went by a round-about way. didn't really get started until I got on a German military train which ran from Liege. It was bound for Paris, the soldiers thought. We passed through Louvain, a town of ruins. Near Louvain I saw a trench as wide as Broadway in which hundreds and hundreds were half buried. An officer told me that I was the only outsider who had been in Louvain since the town was shelled. Right near my train a house was afire. The officer told me that four persons had been boarded up in the house before it was set ablaze. These four Belgians he said, had hacked a German's soldier's arms off with a grass sickle.

"Just outside of Brussels a lot of English and French prisoners were boxed up in a freight car which was labeled 'Hagenbeck's.' I threw a package of tobacco into the box car. A German sentry saw it and he raked it out with his bayonet. When he had recovered the tobacco he gave it to a Frenchman. 'Don't give anything to the English dogs,' he said. The French are good comrades, but the English are our enemies.'

"German soldiers conducted me to my home in Brussels, and when they saw my wife sick in bed their believed my story and retired with apologies. They warned me to get out of Brussels at once. The city, they said, was mined, every part of it. I had heard that on every hand, and I believe it now. If ever there is the slightest sign of revolt in Brussels the whole city will fall in a few minutes.

Escapes in a Tramcar.

"I got my wife in a tramcar and we started for Ostend, by war of Ghent. The tramcar didn't run far and we had to take a peasant's cart. I sent my baggage ahead in another cart, and I haven't seen it since. Our car was nearing a little village called Gramont when we rode into a battle. We heard the bullets sing over our heads and all of a sudden our peasant driver pitched forward with a bullet in his temple. His body fell on the horse's heels and the horse got badly frightened and ran us into a ditch. Imagine the state of my poor wife. She was completely unnerved.

"A German officer with two privates came up to us. The officer poked an automatic pistol into my body and I thought my time had come. I showed my papers, however. Even those did not convince him that an American was travelling that lonely road. But when he saw my sick wife that changed his attitude. He expressed great regret and said he was sorry he couldn't send me to Ostend. He kicked the dead peasant as he walked away.

It was in the village of Gramont that Mr. and Mrs. Cantrell, saw horrible things. Cantrell became unnerved when he told of them last night. The town was deserted of Belgian shopkeepers and Cantrell saw as woman with two children hiding in a chicken-coop. After a while he saw a Belgian soldier creeping toward the coop. He was coming to save his wife and children.

"The woman motioned to her husband to go away," said Cantrell. "But he came right on. There were eleven Uhlans on horseback a little distance away. They saw the woman waving and they detected her husband. They came on a dash firing as they came. Do you want to hear about an act of bravery? Well, man, that lone Belgian stood there and he began to fire. I saw three Uhlans fall. The others shot that man and hacked him to pieces. He kept on fighting right to the end. Finally they killed him, and the leader of the Uhlans, who was wounded in the knee, turned on me. My wife was sitting on a chair and was seen by the Uhlans. I said to myself: 'If they touch her I'll kill a few myself.' My hand was on my automatic. The wounded officer went up to my wife, and when he saw her pale face he doffed helmet. He accepted my explanation and said he was sorry that my wife was ill. All the time he had a bullet in his knee.

Saw a Woman Killed.

'While we were there in a group the poor Belgian woman ran out of her hiding place. I tell you, I saw that woman shot dead through the back. My wife saw it, too. Her two children went shrieking into the fields. It was a terrible sight for any one, but particularly for my wife."

Mrs. Cantrell was forced to walk for two miles in her feeble condition to a town called Gramarage where the Cantrells caught a train for Ghent. The train when on to Ostend, where they arrived on Sept. 26.

"I remember the date because it was the night of the Zeppelin raid," said Cantrell. "We were asleep in our hotel when the four explosions were heard. A piece of one bomb dashed through out window and imbedded itself into the wall. I have the piece of shell with me."

Cantrell then took a piece of iron weighing a quarter of a pound from a big pocketbook. He was saving it as a souvenir, he said. The trip to London was uneventful.

It was after his wife was in the care of friends in London that Cantrell's love of adventure asserted itself. Against the advice of all his friends he started back to Brussels to save his household effects and to find the baggage which had been lost on the way to Ostend.

"In Ostend I met an old business friend," said Cantrell. "He wanted to send a message to his wife in Antwerp. I was hard up, and when he offered me a handsome sum of money I was persuaded to take the message. That was my undoing. You know that they passed a law in Belgium fourteen years ago which created a civil guard. I enrolled as a member of course, having lived in Belgium then for six years. I took the organization as a joke, and after attending several drills I forgot all about it. So did nearly every one. Now, when the war broke out, this civil guard sprang up all over Belgium I had never given it a thought.

Forced to Join Civil Guard.

"I got to Antwerp with my passports without any trouble, but the first man I ran into was an old friend from Brussels. He greeted me, like a lost friend. He took me to the commandant in the garrison and introduced me to a lot of officers. 'This fellow is one of us,' he added to the commandant. 'We enlisted about the same time.' There I was, and I was in for it. Of course, I could have demanded the protection of the United States, but I didn't have the nerve to do it. I had made my money in Belgium for so many years that I didn't feel like asserting my Americanism. So I said nothing and before I knew it I had an outfit and was ready for war.

"In less than twenty-four hours after I set foot in Antwerp I was fighting like a madman. I was right in the trenches. I was in the battles of Borcel, St. Nicholas, Zurenburg and Pepenier. We held the Germans at bay for three days at Borcel, and we held them at St. Nicholas and Pepenier, but we were routed at Zurenburg. The King of the Belgians came along from time to time and gave us cigarettes. He's the greatest man that ever lived. He not only gave me a cigarette, but he gave m a light.

"The English are good fighters, and the French can fight, and the Germans en masse, are devils, but those Belgians, man for man, are the fireatest and bravest fighters in the world. I saw an old Belgian charge a German battery, singlehanded with a pitchfork. He went right on as if he was a whole army. The Germans held back their fire. A German officer ripped the pitchfork from the Belgian's grasp with his sword, and he patted the Belgian on the back as an appreciation of the brave act. But the Belgian kept right on fighting. I saw a Belgian soldier shot down beside his wife and baby. I saw the baby killed by another shot, and then I saw the woman take up her husband's rifle and empty it at the Germans. People in this country, and even in England, don't know what misery is. The people in London don't get the news; as they don't dare to print the news because it is so horrible.

Hardships in the Trenches.

"Life in the trenches is terrible. We could hold the trenches as long as the German infantry confronted us, but we couldn't do anything after they brought up their heavy artillery. The German gunners can shoot. They waste a lot of ammunition until they get the range, but when they get it there is nothing on earth which will keep men in the trenches. They smelled me out with a lydite shell, which burst near me and choked a lot of us I was unconscious for a long time after I got a whiff of the gas. and a Red Cross man revived me."

"How did you managed to quit the Belgian army?" asked the reporter.

"I was just coming to that," replied Cantrell. "I was done up by that shell. I got back to Antwerp on a retreat and I went to the commandant. 'I think I've done enough for the Civil Guard,' I said to him. 'Yes, you have,' he said. 'Now you get back to America and stay out of this war.'

"I took his advice and I started for England. In one town near the coast I saw thirteen Belgian newsboys, between 13 and 18 years of age, lined up and shot for selling copies of London newspapers. They had sold the papers for $1.60 each. I also saw a German spy shot at Ostend. He had disguised himself as a postman, and the English discovered that he didn't know where the Postoffice was. They tried to tie his eyes up but he tore off the bandage and exclaimed: 'I am a German. I can die with my eyes open.'

In London Cantrell found his wife somewhat improved, and they sailed on the Transylvania of Cunard Line reaching here last Tuesday.

How the "Economizer" Works

EVERY Gurney-Oxford Range is equipped with an "Economizer."

This is the most important stove invention of recent years, and is not to be had on any stove but the Gurney-Oxford.

Think of its convenience; instead of having a number of dampers to regulate, you have only one. Move the handle of the Economizer in one direction and the fire is checked and maintained at a low ebb. It does not go out, but it consumes least possible fuel. If a bright, hot fire is wanted, another turn of the handle produces it, quickly and surely.

The convenience and efficiency of the Economizer is not equalled by the damping arrangements on any other stove.

And the arrangement of the flues in a Gurney-Oxford is remarkable.

The oven is enveloped in heat—every inch and corner gets an equal share of heat.

The heat goes up or down steadily and evenly. It never fails to cook successfully.

And the Gurney-Oxford Grates present an extraordinary large surface to the air. This means perfect combustion, a bright, intense fire. The coal is entirely burnt. It does not smoulder without giving off heat, half stifled to death.

Let us demonstrate these features of the Gurney-Oxford. The purchase of a stove can mean so much in comfort and economy—or extravagance and disappointment—that it is a serious thing to buy the wrong stove. The Gurney-Oxford never disappoints.

A Financial Story of the 1907 Panic

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

There are different way of furthering one's getting on in the world. Shortsighted persons can see only one way, which is acting on the adage, "Every fellow for himself and the devil take the hindmost." Nevertheless men have made fortunes by helping others. The difference between this class and the other is that one acts with a view to bettering his condition, while the other acts through kindness of heart.

When I was a young man I obtained a position in a bank and by attending faithfully to business rose to be cashier. I was economical so far as my own personal expenses were concerned, but I don't think I was mean. I would never lend small sums to my young men companions, but when any one really needed assistance would give it outright.

That I had good judgment in making investments is proved by the fact that my savings grew rapidly. When I was twenty-seven years I married Molly Erskine, aged twenty. A year after our marriage word came in from a western town that there was only one bank in the place and room for more. After talking the matter over with my wife I decided to start a bank there. I got some of the stockholders of the institution with which I was connected interested in the project and with my own capital in due time opened my doors for deposits.

I found that the man already established, John Redfield, had antagonized certain persons by declining to give them all the accounts they desired and there being no other banker in the town they had taken steps to have one establish himself there. These persons welcomed me, opened accounts with me, and averred that if I would do a liberal business and not be scared at trifles I would soon do all the business of the town.

I saw at once that Redfield was not pleased at the appearance of a rival and took secret means to discredit me. He kept the best and safest accounts, while the weakest came to me. But by adhering strictly to fixed principles of banking and acting on the supposition that there was business enough for both of us, I got my share of the new deposits, which were increasing, and occasionally one of Redfield's customers would fall to me. But, as I had maintained, there was business enough for both, and at the end of five years Redfield had more than held his own, while I had obtained a solid footing.

Bankers, like sea captains, must expect storms. I managed my affairs with this view; but, as in the case of a sailor, much depends upon the facility with which he can get in sail, so the banker's safety depends upon his ability to get in his loans. If the captain keeps his sails furled he will make no headway, and if the banker keeps his money in his vaults he will make no money. When the panic of 1907 came on I was in as good, if not better, condition than the average banker to meet the storm.

It looked at one time during that panic as if the financial structure of the United States was about to collapse. I confess I was in great fear that it would carry me down with it and bury me under its ruins. Every day more money was withdrawn from circulation and locked up. I got in all the loans I could and sold at a great sacrifice all my private property. This fund I turned into gold, took it to my home and concealed it under a board in the floor. I proposed to keep it to enable me to pass a crisis.

The financial barometer—the New York stock market—continued to fall, and money grew proportionately scarce. One morning I heard that a run had been started on Redfield's bank and as the day wore on the line before the paying teller's window increased. There was nothing like a run on my bank, but during the day the amount drawn was three times the usual average.

The next day the line leading to the paying teller's window of Redfield's bank was increased, and at noon Redfield came to my bank and told me that he must either have help or close his doors. He asked for it on the ground that if he went under the panic would extend to me and I would be carried down with him.

"I told him that I did not think so. That there would be a run on my bank I was willing to admit, but my intelligent depositors would not draw their money, and I could pay all the rest.

"Then," he said, "I am ruined. I am too old to begin again, especially with a debt hanging over my head. If I $20,000 or $30,000 to tide me over the rest of the day I could pull through, for tomorrow I am promised payment on a sale of bonds I have made."

It was then 12 o'clock. I told Redfield that I would consider the matter of helping him, and let him know by 2 if not earlier. He went back to the hungry crowd before his bank, and I calling a cab, went home. There I found my wife and told her that I was called upon to save Redfield, with the strong probability of going under myself later. If I gave him the gold I had in reserve he would pull through. But my trouble was still to come, and, without the funds I had sacrificed my property to povide I knew I could not meet a run.

My wife thought a long while before replying. When she did she said:

"Give it to him. He is an old man and to break down would kill him. I have little doubt that in saving him you will go under. But we are comparatively young and can begin again."

"Remember," I said, "beginning again is a hard thing to do."

"So it is, but when I or another must perish I prefer to give way to give way to the other."

Without replying I took up the board concealing my treasure and was about to put the gold in a satchel when my wife stopped me.

"Go back to the bank," she said, "and let me attend to this. You are needed there and I can convey this gold to Mr. Redfield."

There were the shining gold pieces that I had accumulated slowly and by constant work and that I was going to send to another on the eve of needing them myself to save me from ruin.

"Charity begins at home," I said to Molly. "I fear we are going to do something we will regret."

"That adage has a good deal of truth in it," she said, "but I have never come across any adage that will cover every case. I prefer the one 'Cast your bread upon the water.'"

"Very well, sweetheart; if we go under though saving another you will not chide me with having done so and I shall have a stout helpmate with whom to begin anew."

I left my wife to attend to the matter in her own way and returned to my own immediate duties.

A few minutes before 2 o'clock Molly came to my bank.

"Well," she said. "I've taken the gold to Mr. Redfield. I chose a coarse bag that had held potatoes to carry it in, and the bulk looked very small. It occurred to me that I would be seen delivering it at the bank and if I could make the crowd believe that there was more of the gold in would induce confidence. I emptied the coal scuttle standing beside the range into the bottom of the bag and put the gold on the top."

"All of it?"

"Every dollar."

"Go on."

"When I got the coal and the gold in the bag and had tied a string around the top I cut a slit in the bag near the gold over which I held my hand. Then I called a cab, got in with the treasure and drove to the Henderson bank. When I reached it I sent in for some one to come out and carry it inside. The crowd watched the clerk take the bag from me, and I handed it to him I took my hand away from the slit I had cut in it, and out rolled half a dozen gold pieces.

"The crowd set up a shout, and, hurrying the clerk into the bank, I picked up the pieces on the pavement—that is, all I could find. I think I must have lost something like five hold eagles, or $25."

"An investment worth $25,000!" I exclaimed.

"As I went into the bank to take a receipt for the funds there was another shout, and I noticed a number of persons leave the line."

I threw my arms about Molly's neck and kissed her.

There was a call at the telephone.

"That wife of yours," he said, "far more than the gold she brought has saved me. We have counted a dozen depositors whose accounts would aggregatee $30,000 leave the line. The gold wouldn't have been enough. It was the coal that did it."

I told Molly that I had some very large amounts drawn during the day and if there was as much cash called for on the morrow I would surely go under.

The next morning I was horrified at seeing line of unintelligent depositors before my bank waiting for the doors to open. I thought I could stand the run for that day, and I did, but the next as early as 11 o'clock our funds had been so reduced that I knew we could not keep paying till the closing hour.

The morning journals had given an account of my wife's arrival at Redfield's bank with a bag of gold and of the effect it had produced. This helped me a good deal, but it seemed that every depositor I had in the lower walks of life was in line. It was half past 2 and our pile had been reduced to $200.

Despite the delays practiced by the receiving teller to gain time I knew it would not hold out for the remaining half hour.

At twenty-nine minutes to 3 Molly drove up to the bank with a sack and called for some one to carry it into the bank. I rushed out, seized it and ran with it into the bank amid the plaudits of the crowd. When I got it into my private office and opened it, hoping that Molly had effected a loan I was shocked to see nothing but nut coal.

But her ruse was effective. Some of those in the line, having deposits which for their class were quite large, on seeing her carry in a bag, supposing that she was repeating her act of the day before, left the line, leaving those near the window whose accounts were very small. When the clock struck 3 and the window was closed there was but $12 in the bank.

But meanwhile Redfield had got in his loan and the next morning returned sufficient of what I had sent him to carry me through. As soon as all danger had passed he had the gratitude to tell the story of how he had been saved, and, while Molly became a heroine, I profited in emoluments.

Of all the acts of my life this pleases me most.

HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory.

Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had".

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

GETS $2,500,000 WAR ORDER

Vermont Firm Closes Big Contract for Cartridges.

SWANTON, Vt., Nov. 24.—The Robin Hood Ammunition Company has just received an order for $2,500,000 worth of rifle cartridges for one of the belligerent powers. The name of the purchasing country is kept secret, but it is said that the cartridges will be sent to New York as fast as they are manufactured, shipped to South America, and then forwarded to their ultimate destination.

In order to handle this contract, the largest that ever has come to a Vermont concern, the Robin Hood Company has rush orders for about $250,000 worth of new machinery. A large additional working force will be engaged and the plant will be pushed to its capacity day and night. It will require about a year to fill the order.

Similar contracts have been closed with the Western Cartridge Company of Chicago and the Winchester Company.

Says Germans Can't Fight Beyond June

American from Berlin Asserts They Know Now Defeat Is Inevitable

HAVE MEN, LACK MATERIAL

Three Million Soldiers Fighting—Stock of Copper and Nitrate for Powders Very Low

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Daily Telegraph publishes a long article by an American just returned from Germany, which gives an interesting picture of that country and the attitude of the population toward the war. He says:—

"Let me say at once that the patriotism and determination of the Germans is not one whit behind that of the Allies. At no time have the Emperor and the Crown Prince been more popular than at the present. At no time has the personal ascendancy of the Emperor been greater. Those who expect to see a sudden outburst of Socialism, which will force the Government to make peace, are living in a fool's paradise.

"I am fully convinced that the German people intend to fight to a finish. At the present moment the Germans have sixty-eight corps, fully mobilized, each of an average strength of 43,000 men of all arms. This, you will see, makes nearly 3,000,000 of men fully mobilized and in the field.

"The military authorities have created ten fresh corps out of the surplus of the Landwehr, and from the vast numbers of volunteers who have come forward. They claim that they have applications from no fewer than 2,00,000 volunteers, but this, I think, is an exaggeration. To my certain knowledge very large numbers of the Landsturm have not yet been called up, and comparatively few of this class have been sent to the front.

"There is absolutely no shortage of food supplies in the country. Of wheat rye and meat thede is plenty.

"Where Germany will fail is in those articles, essential to war, which require raw material that she cannot produce herself.

"I have seen great hopes placed on the failure of her supply of petrol. These hopes are ill-founded. Officials assure me that there is still enough petrol in the country to last for another year and a half. My own personal investigations bear out this statement.

"On the other hand, every one admits that there is a terrible scarcity of rubber.

"More serious still is the shortage of copper, which is essential for the manufacture of shells and ammunition.

"I have every reason to believe that the supply of gunpowder is causing the General Staff the gravest anxiety. They lack the saltpetre and nitrates necessary for its manufacture. They carefully avoid giving direct answers to all questions on this subject, and prefer to turn them away with some feeble excuse. When asked why they are using old ammunition they say, 'We wish to get rid of it.'

"I do not mean to imply that there are not still immense reserves of ammunition in the country, but from my inquiries I am convinced that, even on a scale vastly below that of the present time, they will, for this reason alone, be unable to carry on the war after next June.

"I am sure that the most vital considerations of this struggle are Germany's lack of copper and gunpowder, or the essentials necessary to make the various explosives now in use."

Summing up the writer says:

"In their inner hearts the German official classes realize quite well that there can be only one result to the present struggle. They know that they are beaten. They realize that the odds against them are too great. They are fighting now to obtain the best terms possible.

"They are determined to fight to the bitter end rather than yield, and are equally determined to hold on to Belgium and preserve their fleet, as they are the only two weapons left with which they can obtain favorable terms.

"They hope by prolonging the war to exhaust the patience and endurance of the Allies. They hope to offer such strenuous resistance on both frontiers that rather than continue the war the Allies will meet them half way.

"I have spoken with many who frankly admit that they expect to lose Alsace and part of Lorraine. On their eastern frontier they expect to lose part of East Prussia, so that Russia can straighten out her frontier. They expect Austria to lose Galicia for a like reason. All they hope for it to preserve the unity of Germany and to save what remains of the empire.

"The official classes, society—in fact, all those who know—keep up smiling faces. At heart they are in despair because they know that, however long they continue their resistance, before a year is out the lack of certain essentials in the destruction of mankind will bring them up against a stone wall in which there is no exit except by the acknowledgement of their defeat."

INVASION IS FEARED

Germans Fortifying Schleswig-Holstein Against Attack.

Old Fortresses Are Being Strengthened and Line of Trenches on North Side of Kiel Canal Is Being Overhauled—Scottish Bridge Builders Ordered by War Office to Be Ready for Advance In Belgium.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An invasion by the allies is feared by Germany, according to The Copenhagen Evening News, which reports that extensive preparations are being made to guard against such an eventuality.

The News says it has learned from eyewitnesses that the Germans are strengthening old fortresses in the former Danish territory of Schleswig-Holstein, as well as a line of entrenchments called the Dannewerk along the northern side of the Kiel Canal. It is thus hoped to protect the canal against attacks from the north, for it is on the shores of Schleswig, according to the reports, that an invasion is feared. All the German islands in the North Sea, it is said, are now closely guarded, and strongly fortified positions are being erected on the shores of Holstein and along the western side of the River Elbe.

A Central News despatch from Glasgow states that the structural engineers and bridge builders throughout the country are being requested to stand ready to rush repair work in Belgium and France. From this it is assumed as undoubted evidence that conditions are favorable to the allied troops.

It would appear from the above despatch, since the Government have notified the bridge builders of Scotland to be in readiness, that the allied forces in northern France and Belgium were meeting with success, and were preparing to drive the Germans back into their own country. If the enemy were retreating it would be necessary to have bridge repair work done quickly to facilitate the allied advance towards Germany.

BIG STATION WORKING.

Colombia Permitted Germans To Operate Wireless Plant.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Charles Roberts, Under Secretary of the Colonial Department, speaking on behalf of the Foreign Office, made a statement in the House of Commons to the effect that information in the possession of the Government indicated that the Governments of Colombia and Ecuador had failed in certain respects to observe an attitude of strict neutrality.

The particular cause of complaint against Colombia has reference to a high power wireless station.

The British charge d'affaires endeavored repeatedly, said Mr. Roberts, to induce the Government to remove the staff of Germans at the wireless station and institute strict control in order to prevent the transmission of messages to belligerent merchant ships lying in Colombia ports. Failing in this the charge sought to have the station closed. The report received from the charge leaves it in doubt whether steps taken by the Colombia Government are of an effective nature.

German warships, he said, had converted certain islands belonging to Ecuador into naval bases. Great Britain was not yet aware what result had attended the protest made to the United States.

SWEDEN CALLS RESERVES.

Pro-German Faction May Plunge Her Into the War.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—It is learned here that a call has gone forth to Swedish reservists in Canada and the United States to return to their country and prepare to join their regiments. There are many such men in Canada occupied in various walks of life, and if all obey the order many good citizens of the Dominion will leave.

Considerable speculation has been rife recently as to the probable attitude of Sweden in the war. So far she has carefully preserved her neutrality, though it is stated that certain influences have been at work within her borders urging participation. German agents, encouraged by an aristocratic clique in Sweden which is said to be strongly pro-German, have been at work, while it is stated that there has been considerable bitterness over the closing of the North Sea. Fear of Russia is also said to be a strong factor. On the other hand, the Socialistic wing of the Government, which is of considerable strength, is strongly for peace and sympathetic to the allies.

It is not considered here that the call for reservists is a direct and unmistakable indication that the nation has decided to take part in the war, but it has been decided to mobilize against emergency. Sweden's military system is based on conscription, and she is said to be in a position to place 250,000 men in the field within a month.

ZAPATA IN CAPITAL.

Carranza's Commander-In-Chief Evacuates Mexico City.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — The forces of Gen. Zapata occupied Mexico City Tuesday night and are maintaining order, according to official telegrams from Mexico City, dated yesterday, and received here late last night.

Mr. Stilliman, U. S. consul, reported that the Zapata forces, after sharp fighting in the outskirts of the Mexican capital Tuesday afternoon, in which sixty soldiers were reported killed, entered just as the forces of Gen. Blanco evacuated the city. There was some disorder and looting in the brief interval between the evacuation by Blanco and the arrival of the Zapata troops, but the city was quiet immediately afterwards. The convention forces, under Gen. Villa, according to Mr. Stilliman, were expected late yesterday.

The Brazilian Minister said he had received full assurances from the Zapatistas that they would maintain order. The Villa forces are expected to arrive at any moment.

Austrian Commandant Hanged.

LEMBERG, Galicia, Nov. 26.—(Via London.)—The sound of firing which was said to be the result of a clash between the Germans and Austrians composing the garrison of Przemysl, was reported by refugees arriving here yesterday from the vicinity of the Austrian fortress.

It was further reported that the Germans had hanged the commandant of the fortress because he proposed to surrender the citadel. The Austrians are said to have opposed the measures put into effect by the Germans, which resulted in a pitched battle in the streets.

Swashbuckles In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—"Swashbuckling jingoes" was the term Secretary of the Navy Daniels yesterday contemptuously hurled at American citizens who preach militarism. "It is a matter which makes the American people thankful that we have at the helm at this time of world crisis a man who has a full realization of the meaning of war, who, as he said, has 'a passion for peace'."

Servia May Agree With Bulgaria.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—There is considerable diplomatic activity in the Balkans and important developments are expected. It is considered in official circles here that with the Austrian army on her soil, Servia will be more likely to listen to the demand of Bulgaria for a slice of Macedonia as the price of her support. There is also talk of an arrangement between Roumania and Bulgaria, in fact, of a reorganization of the Balkan League which would bring all the Balkan states over to the side of the allies.

Keep Suez Canal Open.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—(By wireless.)—The Turkish Government has announced that the Suez Canal will be kept open for traffic, according to a semi-official despatch from Rome.

This is probably a reply to a reported protest from Italy that Turkey would be held fully responsible if operations against Egypt caused the closing of the canal. It is hard to see how Turkey is able to give the assurance above.

Natives Desert Turkey.

ROME, Nov. 26. — A despatch to The Messagero from Athens states that Chief Senussi has asserted that 10,000 troops on the Egyptian frontier have now returned suddenly to Cyrenaica, renouncing all hostility towards the British.

Turkey has been accused of fostering the revolt in Cyrenaica against the British and invade Egypt from the west.

SINN FEIN PAPERS SEIZED BY GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A determined effort to end the seditious campaign against recruiting in Ireland has been begun by the Government. It was announced yesterday that on Monday detectives, acting on warrants, searched the residence of one of the leaders of the Sinn Fein party in Dublin. Documents and papers belonging to the Sinn Fein volunteers were seized.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Hunt, M.P., asked the Solicitor-General whether his attention had been called to a letter in The Mayo News in Ireland, signed by John McBride, urging Irishmen to prevent recruits from joining the British army, calling the British Empire a "blood-sucking vampire," and asserting that the Nationalist representatives in Parliament wanted Irishmen to "leave their bones in foreign countries, so that none would be left to defend Ireland."

Mr. Hunt further asked whether the censor would allow such letters to be published in the future. Chief Censor Buckmaster replied emphatically, "I will not allow the publication of such letters."

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying to questions regarding statements injurious to recruiting, which had been published in "certain Irish papers," stated:—

"I am well aware of the contents of the publication referred to, which seems to have had a large free circulation, particularly in England. The Government is considering what immediate steps shall be taken to secure the suppression of documents and statements of this character. I do not consider them dangerous, but I am sure they insult the sentiment of the vast majority of the Irish people."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

By the new T. & N. O. timetable the north country will be entirely isolated on Sundays. No trains will move over the railway on the Sabbath.

German newspapers allege that England is responsible for the famine in Belgium, because of the stoppage of imports of foodstuffs from America.

The British War Office is advertising in Jamaica for suitable men, to whom it offers commissions as captains and lieutenants in battalions being raised in England.

A general strike of seamen affecting all lines sailing from British ports was called yesterday. The liner Lapland which was scheduled to sail for New York yesterday, was held up at Liverpool.

The Turkish Government has forbidden all subjects of powers belonging to the Triple Entente to leave Turkish territory. Women, as well as children under ten years of age, are not included in the order.

Just on his return from a hunting trip Wm. Sutherland, aged 70, a well-known Toronto bookseller, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday while talking to his brother in a bookstore, and expired on the way home.

In succession to the late Col. D. R. Wilkie, Senator Jaffray was elected president of the Imperial Bank at Toronto yesterday. Peleg Howland is the new vice-president, and Edward Hay the new general manager.

W. A. Buchanan, M.P., has suggested that farmers who are unable to contribute towards the Patriotic Fund, should set aside one acre for growing a crop, the proceeds of which, next year, would go to the fund. The movement is being widely taken up.

ENEMIES UNDER SALARY?

British Parliamentarian Asks Regarding Prince of Schleswig-Holstein.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The question whether the payment of big annuities was being made to certain relations of the reigning royal family when members of their families were fighting for Germany against Great Britain, was raised in the House of Commons yesterday by Wm. Young, member of Parliament for Perthshire.

Mr. Young asked Premier Asquith whether he was aware that Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, son of Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, a daughter of the late Queen Victoria and aunt of King George, was engaged as a combatant with the Germany army; whether the prince was in this country at the outbreak of the war and whether any effort had been made to detain him.

Mr. Asquith replied curtly that he had been informed that Prince Albert "was serving in a military capacity in Germany," but that he had no knowledge when he left England.

To the inquiry regarding the status of the prince's family, who received $30,000 a year from Britain, Mr. Asquith made no reply.

Silent Gun Used.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — The British "eye-witness" gives through the war bureau a statement in part as follows:

"In our centre the enemy employed a silent gun, which may be pneumatic or worked by some mechanical contrivance. There is no report of the discharge, the projectile travels through the air without any warning made by an ordinary shell, and the first notice to be received of its arrival is the detonation. So far the weapon has done no damage."

Would Flog Wife-Beaters.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—A delegation representing the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Women and Children will wait on Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, some time during the next session of the Legislature and ask for amendments to the statutes compelling municipalities to keep their poor, to pay prisoners for their work for the benefit of their wives, and to impose sentences of flogging on wife-beaters.

ZEEBRUGGE WIPED OUT

"Pistol Pointed at the Heart of England" Is No More.

Chance of Immediate Raid on Great Britain Is Destroyed by Bombardment of Coast Town Where Torpedo Boats Were Being Made—Long Western Battle Line Quiet But For One or Two Places.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—British warships, probably assisted by French men-of-war, have practically destroyed the town of Zeebrugge, West Flanders, the most important port of Belgium held by the Germans, in so far as naval operations against this country are concerned.

It is reported here that a flotilla of heavy battleship threw a torrent of shells into the town for three hours, destroying work which has required many weeks to complete, reducing six new German torpedo boats in process of completion and scattering to the four winds of heaven great quantities of war munitions. The exact time of this action cannot be placed from available reports.

Soon after Antwerp fell Zeebrugge was occupied by the invaders, who lost no time turning it into a base for the projected aerial and sea raid on Britain. Train after train of ammunition and supplies was poured into the town for several weeks, the Solvay Military Works, on the Bruges Ship Canal, one of the best equipped arsenals in Belgium, was eagerly seized upon and turned into German uses. Extensive plans had been under way for building Zeppelins at Zeebrugge and the delicate apparatus for generating the hydrogen necessary to the operation of these big crafts was already installed, while sheds were building in which they were to be housed.

In addition, a comprehensive system of earthworks was rapidly encircling the town and heavy artillery had been posted advantageously. In short, Zeebrugge was in an admirable state of defence and the wheels of its plants were busy turning out military necessities.

All this has been wiped out in a short three hours and the new "pistol pointed at the heart of the English" is no more. Meagre details of the bombardment say that the German guns replied vigorously to the fire of the warships for a time, but that this fire was ineffectual, as the battleships stood out of range.

This last fact is significant, indicating that the biggest vessels of the British fleet, and presumably of the French fleet also took part in the attack. When the Germans saw that their guns were impotent, they attempted to save the valuable stores brought to Zeebrugge, but this effort is also reported as unavailing.

The following official communication was issued last night:—

"This was a quiet day. There was no alteration of any part of the entire front."

A succinct review of operations along the allied front in France is furnished by the French communique of the afternoon, which says:

"From the North Sea to Ypres there have been no infantry attacks. Between Langwarck and Zonnebeke we have gained territory. In the vicinity of La Bassee the Indian troops recaptured from the enemy certain trenches which had been taken from them the evening before. From La Bassee to Soissons there has been complete calm.

"We have made some slight progress near Berry-au-Bac, and in the Argonne.

"At Bethincourt, northwest of Verdun, a German attack has been repulsed. A suspension of hostilities, requested by the enemy, has been refused.

"In the region of Pont-a-Mousson our artillery found it possible to bombard Arneville. Nothing has happened in the Vosges."

EARLIER PEACE EXPECTED.

Opinion Is That Italy's Probable Participation Will Shorten War.

LONDON, Nov. 26—That Italy will find a casus belli against Austria soon and pour half a million troops into the balance of the allies' side is the general belief there to-day, as a result of the latest developments in Rome.

Concurrent with this is a belief that the war will end much sooner than has been generally predicted. Prior to the opening of Parliament few believed that the war would last less than twelve months, and the greatest hope was for peace in the fall of 1915. But in the debate at the opening of Parliament the Prime Minister remarked, apparently quite casually, that the war might be over earlier than many supposed. He is supposed to have had in his mind a belief that before long Italy will take sides with the allies.

That would certainly shorten the war, as, from now on, either side that can suddenly throw half a million fresh troops into the fighting line, either east or west, will win.

German Diplomats Fired.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The German Emperor, according to a despatch from The Hague to the Exchange Telegraph Co., has ordered Gottlieb von Jagow, the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, to notify all the German diplomatic agents who hitherto have been employed in the countries now at war with Germany that they can consider themselves free to choose another career.

Newspaper critics, the message adds, state that this sequel seems to indicate that German diplomacy is held responsible for the war.

ENTIRE FRONT RETIRES

Germans in Poland Are Leaving Artillery on the Field.

Recoil of Von Hindenburg's Army After Russian Victory Resembles a Rout and Reports Say the Teutons Have Lost an Army Corps —Trains Sent Out to Get Prisoners—Praemysl Forts Taken.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26. — On the entire front of the Vistula and Warte rivers the Germans have begun a retreat, according to meagre reports received here from the front. At some points, it is said, the backward route resembles a rout, artillery and machine guns and ammunition and commissary stores being left on the field.

Reports reaching here concerning the magnitude of the defeat of the Germans to the west of Lodz, Russian Poland, which in some instances place the German losses as high as an entire army corps, are confirmed by telegraphic despatches from Warsaw. Forty-eight trains have been despatched from Warsaw to bring in the prisoners and wounded. This number of trains, made up of the maximum number of cars of the Russian wide gauge, would carry between 45,000 and 50,000 men.

Military men here express the opinion that the reported defeat was partially due to the failure of the column of Germans from Wielun to defeat the Russians sent against it. Bad roads delayed this German column, it is reported, enabling the Russians to concentrate a sufficient force to repulse it and turn the flanks of the main German column.

There is great jubilation in army circles here, officers expressing the conviction that the enemy has received a crushing blow which is likely to prove decisive in the campaign in Poland.

One detachment of Germans in the recent fighting before Lodz, which the reports arriving here assert was cut to pieces by the Russians, is said to have been on the point of executing a coup disguised as Russians. It is alleged that they wore the round, fur-peaked caps which form part of the Caucasian regiments' uniform. They were detected as they were about to turn the Russian flank, by Russian officers, who noted, through their field glasses, slight differences in the uniform and equipment of the Germans.

A significant piece of news regarding the Russian operations comes from Budapest, where it is admitted that the Russian troops again have invaded Hungary and have reached the county of Ung, which is about thirty-five miles south of the Carpathians, and the county of Zemplin, 50 miles to the south of these mountains. The troops which invaded Ung, according to this report, have been driven back to the frontier while action is being taken against those in Zemplin.

The Giornals d'Italia says that the Russians have occupied the outer forts of Przemysl. The Austrians mined the surrounding territory before abandoning these positions for the purpose of destroying the Russians when they should advance, but the latter became suspicious and drove large herds of cattle ahead of their column. When the cattle came within the mined area the explosives detonated with great fury, killing the herd. The Russians then advanced and occupied the forts without incident.

A Warsaw paper in describing the retreat of the King of Saxony from Poland, as seen by eye-witnesses at Czernowich, Rawa and other towns, says that the German Emperor and his staff were so sure of conquering Poland that a triumphal entry had been arranged for the Saxon king into Warsaw when that city should have been taken. He was to be immediately proclaimed King of Poland.

Great receptions were on the program and with this end in view the king was accompanied, not only by court dignitaries, but by a large number of court ladies, young and old. Events turned out differently from what had been expected and the inhabitants of the towns mentioned saw a procession of court personages rushing homeward in motor cars after the Germans met a crushing defeat at the hands of the Russians.

No Politics In Censorship.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — A discussion arose in the House of Commons last night relative to the censorship, and Sir Stanley Buckmaster, director of the official press bureau of the war office, said that the censorship should have no concern with politics and should not in any circumstances be used for coloring opinion in favor of the Government. If that were done, he said, the Government would abuse the confidence of the nation and be guilty of a very base action.

Sir Stanley declared that he had no sympathy with the view that bad news should be prohibited. It was possible, however, in which a full disclosure of events might not be desirable and might even prove disastrous.

More V. C.'s Awarded.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Eight Victoria Crosses have been awarded for conspicuous service in battles in France. Five of these were given to privates and three to officers. Three men won their decorations at the battle of Le Cateau, one at Mons and the others in later battles.

Altogether 18 Victoria Crosses, the most coveted of all British decorations for valor, have been awarded since the commencement of the war.

Austrian Archduke Gets One, Too.

BERLIN, Nov. 26. — (Via The Hague to London.) — Emperor William has conferred the Iron Cross of the first and second class on Archduke Charles Francis of Austria, commander-in-chief of the Austrian army, and heir-apparent to the Austro-Hungarian throne, for the part he has taken in the military operations.

Russian Official Report Shows Long List of Victories.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—The following official communication from the Russian General Staff was given out here last night:—

"The fighting near Lodz still continues. The large German forces which on Nov. 20 broke into the region of Strykow, Brzeziny, Kulszki, Ragow and Tuszyn—(all these places are in the vicinity of Lodz) — are pressed on every side by our troops, and are now attempting by a supreme effort to cut through toward the north.

"To the south of Koluszki station some scattered units are roaming about. We captured prisoners, some heavy ordnance and field guns.

"The outcome of the battle of Nov. 24 was to our advantage.

"In the fighting near Czenstochowa and Cracow, our troops manifestly have the upper hand.

"Beyond the Carpathian passes we are surrounding large bodies of Austrian troops in the vicinity of Mezolaborez. In this region we captured a general, forty officers, more than 3,500 soldiers, and convoys and machine guns. Near the pass giving access to the Hungarian plain we occupy the city of Homonna."

That the Turkish forces are still retreating before the Russians in the region around Erzerum is recorded in the following statement from the General Staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus, made public here last night:—

"In the direction of Erzerum our troops continue to chase before them the bulk of the Turkish forces they have defeated. We are capturing many prisoners and much ammunition and stores.

"The roads along which the Turkish troops are retreating are strewn with frozen bodies of their dead.

"The prisoners taken are unanimous in declaring that the defeated army is making haste with a view of seeking shelter behind the forts at Erzerum and Deve Boyun.

"The situation elsewhere remains unchanged."

GERMAN RELIEF MEASURES.

Sum of $1,250,000,000 Provided to Relieve Distress In Country.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—(Via London.) —The Reichstag has received a draft of the second supplementary imperial budget for the year 1914.

This empowers the Imperial Chancellor for the purpose of meeting extraordinary expenses again to raise 5,000,000,000 marks ($1,250,000,000) in the form of credit. Furthermore, the Chancellor is empowered to issue treasury notes up to 400,000,000 marks ($100,000,000) above the amount prescribed by the budget, for the temporary strengthening of the ordinary working capital of the Imperial Treasury. Of this amount, one-half is destined for the support of individuals affected by the war, while the other half is to be spent in the support of communities and for the succor of individual cases of distress.

Something to Rejoice For.

Cheer up! Although your pace is slow
And you must toil with tug and wrench,
Unlike the troops who face a foe,
For every mile or two you go
You needn't stop to dig a trench.

A KINGSTON ELOPEMENT
Couple Found in Brockville and Agreed to Return
(Brockville Recorder

On Thursday last, James Jackson, a resident of Kingston, with a wife and two children, eloped from that city with a Miss Mueller. They came to Brockville, accompanied by a newly-married couple, William Dorothy and Miss Graham, and engaged rooms on King street. Yesterday a brother of Miss Mueller and Charles H. Leeder, architect, came here in search of the runaway girl. Chief Burke was appealed to and he remembered having seen the strange couples on the street. Accompanied by the two men he started in search and in a few minutes met the strangers on the street. They all agreed to go back to Kingston, which they did.

A VETERAN JUDGE

W. D. Mace, who is spoken of as the veteran judge of amateur horsemen, took a prominent part in the annual banquet of the Winnipeg Driving club, on October 29th. He proposed the toast to the honorary president in an admirable way. A very interesting report of the banquet is written in the Canadian Sportsman by R. S. Hamilton, a former Kingstonian, and at one time employed in a newspaper office. Mr. Mace is widely known throughout Lennox and Addington, having lived for many years at Tamworth, and what he does not know about horses is not worth knowing.

DRUNK WANTED TO JUMP INTO WATER TO SAVE A COMRADE

While the tug Stanley was on fire at Soward's wharf, Kingston, on Tuesday night, a man who was one of the spectators, suddenly got the idea that there was a friend of his in the forecastle of the boat who was in danger of being burned to death, and he immediately started to undress on the wharf so as to jump into the water and save his friend. It was known that no person was on the vessel, and a constable, who was on the wharf, was just in time to save the young fellow from taking a cold plunge in the water. He had been driking, and was evidently "seeing things."

Local Society Held A Parlor Meeting

The first parlor meeting of the season was held by the "Y" at the home of Mrs. Mark Sprague, William street, Tuesday evening. The new president, Mrs. McCawley, was in the chair. After the usual opening of song, scripture lession and prayer, a discussion on Christmas work took place. Miss Templeton, superintendent of fruit and flower work, consented to have donations of clothing provision, toys, candy and books sent to her home, 246 John street, not later than 22nd of December.

Mrs. Ray, superintendent of soldiers' department, reported on patriotic work done by members and friends, 100 caps, 37 pillows, 74 pillow cases and a number of wristlets and bands. Mrs. Ray will show any girl how to knit these articles if they wish to assist in the work and will bring their needles and wool.

Miss Sheffield sang very sweetly, "Somebody." An excellent report of the provincial convention was given by Miss Farley. The thought was expressed and emphasized that work among children is often work on diamonds in the rough.

"A diamond in the rough,
Is a diamond sure enough,
And before it ever sparkles,
It is made of diamond stuff.

But someone has to find it,
Or it never will be found,
And someone has to grind it,
Or it never will be ground.

But when it's found, and when it's ground,
And when it's burnished bright,
Everlastingly that diamond
Will be sending forth its light."

She particularly mentioned the Provincial "Y" secretary's Bible reading on "Where is the Guest-Chamber?" Our hearts are so preoccupied with business and pleasure that there is constantly danger of us not providing the Guest-Chmaber for Christ. There was no room for Him at the inn at the beginning of His life. Are we, too, crowding Him out?

She told of the splendid work done by the Y.M.C.A. secretaries at Valcartier. Six secretaries have gone with the first contingent to look after the temporal and spiritual welfare of our boys. One of these men, Mr. Irwin, will represent and be supported by the Provincial W.C.T.U. by donations through the local unions.

At the close of the report an opportunity was given to any who wished to contribute to thi special fund.

Mail For The Front

Grist of Letters and Parcels For Fighting Men

Handled at Kingston Postoffice and Sent to Their Destination—Christmas Parcels Should be Posted Early

An institution which is playing an important part and which feels the effects of the war is the post office. Quite a large batch of letters and parcels go to and from the men in the Kingston district who went over to the old country on the first contingent.

The activity between Canada and the old country was checked for a time on the immediate outbreak of the war. The seas, especially the Atlantic, were not considered safe. One mail boat a week and for a short time scarcely that dared to venture across the accustomed ways. But the route was quickly cleared, the mail commenced to pour in from both sides, and now everything is in good running order, all the mails being operated on schedule time.

Packages are not only going to men at Salisbury Plain, but also to men serving at the front. A large portion of the parcel post matter goes to France.

Clothing of all sorts is sent through the parcel post and there is also being sent cigaretets, tobacco and cigars. Tommy Atkins will certainly appreciate all the "smokes" he can get.

In the Canada official postal guide it is stated that, according to rules governing the parcel post, tobacco is included in the prohibited list along with explosives and so forth. However, since the outbreak of the war France has removed the duty on all tobacco coming into the country for the benefit of the soldiers and the postal department has been notified that all tobacco for the troops will be carried free of charge so that, unlike other articles, it may be smuggled into boxes and packages with perfect safety.

A large number of newspapers are sent to the boys on the first contingent. It is expected that the rush of letters at Christmas will be very heavy, and the clerks are looking for an unusually heavy mail. Each letter will carry its welcome message across the sea.

The postal authorities are advising that all persons who desire to send Christmas gifts to the old country this year have them ready well in advance of the usual time, as the possibility of a delay in the postal service, and the greatly increased business expected as the result of the presence of the Canadian contingent in England, are liable to interfere with the service.

In connection with the rush of mail matter in connection with the Canadian contingents, it is of interest to note that at the present time a Canadian postal corps is being organized at Toronto. This will compromise men whose duty it will be to look after the mail for the Canadian contingent.

And heretofore the Austrians have not been guilty of any atrocities. "hatpins with china tips struccoed with jewels" announced as being among the spring models.

Red Cross Meeting At Bradford

The Bradford Witness has the following account of a Red Cross meeting addressed by a local citizen:

The Red Cross meeting held in the town hall on Monday evening last, was well attended. Mr. Jno. Elliott of Belleville, and formerly manager of the Standard Bank here, gave a very interesting talk on his trip to Ireland through England and Scotland. Mr. Elliott was in the old country at the time war was declared and gave a good account of the complete methods of the British mobilization. He also told of the great loyalty of the people of the British Isles and of the wonderful spy system of the Kaiser. Mr. Elliott asked the people to support the Red Cross Society in their noble work.

Warden Wood spoke briefly, thanking the people of the township for their donations of grain and potatoes. Rev. Creighton, Mr. A. E. Scandon, Mr. T. W. W. Evans and Mr. W. D. Watson also spoke on the necessity and good of the Red Cross Society.

A vote of thanks moved by W. D. Watson, and seconded by T. W. W. Evans was extended to Mr. Elliott.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Preemption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.—30690.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Freight Elevator, Ottawa City Post Office, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Wednesday, December 9, 1914, for the installation of one (1) standard freight elevator in the Ottawa City Post Office, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. A. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10%) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—At the C.P.R. live stock market there was no further change in the prices for cattle. The bulk of offerings consisted of poor to common stock, for which there was a good demand from packers for canning purposes, and a number of carloads were bought for shipment to the U.S. Cows brought $3.50 to $4.25 and bulls $5 to $5.25 per cwt. The trade in butchers' cattle was fair, there being a steady demand, with prices for choice at $7 to $7.50, medium at $5.75 to $6 and common at $4.75 to $5 per cwt., while choice butchers' cows brought $6.50 to $6.75.

Sheep and lambs were in good demand, sheep bringing $4 to $4.75, with Ontario lambs $7.25 to $7.50 and Quebec $6.50 to $7 per cwt. Calves were traded in at from $3 to $10 each. Hogs were weak, 25c to 50c per 100 pounds lower. Sales of selected lots were made at $3 to $8.25 and car lots of mixed weights at $7 to $7.75 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

Sheep—Receipts, 20,000; market, higher; native, $5.40 to $6.25; yearlings, $6.40 to $6.85; lambs, native, $6.50 to $9.25.

The Unseen.

Tell me, Uncle Wiseman, why
Can't I love an unseen maid?
Never by her tears have I
Been dismayed.

She's appropriately dressed,
Asks no questions—that's a boon—
Sings the songs I like the best,
And in tune.

Whatsoe'er my mood may be,
She is generous and sweet.
We shall never quarrel—we Shall not meet!

Schwab's Orders For War Material Total $50,000

Rush of Work Starts at Bethlehem Steel and Allied Industries

PLANT CLOSELY GUARDED

Object is to Prevent Information From Leaking Out, and to Avert Spies' Attacks

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Nov. 26.—It was learned today from good authority, but an unofficial source, that part of the contracts for war material which Charles M. Schwab obtained on his recent visit to England, at the request of Lord Kitchener, calls for 200 shrapnel guns, six hundred caissons, and 800 limbers. This is in addition to the large submarine contract which will shortly be filled at the Bethlehem steel plant and at the Fore Robe shipbuilding plant.

In addition, the steel company has an order for thousands of shrapnel shells for the English army. This English contract, and others that Mr. Schwab has recently secured from other European countries will, it is said, amount to $50,000,000,000.

Days before Mr. Schwab set sail on the Adriatic for home, where he arrived last Thursday, he cabled over the result of his visit to Lord Kitchener. Immediately various departments at the local plant took on unusual evidences of activity. Moulds were carefully but heavily made, and great steel furnace fires were lighted, awaiting the final word to go ahead. This was given the minute Mr. Schwab reached home. With the receipt of the order, the company today established a strict guard around the works, adding several police officers to prevent undesirables from entering the plant. There have been fears that German spies will attempt to blow up the works. An order was issued to allow no one to enter the plant without a pass, and this applies to inspectors and all operating officials. New passes, bearing the signature of the president, have been issued. Employees of the plant will be obliged to present their passes at the gate to gain entrance. This action has been taken by the company to prevent leaks concerning the nature of war material being manufactured.

A similar strong guard was placed around the plant during the Spanish-American war.

GERMANS DREW LOTS TO SINK SUBMARINE

One Mechanic Went Down to Open Valves and was Lost.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Describing the sinking of the German submarine S-18, a seaman of the destroyer Garry says:

"One of the patrols, moving slowly out of the harbor, suddenly signalled, 'Have struck submarine.'

"We could see the submarine making for the mouth of the anchorage, her periscope showing above the water. We went after her full pelt, we cruised about, and suddenly saw the submarine come to the surface. We made straight for her at full steam.

"When the crew came up to her deck, her captain, I think, waved a white handkerchief. We swerved, just missing her, and turned alongside to take off her crew. As we got near, the submarine suddenly went down, throwing those on top into the water.

"We rescued them, and learned that one of the sailors had gone below for the purpose of opening the valves, so we could not capture the boat. The officers and crew of the boat, after having decided to surrender drew lots to see who should stay below and open the valves when the safety of the others was assured. The lot fell to one of the mechanics."

FRENCH AVENGE LOSSES IN CHAUVINCOURT VILLAGE

They Annihilate Half a Division of Reserves With Some Artillery

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(Special)—An officer arrived today says the French losses were 130 killed and 70 wounded when the Fourth Bavarian Corps dynamited a part of the village of Chauvoncourt, on the Meuse. After three houses in the village were blown up, the French commander rushed troops from the barracks. One company remained, however, when the immense building was hurled to the ground. The French avenged the disaster the same night, annihilating one-half a division of reserves with artillery while they were hurrying to reinforce the Bavarians.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT TO A LITTLE CHILD

Life Crushed Out by a Mangle--Victim Drawn Into a Narrow Space -Accidental Death and Inquest Unnecessary

Gerald Roe Gill, a young son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Gill, who reside on Moira street, near the upper bridge, and conduct a laundry business yesterday evening was the victim of a distressing accident, which caused death. The child was playing about the laundry when in some manner it became entangled in the mangle used for the pressing of large articles. The body of the child was drawn feet first into the mangle and crushed in such a manner that death ensued a few minutes after child was taken from the machine. A physician was called immediately but was unable to do anything to spare the little one's life. Under the circumstances an inquest was not considered necessary. The body was subsequently prepared for burial.

FORTY ARMORED CARS ORDERED FROM TORONTO

Minister of Militia Accepts Design and Contracts for Immediate Construction--Equipment Will Include Three Portable Repair Outfits

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—(Special)—Armored motor cars of a standard of efficiency that are said to be second to none in the world are now to be manufactured by the Russell Motor Car Company for the Dominion Government. After inspecting a model car yesterday, Major-General Hughes confirmed an order for forty cars. This order is made up of twenty cars comprised in the offer of Mr. J. C. Eaton to equip a motor machine gun battery and in addition twenty cars to be ordered by the Government.

Speaking last night Major-General Hughes expressed his satisfaction with the model car he saw yesterday. "Yes, I told them to go ahead and make forty cars," he said, "and I would like you to go up and see them."

Mr. W. K. McKnaught, C.M.G., who had a great deal to do with the designing of these armored cars, said that so far as was known here they would not be excelled by similar cars made in any country. "The gun itself is mounted in a revolving turret," he explained, "and can be fired in any direction. The turret is protected by steel armor and is capable of withstanding rifle fire at one hundred yards distance. Inside the turret there is room for five men—the driver of the car, the operator of the gun, and three riflemen. In addition an extra gun is stored in the car and can be quickly mounted on a tripod for field work."

The gun to be used will probably be a Colt quick-firing type, with a capacity of 600 shots a minute. This gun will use the regular British army service ammunition, so that no especial supply will have to be maintained. Each car will store 10,000 rounds of ammunition. The equipment for each battery will include three repair outfits on motor trucks.

Mr. McNaught himself was largely responsible for the offer which Mr. Eaton made to the Government, and when the matter had been settled he secured the assistance of the engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, whose ideas have been incorporated in the accepted design.

KAISER CASTIGATES HIS ERRING SON

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Special—An Exchange telegram says The Amsterdam Handelsblad publishes a rumor from Berlin that a Prince of the Imperial family, whose name is not given, has been ordered by the Kaiser to cease wearing the Iron Cross conferred upon him because of ignorance displayed when commanding the troops in France. The Kaiser is reported to have torn the cross from the Prince's uniform in the presence of the personal staff of his son.

KINGSTON MAYORALTY CONTEST

KINGSTON, Nov. 26.—Special—There are now two candidates in the field for Mayoralty in 1915, Alderman Robt. S. Sutherland having announced himself in opposition to Alderman T. F. Harrison.

MAJOR-GENERAL HUGHES SPEEDS UP THE WORK OF ENLISTING MEN CANNOT LEAVE FOR TRIP ACROSS

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—There it little likelihood of Major-General General Sam Hughes leaving Canada until the winter is over, if he goes then. The business of raising men, mobilizing, equipping and giving them the first training will keep the minister on the job in Canada for the next six months.

It is said that by next spring the situation will be such that Major-General Hughes can conveniently leave the country for a time.

Just now enlistment is not proceeding as rapidly in some parts of the country as is desired by those who have the work in hand.

Some of the military districts have come forward with not merely the quota of men assigned to them but have pressed to have their allowance increased.

Others are far behind and in them the work of calling out the boys will have to be speeded up.

Slow in Maritimes.

The Maritime provinces are not showing up as well as it had been thought they would.

In more than one district there is a liklihood of energetic proceeding within the next few weeks.

The plan of sending our prisoners of war against the stump lots is being perfected rapidly. Major-General Sir William Otter is here consulting with the justice department, buying axes and planning his campaign against the bush tracts of Quebec assigned to him for improvement.

Exercise Good for Them

There are more than two thousand of these German and Austrian prisoners at Kingston, Halifax, Winnipeg and other points. They are getting fat and lazy. It is felt that exercise with the axe and whip-saw will do them good.

In the West they will be set to work clearing areas of the Dominion parks of the dead wood debris which has accumulated for years and has made the floor of the forest practically impassable.

Operations will be in full swing within a few days.

"We have already 108,000 men in training and we can supply all that Great Britain will need."

When questioned as to the remark imputed to him, that he would himself go to the front if the war was not over in the spring, General Hughes said he knew nothing about it. He was ready to talk about the work of enlistment, and the equipment of his troops, but he quickly shut his interviewers off when they started to raise questions about panics, shotguns and resignations.

He never read newspaper criticisms. When the reporters pleaded that they felt awed in the presence of a major-general, and sought to excuse on that ground the nature of their questions, the minister said: "Well boys, you need not feel strange. I am the same old two and sixpence."

Brigand Zapata Enters Capital

Denounces Villa and Proclaims Himself as True Light of Liberty

CARRANZA'S DARING RUSE

Evacuation of Mexico City Said to be Deep-Laid Plot to Catch Villa and Zapata

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 26.—After four years of fear and dread of his entry Emeliano Zapata, bandit, extraordinary of Morelos, is in Mexico City as the head of his big hated brigands, and the entire city are trembling for the fate of the national capital.

Carranzista officials here who have been in direct touch with developments by way of Vera Cruz and Tampico, declare that at least the world is to see what Villa has brought upon his people in the guise of patriotism and that when Villa and Zapata lock horns for the loot of the priceless possessions in Mexico City stores, Carranza, with his augmented troops, will drive both into the mountains where they belong.

The first thing Zapata did upon entering the capital, Carranza consular agents declare, was to repudiate the Aguascalientes Convention and Bulalio Gutierrez, denounce Villa as a usurper of power and proclaim himself as the one true light of liberty. While this was in progress at the Palace the Zapatistas, wearing their famous bandit suits and patched hats, rode in the outskirts and looted shops, stores and residences with much bloodshed, according to reputable Carranza agents on the border.

With the arrival of General Zapata, General Blanco, the self-proclaimed commander of the capital, moved out to the east and was said to be in flight toward Orizaba, where Carranza is planning to mobilize his various wings of the army. Blanco was believed to have been with Villa, but his sudden flight into Carranza territory was either done through loyalty or fear.

While the long-feared and expected occupation of Mexico City by the Zapatistas was taking place, Villa's troops were suffering another decided defeat in the Tampico zone of operations, where little General Servin, with all the available artillery, had moved from San Luis Potosi. He was met at Cardenas by a large force of men under General Caballero, who drove the advance guards and part of the main column with heavy losses.

A new development in the eastern theatre of war has been announced in the movements of the Gunboat Zaragosa, which was fitted out in Puerto Mexico, and sent to Tampico with men and munitions. The boat will operate into Panuco River and will command rebel advances from the east and north.

At Guadalajara, Angeles continues to defend the positions which he was forced to occupy away from the old town.

The evacuation of Mexico City by Carranza is now claimed to have been a daring ruse by the aged first chief and his generals to draw Villa into a trap. By allowing Zapata to enter when he left, Carranza has forced two commanders to oppose each other, or both stand branded as bandits, as it was known to a certainty that Zapata has promised his men three days of looting in the capital, Carranza's men here declare.

LONDON SENSATIONS PROVE GROUNDLESS

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 26.—(Special)—London was provided with another war sensation today when lurid stories were published concerning the arrest of three volunteers in the 18th Battalion who were supposed to have plotted a wholesale poisoning. The story originated from the fact that a man from Chicago of Austrian descent, who had enlisted with the second contingent, had been taken into custody, as well as two companions, following the discovery by fellow-volunteers that the Chicago man had a bottle labelled "poison."

Lieut-Col. Wigle, who commanded the battalion, investigated the case, and tonight said there was not enough in the case to cause the slightest public concern. The man, who is a druggist, admitted that there was strychnine in a small vial in his possession, and said he had taken it along in case he were so badly wounded he might desire to end his pain. Not only was this explanation satisfactory to the commanding officer, but the latter found that the man had told several other privates what he had, indicating that he could scarcely be a plotter.

MILES OF TRANSPORTS TAKEN BY RUSSIANS

Now Well Provided With Hospital Supplies at Austria's Expense

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Special—The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs:—

"I hear that the field and hospital supplies of the Russains, about which there was some anxiety at the beginning of the war, owing to the sudden stoppage of imports, were never short, thanks to the capture of the entire stores accumulated by the Austrians for the Russian campaign. We heard at the time about this item of rich booty captured in Galician, but private messages now explain the affair in more detail.

"When the Austrians fled the Russians captured over twenty miles of transport carts almost entirely laden with hospital supply stores. Many stood without their horses, which had been taken to assist in the flight, but powerless to move a step. The quantity of the supplies taken sufficed to furnish not merely the field hospitals at the front but even to assist the base hospitals with certain materials which formerly had been imported, and the want of which until Russina factories got going again, was at one period a matter of serious apprehension to the military authorities.

Disaster To Battleship Bulwark

Caused by the Fall of a Lyddite Shell

(Canadian Press Despatch)

SHEERNESS, Nov. 27.—It is believed here that the explosion which destroyed the British Battleship Bulwark was caused by the fall and bursting of a twelve inch lyddite shell in her magazine.

GERMAN ARMY CORPS SURROUNDED BY RUSSIANS SURRENDERED IN BODY

Another Corps Cut off and Completely Put to Rout

The Kaiser's Hysterical Telegrams

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Paris Matin, says that one German Army Corps, surrendered in a body and another corp, also cut off has been completely put to rout. The Russians are attacking along the Cracow Czenstochowa line, with redoubled intensity.

The Daily Mail correspondent wires that the great news has not been made public in the Russian capital, but the Embassys have it and everybody is on the tip-toe of expectation. The Kaiser's hysterical telegrams imploring and commanding his generals to hurl back the Russian armies and save the German Empire from invasion, caused them to put their heads into a noose, which the Russians are waiting to pull tight. The haul of prisoners already enormous must within a few days be greater still.

HOLY WAR PROCLAIMED

Signed by the Sultan and 28 Priests

(Canadian Press Despatch)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27.—The proclamation of a Holy War by all the Moselms against Russia, France and Great Britain, which was first announced ten days ago is published today, signed by the Sultan and twenty-eight priests.

CRISIS OF WAR FOR ALLIES IS DECLARED TO BE OVER

British and French Hold Germans in Check While Russian Campaign Develops--Grand Duke's Master Hand Strikes Germans Hard

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—The military expert of the New York Times this morning says:

"The official French bulletin issued yesterday on the last six weeks of the war gives an interesting description of the fighting in Belgium. The German assaults in this region have been pressed with great force in an effort to drive the Allies out of the country. The whole German campaign was for several weeks subordinated to this end.

"The stubborn resistance of the French and British defeated every effort of the Germans to break through and accomplished results that may prove to be the turning point of the war.

"By holding back the Germans until the Russian attack could get well under way, the French and British have now passed the crisis in their military situation. By this check in the west, the Germans are deprived of their advantage due to the suddenness of their forcing the war, while that of preparation and training is now passing to the Allies. The contest is consequently becoming one of endurance and resources with the resources of the Allies pitted against the endurance of the Germans.

FIRST PERIOD OVER.

"The first period of the western fighting has now passed, and the opposing troops are getting into shape for the second stage of the campaign. The British naval guns and new French four-inch guns have strengthened the artillery on the side of the Allies, while immense stores of equipment have placed their forces in better fighting trim. The large losses suffered by the Germans in their first line troops in their unsuccessful efforts to crush the French and British resistance have also brought the opposing fighting troops to an equality in training. Consequently, the Germans will now have much greater difficulty in holding their own against the Allies.

"The expected check of the German advance in Poland has now occurred. To oppose this German invasion the Russians followed a plan that has placed a part of the German army in a serious position. The forces that immediately opposed the Germans fell back before them and encouraged them to make a rapid advance up to within forty miles of Warsaw. Meanwhile Grand Duke Nicholas massed his forces between Piotrkow and the Warthe River to strike at the German flank.

GRAND DUKE'S STROKE.

"When the Germans were getting ready to crush the Russian forces

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY WILL REMAIN AS A RAILWAY MAN

Has No Idea of Disassociating Himself With the C.P.R. to Become Canadian High Commissioner at London

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—In connection with the renewed rumor connecting the name of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president o fthe Canadian Pacific Railway, with the High Commissionership for Canada in London, Sir Thomas today made the following statement:—

"I can't imagine where or how these stories connecting my name with the High Commissionership originate. Such a thing has never been given a moment's consideration.

"I can only repeat what I have said before, that the balance of my active life will be devoted to the affairs of the Canadian Pacific, if I am wanted.

WAR ZONE BULLETIN

TWO INFANTRY ATTACKS REPULSED EASILY--RHEIMS BOMBARDED DURING VISITS OF JOURNALISTS FROM NEUTRAL COUNTRIES--THE LOSS AND RECAPTURE OF TRENCHES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, Novv. 27.—An official announcement this afternoon says:

Slackening of artillery fire of the enemy was noted all along the line during the day of November 26th. Two infantry attacks directed against the heads of bridges which we had thrown down on the right bank of the Yser, to the south of Dixmude, were easily repulsed.

There was no other engagement on the rest of the front in Belgium and on the Oise.. Nor was there any action on the Aisne or in the Champagne district. Nevertheless, Rheims was rather violently bombarded, during the time that a number of journalists from neutral countries were making a visit.

In the Argonne districts some infantry attacks resulted in the loss and recapture of certain trenches.

Along the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges there is nothing to report.

A WAR LOAN OF $1,750'000,000 OVER SUBSCRIBED, THE UNITED STATES OWES ENGLAND $5,000-000,000

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Lloyd George made the announcement today that the war loan of $1,750,000,000 had been greatly over subscribed. Over one hundred thousand individuals had subscribed.

In the course of his speech Mr. George said that the United States owed England five billion dollars, but none of it could be collected at present.

U.S. PRESIDENT WILSON STATES DISAPPROVAL OF ATTACKS BY AIRCRAFTS ON UNFORTIFIED CITIES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Wilson has communicated unofficially to diplomatic representatives of the United States in the Belligerent Countries of Europe his disapproval of the attacks by bombs from aircraft dropped on unfortified cities, occupied by the non-combatants.

HAMMERING TURKS IN SNOW CLAD SERVIA

PETROGRAD Nov. 27.—(Special).—Success is reported from the snow-covered plateau of Armenia, where the attempted Turkish advance has been checked by the Russians.

In the centre the Turks have been driven back to their positions at Devebolnce and Erzerum, while failure also has attended the clumsy experiments in turning movements made by the Turks at German instigation on the Russian left near the Persian frontier, and the Russian trip near Betum.

The possibility of a further energetic offensive by the Turks in this region seems excluded, especially as the British occupation of Basra will prevent the withdrawal of any large body of troops from Mesopotamia for purposes of reinforcements in Asia Minor.

BOYS' WORK CONFERENCE

During to-day many delegates arrived her to attend the 9th annual Boys' Work Conference in connection with Y.M.C.A. work. At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church this evening the opening conference will be held. Mayor Wills will deliver the address of welcome and addresses in reply will be delivered by prominent persons. Rev. E. W. Halpenny of Toronto, Rev. Charles W. Bishop of Toronto, and others will give addresses. In St. Andrew's Church tomorrow m[illegible]ning a session will be held, at which several addresse will be given.

C.P.R. Vs. C.N.O.R.

Some interesting features in [illegible]lation to railway matters were developed in connection with the injunction order obtained by Mr. W. N. Ponton, K.C., this week against the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway to prevent interference with the rails and tracks of the C.P.R. at the long passing siding east of George Street and west of Foster Avenue. The Board of Railway Commissioners now require these sidings at intervals of five miles and they are of necessity as long as the longest trains that are hauled over the roads. The length of the C.P.R. trains is proverbial. There is a dispute as to the ownership and control of that part of the right of way occupied by the C. P. R. siding in question, but it would appear to have been operated for months by the C. P. R. and that the C.N.O.R. would have no right to make the connection with it unless under the order of the Railway Board, which it is understood has not been granted. Acting therefore on the argument that the safety of the public was involved and that irreparable damage might result, the officials and workmen of the C.N.O.R. were enjoined by the Judge and work immediately stopped. The motion for continuance of injunction will be heard in Toronto on Wednesday next.

African English.

An extraordinary jargon, which is claimed to be the English language, is spoken by many of the natives on the African continent. Mrs. Mary Gaunt in her book "Alone In West Africa" says:

"Listening very carefully, it took a great deal of persuasion to make me believe the words were English. When I bought bananas from a woman sitting under the shade of a spreading cotton tree and the man behind her came forward and held out his hand, saying, 'Make you gi'e me been, voman coppa all,' I grasped the fact that he intended to have the money long before I understood that he had said in the only English and probably in the only speech he knew, 'Give me her money.'

"Some of the words, of course, become commonplaces of everyday life, and I am sure the next time I call on a friend who is rich enough to have a manservant association of ideas will take me back, and I shall ask quite naturally, 'Massa lib?' instead of the customary 'Is Mrs. Jones at home?'"

Bush Negroes of Guiana.

The bosch negers (bush negroes) of French Guiana are magnificent specimens of physical manhood. To the numerous cues of their braided hair are often attached nickel bicycle clips and to their ears rings of gold. Gaudy colored breechcloths "made in Germany" are practically their only clothing. They are pagans and worship the cotton tree to propitiate a bad spirit. Obeah is the name they give to anything about which they may be superstitious, applying it to all evil influences, to their fetishes or charms in general. Many resented a camera as a bad obeah.

Their language, called taki-taki (talk-talk) is a most remarkable linguistic compound of their original Cromanti coast dialects, with a good measure of pidgin English and Dutch and spiced with a few derivatives from French and Spanish.

Dilemmas of Welsh Postmen.

The postal departments of certain districts in Wales are in a well nigh chaotic condition owing to the preponderance of families bearing the name of Jones. For example, the poor, unfortunate Swansea Valley postman is to be pitied when he finds that he has to deliver correctly seventeen letters, all addressed confidentially to "Mr. Jones," where there are nine different families of the name within a radius of 500 yards in a district where the houses are erratically numbered and most of the streets are nameless. So numerous are the Joneses in this part of the principality and so rapid is the growth of the places in the valley that it is now almost impossible for a postman—probably a Jones himself—to give the right letters to the right Joneses every time.—London Cor. Washington Post.

A Thundering Yarn.

A year or two ago, in a North of England city, writes Mr. J. H. Elgir, F. R. A. S., in the Yorkshire Weekly Post, a man told me that during a very violent thunderstorm all the windows of his club were thrown wide open. "To let the lightning in!" I remarked. "Not exactly," he replied, "but to let it out again if it did get in." As a fact, it accepted the invitation to enter the club with alacrity, and though it magnaminously spared the foolhardy people responsible for the invitation, it wrecked a large safe in an adjoining room. The person who related this to me said he would ever after look upon lightning as the "'cutest thing in creation." It is the flash that murders; the poor thunder never harm'd head.

There is just a chance that one of these days war itself will be regarded as the ultimate "atrocity."

This war has all the modern improvements. Both sides can win great victories in the same battle.

Battling in the clouds is spectacular enough, but it doesn't elevate war in the estimation of humanity.

General De Wet's Announcement

At four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, October 28th, General De Wet entered Vrede with about 153 mounted men, of whom half to two-thirds were armed. After passing through the town gate a chase ensued after a post office clerk, who had been posted on the outskirts of the town to form an estimate of De Wet's force as they approached. The clerk, mounted on a bicycle, managed to retain the lead from a number of horsemen, in spite of their threats to shoot him. He was, however, overtaken in front of the post office, from where he shouted the information he had gleaned to the post master who was waiting at the instrument to despatch the news to the Transvaal. The post master succeeded in getting his message through before the men had time to burst in the doors and prevent him. As soon as they got into the office they smashed up the instrument, knocked down the post master and kicked him. The rest of the troops galloped through the town in all directions, ordering the inhabitants assemble at the monument in front of the Dutch church, they being promised a sjamboking if they disobeyed.

General De Wet had meantime taken up a stand on the monument and ordered that the Magistrate should be brought to him. Two men were despatched to the Magistrate's office to order the latter to attend the meeting. In entering the office one of the men (De Wet's son) extended his hand to greet the Magistrate, who told him he would not give his hand to a rebel, and when ordered in the name of General De Wet to attend the meeting he replied that he was not going to attend a meeting held by the enemy. This message was brought to De Wet, who was furious, and sent six men up to bring the Magistrate by force, and, if necessary, to drag him up. The men again entered the Resident Magistrate's office and laid hands on him pulling him out of his chair. The Magistrate thereupon said that if they were going to take him by force he would go, and walked with them. He faced De Wet with a defiant air.

General De Wet, after employing some abusive language to the Magistrate, addressed the meeting as follows: "Ladies, Gentlemen and Burghers,—I have asked you to come together here to explain to you my position. Then turning to the Magistrate he said: "Magistrate, I want you to get a shorthand writer to take down every word I say, because whatever I do in the future, I can never commit a greater act of rebellion than I have already committed. I am going through to Meritz, where we will receive arms and ammunition, and from there I am going to Pretoria to pull down the British flag and proclaim a free South African Republic. All those who side with the Government must go to them. I signed the Vereeniging Treaty and swore to be faithful to the British flag, but we have been so down-trodden by the miserable and pestilential English that we can endure it no longer. His Majesty King Edward VIII. promised to protect us but he has failed to do so, and allowed a Magistrate to be placed over us (he is one of the pestilential English) who is an absolute tyrant, and has made it impossible to tolerate it any longer. I was charged before him for beating a native boy. I only hit him with a small shepherd's whip, and for that I was fined 5s."

Here the Magistrate interrupted De Wet and asked him whether he did not plead guilty. He admitted that he had pleaded guilty, and ordered the Magistrate to keep quiet and he would allow him to say as much as he liked when he had finished speaking, and if he would not hold his tongue he would make him hold it.

"But," continued De Wet, "after the Magistrate had delivered judgment, in stead of reprimanding the boy and ordering him in future to be obedient and do his duty, he looked at the native as if he would like to give him a kiss. The Magistrate was a brother-in-law of a man for whom he had the greatest respect, and who was very dear to him (President Steyn) and for that reason he would give him another chance, otherwise he would have taken him prisoner and gone and handed him over to the Germans. The Magistrate's father was one of the staunchest pillars of the church, and if he were alive today he would be heart and soul with him in this movement and condemn the dastardly act of robbery which the Government were going to commit. The ungodly policy of General Botha had gone on long enough, and the South African Dutch were going to stand as one man to crush this unholy scandal. Some of his friends had advised to wait a little longer until the English had received a bigger knock, but it was beneath him and his people to kick a dead dog.

Proceeding, De Wet said: "England has got her hands full enough. I hate the lies that are constantly being spread to the effect that thousands of Australians, Canadians and Indians can be sent to fight us. Where could the English get them from? She has not enough men to fight her own battles. I am going through the town to take the following articles, namely, horses, saddles, bridles, halters, arms, and ammunition, and if anybody should refuse to hand my men these articles, if they should be found in their possession, I will give him a thrashing with a sjambok. I now order the storekeepers to go and open their stores and I will select men to go around and take whatever I require apart from the above articles, and they will give receipts for what they take, and if they do not open their shops willingly, I will open them in another way.

"My advice to you English is to remain quiet in your houses and not interfere with my men. If you do not, beware when I come back. I have got my eight sons and sons-in-law here with me, and the only people left on my farm are my wife and my daughter. Anybody can go and see if they like, and request the Magistrate to give them any help they may require, if they will do so."

HAD HYSTERICS AND FAINTING SPELLS

Asbury Park Woman Had Complete Nervous Breakdown—Restored to Health by Vinol.

Asbury Park, N.J.—"I was in such a nervous, weak, run-down condition that I could not sleep nights, every little thing disturbed me, my appetite was very poor, and I was losing flesh. I was so nervous at times that I used to faint and have hysterics. I do my housework for a family of four, and they became alarmed at my condition. I tried beef, iron and wine and cod liver oil emulsions without benefit. One day our druggist suggested that I try Vinol and told me how it had helped others. I did so, and it has simply done wonders for me, as I am a well woman and entirely cured of my nervousness."—Mrs. KATHERINE E. KLEIN, Asbury Park, N.J.

Such reliable testimony should convince others of the value of Vinol, therefore if you are worn out, weak and nervous and want new strength and more vitality, we ask you to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic. If it fails to benefit you we give back your money.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for all weak, nervous and run-down conditions of men, women and children.

Shackleton says:

"The question of the concentrated beef supply is most important—it must be Bovril."

Shackleton knows. He is taking no risks. He choose Bovril because the food he takes must yield every ounce of nourishment to his men.

Follow Shackleton's example. Into a single bottle of Bovril is packed the nourishment value of many pounds of beef, and even a plain meal yields much more strength and nourishment if you are taking Bovril. But remember Shackleton's words: It must be Bovril.

FARMER GETS BIG JUDGMENT AGAINST CEMENT COMPANY

FITZGERALD vs CANADA CEMENT

This case was tried at Belleville last June before Chief Justice Sir Glenholm Falconbridge and enlarged for argument in Toronto which was heard Thursday the 26th inst. at Osgoode Hall. The plaintiff is the owner of a part of lot thirty two, Con. (2) Hungerford Township. He sold the marl land lying between his Hard Land and Dry Lake to the predecessors in title of the Canada Cement Company, reserving a right for cattle, horses and other domestic farm animals to pass over for water going to and from Dry Lake. The defendants cut across the part of the marl land which the plaintiff had been using as a lane to get to Dry Lake and removed the marl therefrom. It was contended by defendants that on a proper construction of the Deed, the right of way did not run where plaintiff contended but over another course which was not interfered with, also that Plaintiff had sold the right of way he was now claiming by a Deed subsequent to the one reserving the right of way, and that it had become vested in defendants. It was further contended by defendants that plaintiff had suffered no damage because the only effect of defendant's act was to bring Dry Lake nearer to his farm land which was really a benefit.

After the close of argument, Judgment was given for plaintiff for $1500 damages and costs with a right to defendant of a reference if so desired to show by works which they would undertake to construct the damages should be reduced and the right to plaintiff to increase the damages on the reference. W. C. Mikel, K.C. for plaintiff, W. B. Northrup, K.C. for defendant.

First Aid Course for the Overseas Force--Assignment of Pay Has Been Arranged

(Kingston Standard

The new battery which has been organized in Kingston for overseas service and which is commanded by Maj. W. Rierdon, will be known as the 17th Battery, 6th Brigade, C.F.A.

The twenty horses secured in Toronto from General Lessard for the use of the R.C.H.A., arrived in the city last night, and were on the parade ground this morning at Tete de Pont Barracks. They are a fine lot of animals, and are thoroughly broken to the work for which they are required.

The officers taking the R. S. A. course are taking riding lessons twice weekly, at the riding school in connection with the R. M. C. The new horses from Toronto will make it possible for the officers attending the school to get riding exercises every day.

The first eighteen-pounder quick firing Maxim gun, which will be finished at the Ottawa carriage works, will be shipped to Kingston for the use of the R.S.A. at Tete de Pont Barracks.

All officers will be compelled to take signalling to the extent of learning the semaphore. The men are taking to signalling with much spirit and in every nook and corner soldiers can be seen wagging flags.

There will be no trouble or long waiting for the assigned pay and allowances for the men of the 21st Battalion when they leave Kingston for the front. Already the list is completed to date by Lieut. Turner, paymaster for the 3rd division.

The left half section of the 21st Battalion gave their first entertainment last night at the Cereal Works. The building was crowded and the soldiers had a most enjoyable time. The responsibility for the program rested with Major McLeann, who, with the assistance of a good committee, did not fail to make the night a delightful one. Colonel Hemming, O.C. 3rd Division, and Lt.Col. Hughes were met at their car and given a splendid ovation. Headed by the piper of the section they were escorted to the hall and with Col. Ponton of Belleville, took their seats on the platform. Col. Hemming, Lt. Col. Hughes and Lt. Col. Ponton spoke and their words were loudly applauded by the men. Col. Ponton made an effort that will linger long in the memories of his hearers. After the entertainment Col. Ponton at 10 o'clock delivered his lecture at the Armouries on "Military Law."

Lt.-Col. Rathbun, O.C. 9th Brigade, C.F.A., was in the city yesterday and visited Tete du Pont Barracks. He also saw Col. Hemming on official business.

Lieut. Rhodes, in charge of the riding school at the R.M.C., has a novel way of teaching riding. Each officer has a piece of colored ribbon pinned in his cap and sides are arranged and the men are compelled to play tag. This gives the men a firm seat in the saddle and teaches them to be quick in handling the horse. The scheme is a good one and very much enjoyed by all the officers.

All But a Handful of Her Crew of Nearly Eight Hundred Perish When by Accident or Design a Terrible Explosion Occurs In Her Forward Magazines — Bulwark Was an Old But Useful Ship.

SHEERNESS, Eng., Nov. 27.—As the British battleship Bulwark was lying off here yesterday morning there occurred a terrible explosion which completely destroyed the ship. Of the crew of nearly 800 men, who were aboard at the time, only fourteen survived. The cause of the explosion is not known for a certainty, but it is believed that it occurred in her forward magazine, whether by accident or design is a question to be determined by the commission which has been appointed to investigate the whole affair.

In the opinion of naval men it was an internal explosion that put an end to the old battleship which for twelve years had done service at home and abroad, and lately had been doing her part in guarding England's shores. There was no great upheaval of water, such as would have occurred if she had been torpedoed or struck a mine. Instead the ship was enveloped in smoke and flame, and when this had cleared nothing could be seen but wreckage floating on the sea.

Houses in towns seven and eight miles away were shaken by the explosion, and even before men on ships anchored nearby could reach their own decks the Bulwark had disappeared. The neighborhood presented a terrible appearance, being strewn with an enormous amount of wreckage, while pieces of the ship were thrown six or seven miles on to the Essex shore.

Considering the size of her navy Great Britain has been singularly free from disasters of this character. Nevertheless, when the French warship Jane was destroyed by an internal explosion in 1907 all cordite ammunition was taken from all the British ships and carefully examined, and refrigerators were installed in the ships to keep the powder cool.

The Bulwark, which was one of the older battleships, cost £1,000,000 ($5,000,000). She had a tonnage of 15,000.

Though no longer on the fighting line, the Bulwark was deemed a useful unit. In her early career she was somewhat of a favored vessel and for a long time was the flagship of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford in the Mediterranean.

The Bulwark was one of the lighter types of battleships and a sister ship of the London and the Venerable. Her keel was laid down Oct. 18, 1899, and she was completed in 1902.

The Bulwark was 411 feet long, 75 feet wide and drew 29 feet. She carried four 12-inch and twelve 6-inch guns, so placed as to give her a broadside of four 12-inch guns, ahead or astern. She had four submerged torpedo tubes, and a speed of 18.5 knots.

Another eye-witness said that when the explosion occurred a great volume of flame and smoke shot into the air. The ship seemed to split in two and then heeled over and sank. She disappeared in less than five minutes.

Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, said to the House of Commons, in announcing the destruction of the battleship:

"The loss of the ship does not sensibly affect our military position, but I regret the loss of life, which was very heavy. Only 14 men were saved. All the officers and the rest of the crew, which I suppose amounted to between 700 and 800 men, perished."

SAVE THE SOIL.

Don't Let the Rains Wash the Valuable Plant Food Away.

If you knew that it takes nature 10,000 years to form a foot of soil maybe you would have a higher opinion of Mother Earth and be more careful how you drain your garden or field.

If you saw a granary full of rat holes you would suspect a careless farmer. But a field left to wash away by the unchecked rush of surface water after a downpour is fully as wasteful. The only difference is that here the waste is of plant food before it gets into the grain.

If your garden or field is on a slope, terrace it; if on a level, plant it not in straight rows, but in circles. And in both cases tile drain it, for the stuff that washes away is precisely the stuff that your crops most need. Once gone it is expensive to replace.

When you stop to think that everything depends on the soil, clearly the soil is worth saving.—Seattle Star.

A Dog Story.

We brought from Scotland a collie about six months old. He was allowed to be with us at the breakfast table, but never to be fed in the dining room. This rule was enforced by my daughter. I was the only member of the family who ever broke over the rule. And often when I offered him a tempting bone he would glance across the table, and if he caught the forbidding eye he would resist the temptation. But one morning she left the table abruptly. Rab followed her into the hall and watched her till she had closed the door of her study. Then he scampered back, nudged my elbow, as if to say, "Now is our time," seized the bone and was soon crunching it with the greatest satisfaction.—London Spectator.

Red Sea Heat.

At certain seasons of the year the Red sea is almost unbearable. The water taken from seventy to eighty feet below the surface at 6 o'clock in the morning will often register a temperature as high as 90 degrees. If, in addition, a sandstorm thinks fit to blow the whole air is full of a mist of innumerable particles of fine, hot sand, which blind and suffocate at the same time.

WEST ADDING TO CROP AREA

Government's Elevator Policy Will Aid Immensely.

The action of the Borden Government in calling for tenders for the building of a large terminal elevator at Vancouver similar to those at Moose Jaw and Saskatoon is proof of its intention to follow up this policy in an energetic and comprehensive manner until the needs of Western Canada are, in this respect, fully met. It anticipates, also, the movement of grain out through the Pacific ports, which is bound to result through the opening of the Panama Canal.

Ready For Next Season

The great increase in the acreage that is sure to be sown to grain next spring is an evidence that the Government did not to soon embark upon its elevator policy. This fall the Government elevators in Saskatchewan, besides handling a considerable quantity of farmers' grain, will probably handle several million bushels of seed grain. This of itself will be a great service at a time when it is much needed. This year the elevator machinery will be got into shape, next year it will be ready for the heavy demands thta are certain to be made upon it through the flood of wheat.

One-third Increase

In the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the acreage sown to wheat this year was 10,500,000. Many good judges say that next year this will be increased by one-third, and one of the best informed of Saskatchewan's ministers says that the increase in that province will be fully 50 per cent. Placing next year's acreage at 14,000,000, this means that, allowing for an average yield per acre, the total yield through the Prairie Provinces will not be much less than 250,000,000 bushels.

Will Save Thousands

To handle quickly this great volume of grain will throw a strain upon Western transportation and grain-handling facilities generally. As a result the terminal elevators will be much required. This will be particularly true should untoward weather conditions prevail. Several years ago thousands of dollars were lost through damaged grains, the greater part of which could have been saved had adequate elevator hospital accommodation been available at various points throughout the country.

Foresight of Government

The European war is bound to throw upon the Canadian West a demand for grain such as was never experienced before. One dollar and fifty cents wheat is in prospect. This has already been anticipated by the preparing this fall of vast new areas of land for the sowing of grain in the spring. But to grow grain and have it handled in such a way that the producer will get the most out of it are two different things. This, however, will now be rendered possible by ample accommodation provided at terminal elevator points. Canada to-day leads the world in elevator accommodation: that is, in proportion to population and grain acreage, and she leads the world also in grain-handling equipment. And this, thanks to the efforts of the Borden Government. The terminal elevator policy will stand as a monument to its foresight. Never before was it so true that the Canadian West is the grainery of the British Empire.

Before Toronto is restored to a peace footing someone should revive the story of the cat and the parrot. For weeks the parrot by every form of insult and indignity, had made the life of the house-cat almost unbearable. Finally the cat took the bird by the neck, shook its feathers all over the floor, and threw it into a corner. When the parrot recovered breath and speech it said with quiet, judicial conviction: "I know what's the matter with me, I talk too much."—Toronto Daily News.

Idea of Their Participation is Gaining Ground

PARIS, Nov. 26.—In an editorial article in the Petit Journal, M. Pichon, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, asserts that the idea of Japanese participation in the war in Europe is gradually gaining ground. He says:

"At first such a suggestion received little favor from the Chancelleries, though greatly interesting the public and the press, but it has now won at least careful examination. It has numerous partisans in Japan, France and Russia, while England welcomes it sympathetically. Germans fear it, which emphasizes its importance.

"Any fears aroused quite unjustly in the United States are disappearing. Besides, it is easy to give the American republic all the guarantees it desires.

"I see with satisfaction the progress of the proposal. Let us make one more effort, and our great far eastern ally will come to join us on the European battlefield."

Since the beginning of the war, M. Pichon has been a strong advocate of Japanese aid in the west. During his term of office he engineered the entente between Japan, Russia and France, which helped to render possible Japanese action.

OLD EGYPT HAD RAG DOLLS

(Boston Globe.)

Strange discoveries were made by Prof. T. A. Whittemore of Tufts College, while excavating in ancient Antinoe, Egypt. A portion of his collection, just arrived, contains a scrubbing brush, a rag doll, a baby's sock, and over a hundred pairs of shoes, socks, boots, sandals, and other forms of footwear which show an almost incredible resemblance to present day styles.

He shows the first and oldest boot with eyelets ever discovered in Egypt. A party slipper is made of a fine grade of leather ornamented with gold, red and black thread. It has a very elaborately carved piece of leather on the instep. The scrubbing brush which was discovered had a wooden base and bristles on both sdies.

There is a rag doll with movable arms and a head of wood. And there is a toy horse, made of wood, and a toy spade, with a bone ornament attached.

SELLS WIFE FOR $1.00

When Mrs. Stephen Bendare, twenty-two years old and pretty, went to her home in Joliet, Michigan, recently, with her four year old son, she found her husband gone.

John Wandler, who boarded at the same house, was waiting for her.

"Come here and kiss me," said John. "Steve was hard up and I bought you for $1. You're mine."

Mrs. Steve was so dazed that she let John kiss her once or twice, but when he told her to hurry up dinner she ran to a police station. Steve was found trying to buy a ticket to San Francisco for a dollar.

In the Joliet Police Court he said that he loved his wife but needed the money. The Judge told Bendare he was an easy mark, and sent him to the County Jail for thirty days. John got his dollar back.

GIVE THAT PUNY CHILD THIS GUARANTEED REMEDY

If your child is underweight, listless, ailing, liable to get sick easily, it needs a medicine to build its weight and strength. For this purpose there is nothing else know of that we can so strongly endorse as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The remarkable success of this splendid medicine is due to the fact that it contains ingredients that tone the nerves, enrich the blood and furnish to the entire system the strength, weight and health-building substances it needs. And, it does all this without injuring the stomach. In fact, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is not only pleasant to take, but even the most sensitive stomach is benefited by it, and the digestion improved. On the other hand, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, which most parents object to giving their children. It does its good work by taking hold of the weakness and builds the body up to its natural strength, at the same time making is strong to resist disease.

If Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion doesn't build your child up, feed the stunted, puny muscles, ann make the little one lively, strong, well, and full of the animal spirits children are meant by nature to have, come back and tell us and get yous money back. We don't want yoo to lose a cent. We think this is more than fair, and it leaves yoo no cause to hesitate. For old people also—for convalescents—for all who are nervous, tired-out, run-down, no matter what the cause—we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with the same guarantee of entire satisfaition or money back. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00—The Rexall Store—J. S. McKeown.

OF EVERYDAY USE TO EVERYBODY

MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN EVERYWHERE ARE QUICK TO RECOGNIZE THIS.

What is of more use to you than anything in the world?

Is it water?

Almost every one answers in the affirmative.

But wait. There are two sides to every question. The chances are that you would have but little use for water if you didn't have light and air. So, after all maybe one of these—air, for instance—is of more use to you than water.

But grant that we have sufficient light, air and water; perhaps the next great essential to our well being is learning—not necessarily grave and deep, but common, everyday education. How many of us appreciate the educational advantages offered to us in the Bible. An an educational work alone the Bible demands a place in every home, and the illustrations in this unique Bible will enhance its value 100 per cent. for purposes of learning. It portrays actual scenes in a way that will permanently impress the reader with the facts of history. There is actual need of a hand Bible in every home. The old family Bible fulfills its purpose, but is unwieldy even for occasional references, and where is the man, woman or child that cannot gain knowledge from this book?

CROWN PRINCE'S ESCAPE

Narrowly Missed Being Captured By French Dragoons

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Details of the German Crown Prince's narrow escape from French dragoons after the Marne defeat were given to me today by a French civilian who, disregarding the prohibited placards, succeeded in making the trip on a bicycle within four miles of the German trenches on the western fringe of the Argonne forests. Before the batle of the Marne, the Prince was at St. Menehold, for about a week. With the Princess, he occupied a chateau belonging to a rich drug manufacturer. M. Garaudel, who gained considerable notoriety some years ago by trying to get a huge poster advertising a cough specific atached to the Eiffel Tower. When the Germans retreated, the Crown Prince and Princess retired to the small village of Montfaucon, in the Argonne, where they lived for some days in a large house, which previously had been prepared for them.

Learning of this, the French made a furious dash on Montfaucon, which they surrounded with a regiment of dragoons, and captured several hundred Germans, but the royal party had flown. The raiders found a new subterranean passage, eight hundred yards long, connecting the house with a by-road at the farther side of a small road. There, according to natives, a motor was always waiting during the Prince's stay. It is further asserted even this would not have saved him from capture if the mayor of Montfaucon had not run to warn him when the French entered the village. For this treachery, the mayor subsequently paid with his life.

A SPARKLING LIBRETTO

Soldiers Perform Revue Within Range of Germans

PARIS, Nov. 25.—According to the Figaro, one French theatrical company did not wait for official permission to open the winter season, despite being even nearer the front than Paris itself. The Figaro announces the receipt of a manuscript review entitled "Alie Ce que Tu es Bochex," which was written by soldiers at the front and performed in a barn, actually within range of the German canon.

The dramatis personae include the Kaiser, von Jagow, von Moltke, the Crown Prince, German officers and several assassins. Among the songs are "William's Moustache," "The French Soldier," "The English and German soldier", and "Belgium's Independence", sung to the tune of the "Marseillaise." The authors demand the indulgence of the audience for the poverty of the stage setting and scenic preparation, but, says the Figaro, no apologies are needed for the libretto, which has a sparkle denoting satisfactorily the condition of the French morale.

Miss Crespigny

By

Frances Hodgson Burnett

Author of
"That Lass o' Lowrie's"
etc., etc.

"Another party?" asked Mrs. Despard.

"Oh yes!" said Lisbeth. "And of course, a little music, and then a little supper, and a little dancing, and all that sort of thing." And she frowned impatiently.

Mrs. Despard looked at her in some displeasure.

"You are in one of your humors, again, Lisbeth," she said sharply.

"Why shouldn't I be?" answered Miss Crespigny, not a whit awed by patronage. "People's humors are their privileges. I would not help mine if I could. I like them because they are my own private property, and no one else can claim them."

"I should hardly think any one would want to claim yours," said Mrs. Despard, dryly, but at the same regarding the girl with a sort of curiosity.

Lisbeth Crespigny shrugged her shoulders — those oddly expressive shoulders of hers. A "peculiar girl," even the mildest of people called her, and as to her enemies, what did they say of her? And her enemies were not in the minority. But "peculiar" was an unnatural term to apply to her. She was "peculiar." Seeing her kneeling close before the fender this winter evening, one's first thought would have been that she stood curiously apart from other girls. Her very type was her own, and no one had been heard to say of any other woman, "she is like" Lisbeth Crespigny." She crouched upon the leopard-skin rug in an odd attitude. She was rather small of figure, but she had magnificent hair; her black brows and lashes were a wonder of beauty; her eyes were dark, mysterious, supercilious, and in size actually immense. She often frightened people. She frightened modest people with her nerve and coolness, bold people with her savage sarcasms, quiet people with her moods. She alarmed Mrs. Despard occasionally, when she had first come to live with her; but after three years, Mrs. Despard, who was strong of nerve herself, had become used to her caprices, though she had not got over being curious and interested in spite of herself.

She was a widow, this Mrs. Despard. She had been an ambitious nobody in her youth, and having had the luck to marry a reasonably rich man, her ambition had increased with her good fortune. She was keen, like Lisbeth, quick-witted, restless, and not too spiritual. She had no children, no cares, and thus having no particular object in life, formed one for herself in thus making herself pleasingly conspicuous in society. It was her whim to be conspicuous; not in a vulgar way, however; she was far too clever for that. She wished to have a little social court of her own, and to reign supreme in it. It was not rich people she wanted at her entertainments, nor powerful people; it was talented people—people, shall it be said, who would admire her ascetic soirees, and talk about her a little afterward, and feel the distinction of being invited to her house. And it was because Lisbeth Crespigny was "peculiar" that she had picked her up.

During a summer visit to a quaint, picturesque village on the Welsh coast, she had made the acquaintance of the owners of a quaint, picturesque cottage, whose picturesqueness had taken her fancy. Three elderly maiden ladies were the Misses Tregarthyn, and Lisbeth was their niece, and the apple of each gentle spinster's eye. "Poor dear Phillip's daughter," and poor, dear Phillip, who had been their half-brother, and the idol of their house, had gone abroad, and "seen the world," and after marrying a French girl, who died young, had died himself, and left Lisbeth to them as a legacy. And then they had transferred their adoration and allegiance to Lisbeth, and Lisbeth, as her manner was, accepted it is her right, and taken it rather coolly. Mrs. Despard had found her, at seventeen years oild, a restless, lawless ambitious young woman, a young woman when any other girl would have been just a child. She found her shrewd, well-read, daring, and indifferent to audacity; tired of the picturesque little village, secretly a trifle tired of being idolized by the three spinisters, inwardly longing for the chance to try her mettle in the big world. Then, too, she had another reason for wanting to escape from the tame old life. In the dearth of excitement, she had been guilty of the weakness of drifting into what she now called an "absurd flirtation," which had actually ended in an equally absurd engagement, and of which she now, not absurdly, as she thought, was tired.

"I scarcely know how it happened," she said, with cool scorn, to Mrs. Desparo, when they knew each other well enough to be confidential. "It was my fault, I suppose. If I had left alone, he would have left me alone. I think I am possessed of a sort of devil, sometimes when I have nothing to do. And he is such a boy," with a shrug, "though he is actually twenty-three. And then my aunts knew his mother when she was a girl. And she when he came to Pen'yllan, he must come here and stay with them, and they must encourage him to admire me. And I would like to know what woman is going to stand that." ("Woman, indeed!" thought Mrs. Despard.) "And then of course he had some sense of his own, or at least he has what will be sense some day. And he began to be rather entertaining after a while; and we boated, and walked, and talked, and read, and at last I was actually such a little fool as to let it end in a sort of promise, for which I was sorry the minute it was half made. If he had kept it to himself, it wouud not have been so bad; but of course, being such a boyish animal, he must confide in Aunt Millicent, and Aunt Millicent must tell the others; and then they must gush, and cry, and kiss me, as if everything was settled, and I was to be married in ten minutes, and bid them an everlasting farewell in fifteen minutes. So I began to snub him that instant, and have snubbed him ever since in hopes he would get as tired of me as I am of him. But he won't. He does nothing but talk rubbish, and says he will bear it for my sake. And the fact is, I am beginning to hate him; and it serves me right."

She had always interested Mrs. Despard, but she interested her more than ever after this explanation. She positively fascinated her; and the end of it all was, that when the lady left Pen'yllan, she carried Lisbeth with her. The Misses Tregarthyn wept, and appealed, and only gave in, under protest, at last, because Lisbeth was stroner than the whole trio. She wanted to see the world, she said. Mrs. Despard was fond of her. She had money enough to make her so far independent, that she could return when whim seized her; and she was tired of Pen'yllan. So, why should she not go? She might only stay a month, or a week, but, however that was she had made up her mind to see lift. While the four fought their battle out, Mrs. Despard looked on and smiled. She knew Lisbeth would win, and of course Lisbeth did. She packed her trunk and went her way. But the night before her departure she had an interview with poor Hector Anstruthers, who came to the garden to speak to her, his boyish face pale and haggard, his sea-blue eyes wild and hollow with despair; and like the selfish, heartless, cool, little wretch that she was she put an end to his pleading peremptorily.

"No!" she said. "I would rather you would not write to me. I want to be let alone; and it is because I want to be let alone that I am going away from Pen'yllan. I never promised one of the things you are always insisting that I promised. You may call me as many hard names as you like, but you can't deny that——"

"No " burst forth the poor lad, in a frenzy. "You did not promise, but you let me understand——"

"Understand!" echoed his young tyrant. "I tried hard enough to make you understand that I wanted to be let alone. If you had been in your right senses, you might have seen what I meant. You have driven me almost out of my mind, and you must take the consequences." And then she turned away and left him, stunned and helpless, standing, watching her as she trailed over the grass between the lines of rose-bushes, the moonlight falling on her white dress, and the little light-blue scarf she had thrown over her long, loose, dusky hair.

Three years ago all this had happened, and she was with Mrs. Despard still, though of coarse she had visited Pen'yllan occasionally. She had not tired her patroness, if patroness she could be called. She was not the sort of girl to tire people of their fancy for her. She was too clever, too cool, too well-poised. She interested Mrs. Despard as much to-day as she had done in the first week of their acquaintance. She was just as much of a study for even, even in her most vexatious moods.

"Have you a headache?" asked Mrs. Despard, after a while.

"No," answered Lisbeth.

"Have you had bad news from Pen'yllan?"

Lisbeth looked up, and answered Mrs Despard with a sharp curiousness.

"How did you know I had heard from Pen'yllan? she demanded.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Despard, "I guessed so from the fact that you seemed to have no other reason for being out of humor; and lately that has always been a sufficient one."

"I cannot see why it should be," said Lisbeth, tartly. "What can Pen'yllan have to do with my humor?"

"But you have had a letter?" said Mrs. Despard.

"Yes: from Aunt Clarissa. There is no bad news in it, however. Indeed no news at all. How did I ever exist there?" her small, wan face lowering.

"You would not like to go back?" suggested Mrs. Despard.

Lisbeth shrugged her shoulders.

"Would you like me to go back?" she questioned.

"?" in some impatience. "You know as well as I do, that I canot do without you. You would never miss me, Lisbeth, as I should miss you. It is not your way to attach yourself to people."

"How do you know?" interposed Lisbeth. "What can you know about me? What can any one man or woman know of another? That is nonsense."

"It is the truth, nevertheless," was the reply.

THREE AIDES OF DUKE HAVE BEEN IN ACTION

Major Rivers Bulkeley Killed and Two Wounded

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—When war was declared four members of the personal staff of the Duke of Connaught at Ottawa left for the front. Three of the officers have been in action in France. One, Major Rivers Bulkeley, was killed at Ypres, and the other two, Capt. Boscawen and Lieut. Graham, have been wounded in action. Colonel Farquhar, who was military secretary to His Royal Highness, is commanding the Princess Patricia Regiment and will see active service in the course of a few weeks. In addition to these four, Col. Lowther, was was military secretary to the Duke when he first came to Canada, was wounded in the early days of the German invasion of France. He has since been promoted to be brigadier-general.

Confirmation of the wounding of Lieut. Graham was received by Government House to-day. He was A.D. C. to the Duke and was exceedingly popular in Ottawa society. He left as soon as war broke out to join his regiment, the Queen's Royal Lancers.

How to Prevent Acid Stomachs And Food Fermentation

BY A STOMACH SPECIALIST

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy, and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties—F. J. G.

HAD HIS "MAP" STAMPED

Jack Johnson's Request Puzzled Lackeys at American Embassy

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Jack Johnson, accompanied by his white wife and attended by his usual retinue of managers and sparring partners, invaded the American Embassy today and clamored to have "my may stamped."

The English lackeys failed to understand this novel request and Johnson's words remained unintelligible until Elbridge Gerry Greene, the Third Secretary, translated them into a request to have the photograph on the pugilist's passport stamped with the State Department seal.

Johnson and scores of other Americans went through that ceremony as a result of the embassy's announcement that all passports must have the likeness of the bearer adorned with the seal, thus demonstrating that the document is not being used for some one other than the person for whom it was issued.

STOP WASTE OF GRAIN

Strict Regulations for Bakers in Germany

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 25.—To obtain exact information as to the food supplies in the country, a census of animals is to be taken throughout the German Empire on December 1. Cattle, sheep, pigs, goats and horses are to be enumerated.

As the result of a conference between the Government and the Berlin bakers, the baking of bread more than twice a day has been prohibited in order to prevent the waste of grain due to the fact that the public always insists on having new bread. The sale of stale bread as food for cattle is declared illegal, and is enacted that as much stale bread as possible shall be re-baked to appear as new.

It is estimated that these steps will result in saving twelve thousand pounds of flour per day in Berlin alone.

BAVARIANS ARE ANGRY

Many Cases of Friction With the Prussians

LONDON, Nov. 26.—More stories of dissatisfaction of the Bavarian troops are reaching here. A Paris despatch to the Standard supplements the accounts of the fraternizing of French and Bavarian outposts in the Vosges region.

"There will be an attack tonight, but you can rely upon us firing into the air. We shall be replaced by Prussians in a day or two, and I will let you know when this occurs."

"This," says the Standard's correspondent, "is what a Bavarian officer said to a French lieutenant, who walked boldly into the enemy's trenches four days ago. Of course, the statement represents an extreme case, but there is little doubt that serious friction exists between the Bavarian and the Prussians, who are fighting together. Several incidents reported go far to prove this.

"Bavarians and Prussians have undoubtedly come to blows regarding the Queen of the Belgians, who is a Bavarian princess. Further, it is now reported that a serious disagreement has arisen between the Imperial Chancellor and the Prime Minister of Bavaria. What is undeniable is that the Bavarian troops take every possible opportunity to surrender.

"From another part of the front, at Quesney, a letter to hand says that when the Germans saw that the French Red Cross men occupied themselves with the German wounded as well as with their own, over 200 deserted during the night. They came to the French and told them that if only all the Bavarians could be sure that they would be humanely treated three would surrender outright."

TO DESTROY ZEPPELINS

Frenchman Invents Bomb Explodable by Flimsy Fabrics

PARIS, Nov. 26.—According to the Eclair, a Grenoble jeweller, Anthony Jacques has invented an arrow bomb for destroying Zeppelins which is quite harmless when it strikes a hard surface even with great froce, although it can be set to act as a percussion bomb if desired. Experiments made yesterday morning at Grenoble, before party of investigators, including, M. Morad, the local fire chief, showed that when the arrow bomb struck a comparatively flimsy fabric, like the envelope of a dirigible, it promptly exploded, but when thrown violently against a steel plate fell harmlessly to the ground. The Inventor says these bombs could be cheaply and rapidly fabricated, and suggests that they might be thrown from aeroplanes in handfuls. He placed his invention at the disposal of the War Department.

How to be Sure

Shopkeepers and merchants throughout the Dominion are giving magnificent support to the "Made in Canada" movement.

Occasionally a shopkeeper, through lack of accurate information, may express the opinion that a certain class of article is not made in Canada, or is made only of an inferior grade.

If you are conscientiously trying to give "Made in Canada" goods first call in all your purchases, do not be content to relax your efforts just because you happen to receive this answer.

The shopkeeper may be perfectly sincere in his opinion, but there are other people who are more likely to have full and accurate information.

Why not write direct to the Canadian Manufacturers Association, Montreal, Toronto or Winnipeg? They have agreed to constitute themselves a general information bureau for the assistance of those who are trying to live up to the "Made in Canada" idea, and a line to them will always bring you prompt and reliable information, as to how and where to obtain the article you desire most conveniently and most quickly. If it is not made in Canada they will frankly tell you so.

DR. BELAND WOUNDED.

Canadian M. P. Hit By a Shell at Defence of Antwerp.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27—Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, M.P. for Beauce, and member of the Laurier Cabinet previous to 1911, who has been serving British arms in Belgium since the outbreak of the war, was seriously wounded in three places by a German shell in the defence of Antwerp.

Letters to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. E. M. Macdonald, M.P. for Pictou, Nova Scotia, just received from officers of the British marines who escaped to Holland, tell the story of the former French-Canadian Minister's bravery and devotion. These letters are dated Nov. 2, and pay glowing tribute to the service and sacrifice of the gallant Canadian.

Hon. Dr. Beland was, according to the letter received by Mr. Macdonald, who was in Toronto yesterday, ministering as a medical man to four British marines who had been wounded in the German bombardment of Antwerp. Despite the British officer's caution, he went forward to the field to dress their wounds making the comment, "I am here to serve." The bombardment at the time was, the writer says, "very severe," and a shell bursting within a few feet of where he was dressing a bluejacket's leg, struck him in three places, inflicting ugly, but it is hoped not fatal wounds. Dr. Beland was carried back, and the marines were anxious that he should accompany them to Holland. He absolutely refused, however, telling the subaltern who was sent for him that he wanted to stay at his post. He was, when the British forces left Antwerp, at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Antwerp.

"Tell my friends at home not to worry," was the message sent by Dr. Beland from his bed. "Tell them I am all right."

A. A. Boggs, a prominent Florida attorney, and his daughter Marjorie, 18 years of age, were found murdered, with the skulls crushed, in the charred ruins of their fine country home near Miami, Fla.

Charles Phillips, of Detroit, who was to have married Miss Louise Johnson, of Windsor, died from lockjaw yesterday as a result of stepping on a nail while going over the new home the couple were to have occupied.

SPIES IN DOCKYARDS.

Lord Haldane Says Britons Are Giving Away Secrets.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Morning Post's naval correspondent, in discussing the theory that the battleship Bulwark was lost through an internal explosion, gives a technical description of how artificial detonation may be caused, and then says: "Members of his Majesty's Government may endeavor to persuade the public that the danger of German spies is exaggerated, and also that the authorities are dealing with it adequately. The fact remains that his Majesty's dockyards are infested with spies. If evidence of that statement is required the answer is that evidence is in the possession of the naval authorities. The Lord Chancellor, on Wednesday committed himself to the statement that the dangerous spies in this country were not German, but were British. Some of the information which had been given could only have been given by people who had access to it because they were British. His belief was that we had every little of this kind of thing, but that we had some, and that it was formidable he could not doubt."

KREISLER IN AMERICA.

Great Violinist's Wound Will Not Affect His Playing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — Lieutenant Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian violinist, and his wife returned from Europe on the steamer Rotterdam. Both served with the Austrian army, Mrs. Kreisler as a Red Cross nurse and his husband with his regiment, the Third Gratzer Jaeger Regiment.

"We were in the trenches near Lemberg when the Cossacks made a night attack on Sept. 16," said the violinist. "They rode right over our trenches and a horse's hoof struck me a glancing blow. Its rider then jabbed me in the right thigh with his lance. I shot him dead.

"My orderly found me several hours later and got me back to the field hospital. There were so many there that I was sent to Vienna. Mrs. Kreisler came and nursed me. I shall be all right in a few weeks and my wound will not affect my playing."

Kaiser Saw Troops Defeated.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—"The Emperor of Germany last week witnessed in East Prussia from a hill called Obernlagen, a German defeat at the hands of the Russians," says the Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail. The Emperor took an abrupt leave of the commander-in-chief, asking him to convey his greetings to the troops.

ALLIES ARE WINNING SAYS SECRETARY OF WAR

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener yesterday afternoon made a speech in the House of Lords, where he summarized the war's operations. Among other things, Earl Kitchener said:—

"The Russians have defeated the Germans with the heaviest losses yet suffered; the Germans have made no advance since I last addressed this House; the British are in touch with Turkish forces thirty miles east of the Suez Canal."

While the losses of the allies were admitted by Earl Kitchener to be great, at the same time, he said, they have been slight compared with those of the enemy. He added that the allied troops are in excellent spirits and confident of success.

Regarding recruiting, Earl Kitchener said that he still had room for men, and he was confident that the men would answer the country's call and see that the war was brought to a successful conclusion.

"The time will come," said Earl Kitchener, "when we shall require many more and I will then make it thoroughly well known."

Sir John French's successful resistance to the German advance, Lord Kitchener told the Lords, was maintained, notwithstanding that the German supports had been pushed up in large numbers. "In the early days of November," he continued, "no less than eleven army corps were attacking the British position. At this critical period the eighth division was despatched from England to join the forces in the field, and the valuable co-operation of our allies on our left materially strengthen the British position.

"Strong French reinforcements occupied a considerable portion of the British trenches in front of Ypres, and with their front thus appreciably shortened, the British troops which for over 14 days and nights had never left the trenches or allowed the enemy to maintain a footing in them, were enabled to enjoy a partial well-earned rest."

LATIN REPUBLICS TO UNITE.

They Want To Bar Belligerent Ships From American Waters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — The U. S. Government has been asked by the principal nations of South America to co-operate with them in negotiations with the belligerent powers of Europe to bring about the exclusion of all belligerent warships from the waters of the two Americas and safeguard the trade of pan-American countries with each other.

Argentina, Chile and Uruguay have laid their suggestions before the Washington Government, while Brazil is considering the advisabality of taking a similar step. Practically all the Central and South American countries have been circularized by some of the principal nations, resulting in a series of diplomatic conferences in Washington and the capitals of South America, which are now in progress.

While the proposals are different in character and scope, they all seek the same end—the restoration of the trade between North and South America, paralyzed by the European war. The movement also has for its object the removal of possible causes of serious friction between the countries of this hemisphere and the European belligerents on questions of neutrality.

Already Chile, Ecuador and Colombia have had serious difficulties with the belligerents over the use of the wireless and the coaling of foreign warships, whose presence in the Atlantic and Pacific is growing obnoxious to South American countries.

The Peruvian cruiser Colonel Bolognesi, has been assigned to patrol the coast of Peru in order that the neutrality of the country may be preserved.

Another cruiser will sail to-day to do scout duty along the southern coast. Both cruisers are under orders to protect British steamers, by force if necessary. As a result of this action by the Government, steamships will renew their voyages immediately.

VILLA GIVES GUARANTEE.

Arrival of His Troops In Mexican Capital Will Be Free From Looting.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — The forces of Gen. Zapata are preserving order in Mexico City, according to advices reaching the State Department yesterday through various channels, and the agents of Gen. Villa in the capital are co-operating in these efforts. It was not known last night whether any of Villas' troops had entered the city.

An official report from American Consul Carruthers, who is accompanying Gen. Villa, was received last night, however, which said Villa had renewed his promises that there would be no looting or disorder after he entered the capital, and that the rights of all residents, native or foreign, would be respected.

Gen. Carranza has arrived amid acclaim in Vera Cruz, where he has established his provisional capital, from which he will conduct his campaign against Villa.

Yeggman Accuses Detectives.

SASKATOON, Nov. 27. — Chief of Detectives Fred. R. Springers and Detective Fred. W. Reeves were formally suspended from police force and placed under surveillance at a special meeting of the police commission held yesterday. This action was taken as the result of the confession of Frank Heaton, a yeggman, arrested some time ago in Edmonton, who said that the two detectives in question, who constitute the whole detective force of this town, had permitted these men to remain in Saskatoon, although they knew them to be crooks, and had promised them protection, provided they did not operate in the city.

GERMANS SURROUNDED

Russian Victory Is Greatest in Modern Times.

Rumors at Petrograd Say That the Grand Duke Has Utterly Crushed the Enemy, Capturing or Destroying 100,000 Men—Russians Are Now Well In the Rear of the Invading Army.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Officials who have the ear of the Ministry of War, have been told privately that the Russians have won the greatest victory of modern times between the Warta and the Vistula, and about 60 miles from Warsaw.

The report is that the Grand Duke Nicholas' armies have utterly crushed Gen. von Hindenburg's divided army, have captured or destroyed 100,000 men and have cut off the retreat of the surviving corps.

"The German army which has been crushed and dispersed from the region of Lodz," says the Petrograd correspondent of The Daily News, "is Gen. von Machenzen's army. A portion of this army is now hastening back due north in the hope of being able to cross the Vistula in the region of Plock.

"Gen. von Hindenburg has ordered the army of Gen. Francois, which was engaged for some weeks in the Soldau Neidenberg country, to redouble its efforts to break through the Russian army westward of Miawa. More reinforcements have been sent him from Thorn, but the Russians still keep their grip on the railway inside the East Prussian frontier."

The London Daily Telegraph has a despatch from Granville Fortescue, its special correspondent:

"Disaster once more has overtaken the Germans in Poland. Their second army of invasion is smashed. Not only has their flank been cut, but the Russians are well in the rear of the German army.

"The battle of Koluski is the crowning victory of the campaign in Poland. What is left of the German army is still being pursued. Surrounded by a wall of Russians and in terror of the steel of the Cossacks, the enemy is fighting with the desperation of despair to regain his own frontier.

"When the final cost is counted, Koluski will be found a greater blow to German hopes than either Lemberg or the San.

"Koluski, which is about 20 miles directly east of Lodz, and is a junction of three railroads whereby the troops might reach the Vistula valley, was of vital importance to the Germans. In order to anticipate a counter-attack, they made a demonstration against Lodz. This effort only infuriated the Russians, who, balked for the moment of their prey over the Silesian border, turned to face the foe on the new quarter.

"It has been an axiom among military authorities that the Russians cannot take the offensive. Bury that axiom right here. They took the offensive like maddened wild-cats, and they fought rings around the Germans. Admitting their numerical superiority, their victory is none the less brilliant, considering the difficulties involved in their change of front. The undoing of the Germans was their contempt for the Russians' numbers. You cannot disregard numbers when the opposing troops are as well armed as you are.

"The battle of Koluski still rages and straggling regiments of Prussians are even now fighting their way out of the swamps and over the foothills, Cossacks surrounding them like wolves."

OUTRAGES IN GALICIA.

Hungarians Said To Have Committed Cruelties on Populace.

LEMBERG, Galicia, Nov. 27.—(Via Petrograd and London.) — A committee appointed to investigate conditions in Galicia reports that there have been wholesale murders, executions and excesses of every description in war-swept Galicia. Thousands of starving and homeless families give evidence of these conditions.

The Russian population, the committee says, suffered most severely, less from natural consequences of war than from the cruelty of Austrian officials, who always suspected the loyalty of the Galician population.

The committee reports it established the fact that in seven counties 258 men have been shot or hanged, including two priests. Throughout Galicia it is estimated 10,000 arrests have been made and 1,000 executions have taken place.

Most of these outrages are said by the committee to have been committed by Hungarians. It is stated that Cossacks, who were pursuing a detachment of Hungarians, found the body of one Russian girl who had been crucified.

Bomb Factory In New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — Chance may have placed in the hands of the police information which the most careful search had failed to reveal. As the result of an explosion which took place in a dingy six-storey tenement house at No. 132 Cherry street Wednesday night, it seems likely that a bomb factory has been brought to light, where missiles which have imperilled the lives of many people may have been made. Not only are the police hopeful of finding the materials from which these bombs were made, but the men who manufactured and planted them, as well.

DIXMUDE RECAPTURED?

London Daily Mail Says French Marines Did the Trick.

German Troops Are Reported to Be Pouring Into Western Belgium on a Large Scale Accompanied by Big Guns—Arras Is Expected To Be Next Point of Kaiser's Attack.

LONDON, Nov. 27. — The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Dunkirk, France, telegraphs that Dixmude has been retaken by the allies. He says: —

"The French marines attacked the town strongly on Tuesday night and drove the Germans out of three lines of advanced trenches. On Wednesday they followed this up by entering the town in an irresistible charge.

"The enemy did not halt in their retreat until they were seven miles out of the town. The marines lost 300 men."

New movements of German troops into western Belgium from Germany are under way on a large scale, and much heavy artillery is being sent forward from Essen.

Train loads of pontoons have been sent to the canal region between Arras and the coast.

The next attack is expected to be delivered with its greatest force near Arras.

The correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"Two days ago to the south of Dixmude, where the Germans are still concentrating large bodies of infantry and cavalry, the enemy has made an attempt to throw a pontoon across the Yser. Nearly 200 men engaged were covered by a powerful German battery. So well was the German plan arranged that the Franco-Belgian forces could not possibly have prevented the construction of the bridge without losing heavily. The Germans completed three parts of the task when up came a British armored train roaring and spitting death. It raced into sight quite suddenly not more than a thousand metres from the nearly-completed bridge, and the 200 German sappers were taken completely by surprise. They dropped their tools and bolted. Many did not get far, as four of the train's guns and half a dozen mitrailleuses hurled a perfect tornado of shot and shell at them. In less than five minutes nearly a hundred engineers were killed, about fifty more were wounded, and their handiwork had been blown to splinters. It was undoubtedly a magnificent bit of work. The armored train did not have everything its own way. To get within range of the bridge, the train had to be exposed to the fire of a German battery which had been keeping a watchful eye on the construction of the pontoon. The enemy's guns managed to hit a store truck at the end of the train and one of the guns was also put out of action.

The official communication issued last night by the French War Office reported comparative quiet throughout the day. Heavy snowfalls occurred at various points along the line. The communique says:

"In Belgium complete calm prevailed.

"In the centre there was cannonading, but no infantry attacks.

"There is nothing of importance to report from the Argonne. There was a small engagement to the east of Verdun."

Q. O. R. MEN LUCKY.

Privates Smith and Griffin of Toronto Now Lieutenants In Gordons.

SALISBURY, Eng., Nov. 27.—Two privates in the Queen's Own Rifles have fallen into luck. They are W. F. Eardley Smith, of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto, and Sydney H. Griffin, formerly an employe of the T. Eaton Co. They are now second lieutenants in the famous Gordon Highlanders.

The British regiments are greatly in need of officers owing to the heavy casualty lists, and the fact that the Canadian force has more than 200 officers, who are not required, will be considered more or less of a blessing. There is every chance that many of these officers will be found within a short time attached to Kitchener's huge army, which is now training all over the country. They can get placed easily, according to reports.

Smith and Griffin had been members of the machine gun squad of the Queen's Own for two years. Lieut. "Mato" Macdonald, who is in command of this section, stated that they were about the most experienced men he had.

Russian Troops at Servia.

LONDON, Nov. 27. — The Times' correspondent at Sofia, Bulgaria, reports that Russian troops have arrived in Servia to assist the Servians in fighting the Austrians.

"Fifteen regiments of Russian troops with seventy barge loads of ammunition and supplies have arrived at the Servian town of Raduievatz," The Times' correspondent says. "They made the 500-mile trip up the Danube from Russian territory. They will be rushed to the front to assist the Servians."

Cold on Fighting Lines.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(By wireless to London.)—In the eastern theatre of the war the weather generally is clear but frosty, the temperature averaging 10 degrees centigrade, below zero. At Cracow fog alternates with snow.

In Flanders the rain continues and the temperature is near the freezing point. A low temperature prevails in the Lorraine plateau. In the Vosges the crests of the mountains are covered with about six inches of snow.

General Is Wounded.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27. — A despatch from Berlin says that Gen. von Der Goltz was wounded in the face while visiting the wounded in the trenches.

Fears Anti-Christians Riots.

ROME, Nov. 27.—The Italian consul at Jerusalem has requested the Foreign Office of his Government to despatch warships to Jaffa, fearing anti-Christian riots there. It is reported that the subjects of the allies in Jerusalem have been imprisoned and maltreated by the Turks, who have also looted houses there.

Helps Some.

"A small appetite." — Boston Transcript.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26.—Trading was quiet on the wheat market today, few transactions, and options and even these of small amounts. There were no cables from Liverpool until very late and with American markets closed, today being Thanksgiving Day in the United States, the news was scarce. Wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c lower, flax being unquoted.

Cash demand was good for Nos. 1, 3 and 4 wheat, and exporters were the buyers. Demand for cash oats and barley was practically dead, there being no buyers, while offerings were fair.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—There was no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today, and the few bids that did come forward were 1s to 1s 6d per quarter under what exporters offered to sell the different grades at. A fair trade continues to be in coarse grains for domestic account, there being a steady demand for carlots at unchanged prices. The demand from foreign buyers for low-grade spring wheat flour is good, but as millers are closely sold up of such for some little time to come they are not in a position to accept any of the orders, but sales of 10,000 sacks of export patent were made for December-January shipment to London at 34s 6d. Demand for millfeed is brisk, and millers have turned orders for round lots for December delivery at full prices.

Butter is quiet with an easy undertone, but the feeling in cheese is very firm with a good enquiry for supplies from English importers.

Eggs active and firm. Potatoes easier at a decline of 5c per bag. Dressed hogs weak at a further decline of 50c per 100 pounds.

CHEESE MARKETS.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 26.—At today's cheese board meeting the offerings were 878 colored and 220 white. The sales were 870 colored and 200 white at 14¾c. and 64 colored at 14 13-16c. It is the last meeting of the season.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 3000; market steady; beeves, $5.35 to $10.50; western steers, $5.40 to $9; cows and heifers, $3.60 to $9.20; calves, $8.25 to $11.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 17,000; market higher; light, $7 to $7.60; mixed, $7.25 to $7.70; heavy, $7.20 to $7.75; rough, $7.20 to $7.30; pigs, $5 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $7.40 to $7.60.

Sheep—Receipts, 3000; market higher; native, $3.50 to $6.15; yearlings, $6.50 to $8; lambs, native, $6.75 to $9.35.

Town Not Damaged.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—Aviators returning from the Austrian fortress of Przemysl say, according to a despatch received here from Budapest, that the Russian bombardment has not done the slightest damage to the town. The defenders of the fortress are reported to be showing the greatest and keenest activity and to be continually repulsing the Russians. The fortress has provisions for a year, the airmen assert, and the garrison is in excellent spirits.

Actor Robert Lorraine Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Robert Lorraine, the well-known English actor and aviator, who is a second lieutenant in the British flying corps, is among the wounded reported from army headquarters under date of Nov. 23. Mr. Lorraine, who was one of the earliest and most enthusiastic of the English aviators, narrowly escaped death in a flight across the Irish Sea three years ago.

To Lambaste.

"Lambaste" is a sinewy, heroic word. We prefer it to its variant "lambust." And it is a word of respectable age. "Stand off awhile and see how I'll lambaste him" was written in 1637. It comes from the word "lam," to beat soundly, and "baste," which means the same thing. The tautology is here only intensive. But the word should always be spelled with a final "e."—London Standard.

GERMANS CONTROL PEKIN PRESS

It is announced from Pekin that no British newspaper is to be published in that city, the Germans having bought up the Pekin Gazette, and in addition taken over the financial control of the entire Press in Pekin. They have also a controlling interest in important native organs in Tientsin. These facts fully account for the Chinese opposition to the driving of the Germans out of that portion of China in which they established themselves.

OTTAWA MAN LIKELY TO COMMAND GUN BATTERY RAISED BY SOME WEALTHY MEN IN MONTREAL

Another splendid offer of aid has been secured from Montreal. Several gentlemen of that city have offered to bear the expense of equipping a machine gun battery.

It is understood that the offer of the battery was made to the minister of militia, through Mr. C. B. Gorden, of Montreal, who is one of the heaviest contributors toward meeting the the expense of the battery.

It is reported that Eddie Holland, the Ottawa boy who won the Victoria Cross in South Africa, is likely to be entrusted with the command of the battery.

Shooting For Turkeys and Geese

Yesterday afternoon a number of the members of the Belleville Rifle Club and others participated in a shoot for fowls at Mr. N. N. Roblin's place in Amelinsburg Township. The result was most satisfactory to the local sports, who secured several fowls. In the rifle shoot the competitors from this city secured eight turkeys, the winners and number being as follows:—C. C. Walker, 2 turkeys; G. Ellis, 2 turkeys; H. Sneyd, 1 turkey; W. J. Andrews, 1 turkey; J. W. Davison, 1 turkey; A. T. Stewart, 1 turkey; J. Haggerty, 1 goose.

In the trap shooting at clay birds, Mr. H. Howie won 2 turkeys and Mr. R. Spafford bagged 2 turkeys and a goose.

BANCROFT NOTES

(From the Times)

Sunday was a very cold day, the theremometer here registering nine degrees below zero.

Judge Deroche held court here on Friday last to hear complaints of errors and omissions in the voters' list for 1914. Six names were added and fifteen struck off.

A cousin of Mr. Geo. Paton of this vallage was killed in an engagement on the Yser, and a brother had his finger shot off. Both were attached to the Scots Greys.

On Thursday evening last Postmaster George and his staff took possession of the office just completed on the site of the one destroyed by fire in the big holocaust on the 25th of July last. The new building is a very imposing little structure of brick veneer, and serves the purpose of dwelling and postoffice combined. It is very conveniently arranged, and provides splendid accommodation for both the public and the staff.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

GERMANS COULD HAVE SAVED DROWNING BRITISH SAILORS

French Captain Tells of Barbarian Act When Cruisers Monmouth and Good Hope Were Sunk

SANTIAGO Chile, Nov. 26.—The British sailors who perished off the Chilean coast when the German fleet sank the cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth might have been saved, had the Germans made an effort to rescue them. This is admitted by the Germans themselves according to a sworn statement here today by the Captain of the French barque Valentine, which was sunk off Juan Ferandez Islands. The captain and crew were held prisoners on a German warship for ten days. The captain asserted the Germans said they might have saved numberous Englishmen who were in the water, but deliberately let them drown.

The crew of the Valentine were shamefully treated for refusing to aid in the transhipment of coal to the warship. The Germans robbed the Valentine of everything before sinking her.

Crisis of War For Allies Over

along the forty-mile line from Lowicz south to Koluszki, on the railroad, the Russian anrmies from Warthe were launched against the German flank at Szadek, fifteen miles east of Sieradz. The German line was driven back, and their advanced forces, near Lodz were taken in flank and rear.

"The German advance from Wielun, half way between Sieradz and Czenstochowa, shows the importance that they are giving to this campaign in Poland. By their invasion from Thorn they hoped to draw the Russians northward. The advance of the Austrians to the Pilica river was, on the other hand, intended to draw Russian troops in this direction. The advance from Wielun was then launched in the hope of finding the Russian centre sufficiently weakened to give way before the German onslaught.

"The Russians have made an important gain in checking the German dash toward Warsaw. In every field they have foiled the German plans.

INVADING HUNGARY.

"The Russian advance to Mezo Labore and Homonna in Hungary, on the line between Przemysl and Kassau, shows the beginning of a new Cossack invasion of the Hungarian plains.

"The Servian claim of a victory over the Austrians along the Kolubara river shows that the former are determined to make a stubborn resistance before they surrender their ancient capital. The announcement indicates only a small skirmish, but it also shows that the Austrians have made no important advance in the last five days. The Servians are adepts in the hill fighting that is taking place in this region.

"If the Austrians wish to make progress in this campaign, they must devote at least 400,000 men to it, with consequent reduction in their fighting strength in the north."

Col. Williams Has Gone to France

May be on Gen. French's Staff—Toronto Man Dead at Salisbury

SALISBURY PLAIN, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Col. Victor Williams of Ottawa, Camp Commandant of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, has gone to France, and may join General French's staff.

George Edward Reeves of the 17th Battalion of the Canadian Contingent died here today. His relatives reside at 76 Vanauley street, Toronto.

An Odd Problem.

Can you place ten lumps of sugar in three teacups so that there is an odd number of lumps in each cup? A statistician to whom this problem was once propounded declared it was impossible to accomplish such a feat, but the following explanation shows that it is not only possible, but very easy to accomplish: Put one lump in one cup, two lumps in another cup and seven lumps in the third cup, and then put the cup with one lump in the cup with the two lumps. By placing the cup that holds one lump inside the one that holds two lumps it can be correctly stated that every cup contains an odd number of lumps, for if a cup contains another cup it also contains the contents of that second cup.

Consoling.

Noticing that his lady cashier was weeping copiously and sucking her finger, the proprietor asked her what was the matter.

Sobbingly she told him she had p-p-inched her f-f-finger in the cash register.

"Never mind, little girl," he said. "A great many more cashiers got pinched before there were any cash registers."—Indianapolis Star.

The Worm Turned.

"Is any one waiting on you?" finally asked the haughty saleslady, condescending at last to notice the shopping person.

"I'm afraid not," replied the latter. "My husband was—I left him outside—but I'm afraid he's become disgusted and gone home."—Toledo Blade.

Studious War Preparations of The German Army

General De Wet's Announcement

English Newspapers Have Made Public a Despatch From the Governor General of South Africa Giving an Account of General De Wet's Announcement of His Rebellion. The Account is as Follows

The special correspondent of the London Morning Post at Belgian headquarters, has communicated to his paper some highly interesting and instructive information regarding the studious war preparations of the German Army and the actual efficiency of that body in active service. The correspondent writes:

"A general impression of German war tactics after some ten weeks' observation in the field leaves these two points outstanding: (1) the wonderful thoroughness of preparation on the part of the German nation for this war; and (2) the failure of the German nation to assert a superiority over, or even an equality with, its British, French and Belgian antagonists in unforeseen contingencies calling for individual initiative.

In all that could be provided for by thought beforehand, in all the bookwork and routine of war, in the matters of discipline and of equipment, the German force was generally above criticism. In other things which tell of the character of a race, of its native wit, and its natural courage the German has taken second place to the Belgian, the Frenchman, the British man. Constantly, therefore, in considering the German at war—apart from the strategy of his campaign, which is outside the scope of this article—one is moved to alternating alternations of applause and censure.

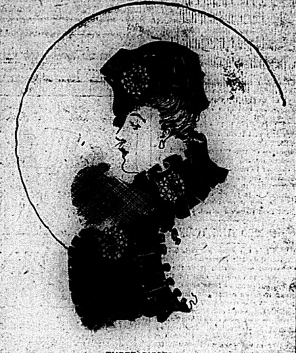
Spoiling The Citizen

But perhaps there is an explanation which will do away with the astonishment. It was impossible that an intelligent and methodical people should devote their whole energies to the perfection of a plan of aggressive war without securing great results; but impossible also that this devotion to a single and inhuman end should not have de-humanized the people, somewhat lowered their general intelligence, injured their spirit of initiative. To train for the defence of one's own country is, I suppose, an almost necessary part of intelligent life. But to submit to a military despotism for the sake of organizing a war of conquest over one's neighbors, must spoil the citizen somewhat in drilling the soldier. Germany has profited in the field by the scientific exactness of her slavishly-drilled people. She had lost in the field by the failure of these people under circumstances when equipment failed and a "common-sense shift" was called for, when obedience was not sufficient and an individual elan and judgment was called for.

Perfect Equipment

In regard to equipment, the first days of the campaign disclosed how perfected was the German war machine in this regard. The first German dead gave up many secrets. The German soldier was clothed in cloth of a color which on the average of days gives a greater degree of invisibility than khaki. This cloth was excellently woven to withstand weather and strain. Each soldier carried in his pocket his pocket-knife, a little equipment for mending his clothes (as also a little first-aid Red Cross bandage of adhesive plaster.

His boots were of wonderfully strong and supple leather, such boots as only civilians in good circumstances can buy. His valise of cowhide tanned with the hair on, was most ingeniously furnished with straps and removable belts of white fetal for ease of carrying and ease of packing and unpacking. Its contents, disposed in various little cupboards, gave the maximum of food reserves and clothing comforts for the space and weight. Quite regardless of the value of the soldier's life at the critical moment of an action, the German plan at least equipped him perfectly at the outset even with materials to facilitate the work of pillage and incendiarism which had been mapped out for him. The order-books of officers and non-commissioned officers showed the same meticulous devotion to details. During the years of preparation the German mind devoted itself with passionate industry to providing for every possible emergency of the soldier's life in the field.



THREE PIECES

Because flounces form the skirt, the hat adopts a circular flounce, calls it a brim, attaches it to a low crown, and allows it to ripple in becoming nonchalance over the hair. This model by Evelyne Varon is of dark velvet and is trimmed with a silver braid ornament. The neckpiece and muff are made to match.

Inferior Cavalry

As the equipment was the zenith, the cavalry tactic was the Nadir of the German army. Whether against the Belgian, French or British cavalry, the German cavalry was always inferior. The much-advertised Uhlans might appear from some episodes to have done good, daring work. But in real fact they were simply shot from headquarters like stones from a catapult, recklessly, non-intelligently, to raid somewhere, anywhere. With so many of them out they had to blunder on some success. In the aggregate their record was one of failure. Repeatedly they were trapped and almost exterminated by far inferior forces. (I recall one instance of many near Osmael when six Belgian cyclists ambushed twenty-five Uhlans and killed thirteen of them without suffering any loss.

On the march they had no idea of scouting. In the first phase of the war the German idea of cavalry on the march in hostile country was for a squadron of twenty-five to proceed by 500 yards the regiment, without flank scouts or advance scouts. Taught by heavy losses they modified that a little. But never did they seem to learn the scouting side of cavalry work. Nor did their cavalry seem to know how to follow up a retreat. I have been in several retreats and never were they harassed by the German cavalry. To give another proof from personal experience, when the Germans after a victory were about to enter a town on three occasions I went forward on a cycle to get in touch with their advance cavalry and make sure of the direction they were taking. Never was here any real ground for uneasiness in doing this, though some press gentlemen once reported me as killed because they saw me cycling out, apparently in to the arms of the Uhlans, at Louvain after the battle of Tirlemeont. The German cavalry, in short, had no eyes; its courage was of the blind sort and rapidly evaporated on a hot challenge.

Whether the cavalry was able to shine in any charges such as used to be rehearsed so cheerfully at Potsdam I do not know. not having seen any charges or encountered an officer who has.

The Methodical Artillery

Competent observers tell me that both the British and the French artillery have outclassed the German in the heroic combats of Northern France. It is a very high record for them, since the German artillery, from the heaviest to the lightest, is without a doubt extraordinarily good in tactics. The way in which it cooperates with its infantry seems to me specially good. Step by step it follows the infantry advance with patient care, and I have never noticed it either smash up its own men or leave them at a pinch without the normal support of the guns. In return the infantry sticks well to its guns, and I have never noticed nor have heard recorded an instance where the infantry cleared out regardless of the fate of the guns.

In artillery ranging the Germans evidently relied upon:

(1) An excellent system of maps. The area of operations was very minutely set out in numbered squares; and on one battery finding its fire effective on a certain square the number of that square was sent on to as many other batteries as was necessary, and their fare thus could be instantaneously directed on to the required spot. This system of ranging with the aid of squared maps is not peculiar to the German artillery; but it seems to have reached with them a high degree of perfection.

(2) By aeroplanes and captive balloons. The captive balloons usually operated in couples on two flanks; and, I conclude, took cross-observations from two angles of view.

(3) By the use of spies within the lines of their antagonist. This was probably their most effective means of ranging. Spies, passing for peasants and wandering about the field of operations, would give signals as to the position of batteries, trenches, and staff officers. The absence was noticeable of ranging by "brackets" (i.e., finding a distance by trial firing first at, say 2,000 and 2,300 yards, then at 2,100 and 2,200 and finding the range at 2,050. This system of ranging seems almost absolete with German batteries.

Moral Effect of Artillery

The moral effect of artillery fire is thoroughly understood and explained by the Germans Against infantry in trenches after finding that shrapnel does not cause a quittance they try high explosive—less likely to be deadly, but more terrifying. On a wide battlefield a proportion of their guns will fire—seemingly without aim—at points all over the place. This is evidently not only with the hope of finding a chance mark but of breeding terrors over the whole field, making troops on reserve feel that they are, too, under fire. It is an expensive way of causing fright but against unseasoned troops can be useful.

The German big guns were laid perfectly. It was always possible to see what they were aimed at and to recognize that the aim was good. In the bombardment of Antwerp in particular, I noticed this. The guns clearly had exactly the right elevation and exactly the right deflection. Whether it was intended or not—I think it was—the last stage of that bombardment showed perfection in big gun pointing. Six shells in quick succession came within a few yards of the Hotel de Ville. I imagined that the idea was to hurry up the burgomaster to come out and surrender. (He had left on that mission at 8.30, just before this bouquet of shell arrived.)

There was no notable horse artillery work on the part of the Germans, so far as I could see or hear. The artillery worked perfectly "by the book" but without dash or any spirit of adventure. Certainly it was never pushed forward to punish a retreat.

The Infantry's Mass Attacks.

The German infantry has to be credited with a very stubborn courage, but it was, so far as can be judged, chiefly "officers' courage." Left to themselves the German infantrymen were prone to surrender though the same men under their officers would suffer the most severe punishment without flinching. The virtues and defects alike of the German military system concentrated in the infantry. Educated, partly by godly precept, partly by brutality, into believing that the military officer is a being apart worthy of worship, the German rank and file follow their officers, or are driven forward by their officers to positions which seem almost desperate. On the other hand, the German rank and file deprived of their officers, are more helpless than French or British soldiers in the same circumstances. In entrenching himself the German soldier is as good as the best (book work and methodical practice). In taking advantage of natural cover he is far inferior to the British (absence of initiative). The virtues and defects alike of his training send him to the charge in close platoons. Thus he is easier to kill but more terrible if he arrives. His marksmanship is inferior to that of the British soldier, but his volley firing—helped by the flat trajectory of his rifle—can be very effective. He is not fond of the bayonet as a weapon.

Not at all sparing of the infantry when the order to advance is given, the German tactics is nevertheless careful of its infantry, in that it practices a very thorough artillery preparation and, as I have noted before, the artillery follows the infantry step by step.

German Air Work

In regard to minor points, the German air work was far better than was expected in the absence of any special advertisement of her airmen before the war. Her aeroplanes proved a very good, very serviceable model, and the aeronauts were, is seemed, standarised. A Taube could always be relied upon for about the same speed and daring. The German commissariat and transport had astonishingly hard work to do, and seemed on the whole to do it very well. Occasionally the men lacked food; but I do not think they ever lacked ammunition. Food problems were in part solved by the system of pillage, but the demands of the wasteful guns had to be supplied from headquarters and, apparently, always were.

In the villages and towns the individual German soldier showed a tendency to become human and to attempt to fraternize with the inhabitants. Perhaps it was partly because of a fear of the results of this that some of the outrages were organized. Fraternizing with civilians would have deteriorated the discipline, so slavish in its methods, and would have probably lead to many desertions.

Summed up the German army in the field has had the virtues which a thorough book preparation and a slavish discipline could give. But it was not the ideal army, and, in my judgment, in ferior in effectiveness to the French and British armies. Comparing it particularly with the British army, it showed no point of superiority, and several point if inferiority.

AUGUST AND ARMAND WERE TIRED OF WAR

The Dutch Drummer Van Sloot Insisted They Were Not Game--"They Were Not Good Soldiers," Said he,--What Would Become of the War if All Soldiers Acted as They Did

(By Herbert Carey)

CALAIS, Nov. 20.—His name sounded like Van Sloot. At any rate, he is a Dutch travelling man. He has been over here on one of those mysterious missions that occupy so many business men in these times of war. They neither buy nor sell. They do not try to collect debts, where debts are not collectable. They seem unable to escape from their old routine—just as 'bus chauffeurs are said to spend their Sundays off in riding up and down Piccadilly.

"I don't call 'em good soldiers," said the Dutch travelling man with emphasis. "That isn't my idea of the way good soldiers would act. I tell you they were not game."

He had been telling a story of two soldiers. One was French, the other German. They had been engaged in that breathless, scrambled fighting which dotted the Belgian border near Neerpelt. It had become almost an affair of guerillas. Scatter detachments of both forces roamed over the countryside. When they met they fought or ran.

"The Germans attacked a French company one night," said Van Sloot. "The French were taken by surprise. They rolled out of their blankets and ran like h—. The Germans ran after them, yelling."

Neither Germans nor French were familiar with the country. It is crossed here and there by canals. Clumps of shrubbery dot it. The night lacked even the light of a star. The pursuers and pursued scattered over the countryside, yelling, firing their rifles. Soon they were separated in groups of twos and threes. The pursuers stopped. The blackness of the night was a hindrance to them. The routed fled on.

"This Frenchman," said Van Sloot, "fell in the darkness. When he rose he had lost his direction. He heard men running and calling all about him. He saw the flash of their shots. He which was enemy."

"He crept cautiously on, his rifle at the ready. All the time he consciously veered away from danger. He fell again—this time in the funnel shaped hole that had been scooped out by a German shell. It offered him security against stray bullets. So he settled there for the night, first feeling about him with his bayonet. The Frenchman's nerves were shaken. He had a greater dread of dead men sharing the pit with him than of live foes.

"The German, too, lost his friends," said the Dutch travelling man. "I don't know how. But he found himself alone there in the night. He heard the cries. He saw the red daggers of fire cut the darkness. But he did not not know which way to go."

So, when he came to the stump of an old tree, he determined to stay there for the night. By daylight it might offer him some slight protection against the French bullets. Anyhow, he was tired—tried almost to death. For days he had been dragging himself over muddy roads on half rations. He had marched at night instead of sleeping, or he had attacked or been attacked. He stretched himself out on the moist Belgian turf. Before he knew it he was fast asleep.

"He says he woke himself up once or twice," said Van Sloot, "by snoring. I don't know."

Fifty yards distant the Frenchman had curled himself up in his muddy refuge. He, too, was numb with fatigue. His very bones ached. He saw before him the pleasant prospect of hours of uninterrupted rest. No one knew where he was. He pulled the skirts of his coat over his knees and slept. The sun's rays were warm upon him when he woke.

"He poked his head out of the hole," said the Dutchman. "Carefully, you know, for fear some one might be watching. Fifty yards away he saw the German sitting up by his stump, whistling. He thought he was all alone."

The Frenchman did his duty as a soldier. He shot at the stranger, sitting whistling by a stump. The stranger wore the green-gray uniform of the official enemy—somewhat dirty and daubed, but still recognizable. He was plainly a stranger to be shot at. But the Frenchman missed.

There followed a long weary vigil. The German stretched himself behind his stump, his rifle thusting at the shell hole in which the Frenchman was hidden. The Frenchman found himself at a disadvantage. He made with a stick a little peephole in the mud ramparts of his hide-out through which he could watch the Allemand. But he could not take aim without exposing himself.

"They shot at each other three or four times," said Van Slott, "but they didn't hit. Neither man could align his sight on the other's head without offering a better target than he got."

Thirst tormented them. A dead man lay near the German, with black flies buzzing over him. The Frenchman could see that bit of human wreckage, too. Once he was sure he saw the dead man move. By a strong effort he averted his eyes. But when he looked back again he was certain the dead man had shifted his position. The blank eyes looked directly at him. There was slaver on its mouth, as though it had died in agony. The French elevated his rifle, butt upwards.

"Bosch!" he cried. "Bosch!"

The German put up his musket butt in token of an armistice. Without leaving their defenses they called to each. "Why should we murder each other?" they asked, "we have no quarrel. Let us talk it over."

So they shook hands and went to the canal and drank and shared the Frenchman's black bread and the German's sausage. They told each other of the night before. In their relief incidents of the past miserable week became funny. They laughed together. The Frenchman was a stamp collecter. The German owned to a passion for butterflies. They bored each other with their fads. Each courteously suppressed his yawns, certain that the other would do the same when it was his time to listen. By and by they began to talk of separating.

"You must be my prisoner," said the German. "You asked for peace."

The Frenchman pointed out that he had only asked for a truce. Upon consideration the German admitted this was the fact.

"Then we must return," said the German, "you to your shell hole and me to my stump. We become enemies again.

The Frenchman was frankly bored by this prospect. He proposed a sporting alternative. "Why not go together? Let us approach the first body of uniformed troops to see. If they are German I am your prisoner: If they are French, you are mine."

They set out along the road, elbow by elbow, talking stamps and butterflies. An outpost fired on them. They realized that, carrying rifles, as they did in that debatable country they were fair game for either side. They ran, and that afternoon another outpost fired on them. One had been German, the other French. They came to another road and toiled down it for a time. By and by they came to a sign: "To the Holland line, four miles."

They looked at each other and smiled and shook hands. And so they walked the four miles to the Holland line and roused a Dutch frontier guard from his sleep and gave themselves up and insisted that they be interned. The next day they were started off for the nearest camp of prisoners of war, to stay there, safe and happy until this war is over. Van Sloot said the Dutch frontier guard told him the story. They were calling each other "August" and "Armand." The cincidence of initial letters struck them. When they found their wives were named "Lena" and "Lisette" the conclusion seemed inevitable.

"We were destined to be friends," they told the frontier guard. The frontier guard agreed, but the martial Van Sloot is not satisfied.

"I tell you," said he, "they are not good soldiers. Suppose that every soldier acted that way."

Sometimes a self-made man makes a noise like a phonograph.

34 BURNED ON TRAIN WHEN CIGAR STUB TOUCHES FILM

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—One man was dying and 33 others were suffering from painful burns because a lighted cigar stub came in contact with a bundle of celluloid moving picture films on a suburban train of the Burlington railroad last night.

The films were being carried to a suburban town. They exploded and sent a sheet of flames shooting through a coach full of commuters. The train was halted on a trestle and hospital attendants were forced to slide stretchers bearing the fire victims down a steep embankment.

An Explanation of Action of Bullets

Striking a Hard Substance After Travelling at Great Velocity Might Produce Effect

The editor of American Medicine calls attention to facts overlooked by most persons who imagine that high-speed bullets are comparatively harmless. He calls attention to the fact that the explosive effect of high velocity bullets has been forgotten by those who are accusing one or the other combatant army of using cruel and forbidden ammunition.

The old slow moving bullet plowed its way through solid tissues, tearing them apart and making a rather extensive lacerated track. The new bullet acts something like a punch because it moves so quickly that the tissues in front of it are torn off before they can impart motion to the surrounding material. It is like the phenomenon of a bullet making a hole in a pane of glass or of firing a tallow candle through a wooden door—experiments described in elementary mechanics. The flesh wounds of the modern bullet are, therefore, clean cut, devoid of bruising or laceration, and heal quickly and kindly. This has given rise to the idea that it is invariably benign and humane.

Effects Are "Devilish"

"As a matter of fact", says the writer, "when it strikes an organ full of fluid, say the bladder, or semifluid like the skull, its effects are almost devilish. The organ actually explodes. The reason is quite simple. The fluid is incompressible and the bullet must move all aside to get through. It imparts its own energy and velocity to the parts it meets, and these instantly transmit the pressure in all directions. The whole mass moves outward from the path of the bullet exactly as though a bomb had exploded. The bladder is torn to pieces and the skull shattered into fragments. For similar reasons the bullet will go through the soft head of a bone like a needle through cheese, but it may splinter a hard bone, and each splinter becomes a projectile which tears its way through the soft parts.

"All this has been repeatedly explained, (New York Medical Journal, April 30, 1898), but seems to have been forgotten. Experiments have been made on tin cans and wooden boxes full of fluid, and the containers are invariably shattered. There is, of course, a vacuum behind the moving bullet, or rather a cavity filled with vapor.

Favors Abolition of Capital Punishment

New Warden at Sing Sing Voluntarily Served as Prisoner for Six Months

The newly appointed warden of Sing-Sing Prison, Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne, served voluntarily as a prisoner for six months in order to get the prisoner's point of view. He believes in more out-of-doors life for the prisoners and placing the men more on their honor. He thinks that there are thousands of men who should be in prison and that thousands are dismissed who should be retained. He also believes that many men in prison could be reformed.

He also is opposed to capital punishment. He is reported to have said,

"You'll never see me in the death house when a man must go to the chair."

"Doesn't the law provide for the warden's presence?" asked the reporter.

"I think there is a way out of that," replied Mr. Osborne.

"Will you advocate legislation for the abolition of capital punishment?" he was asked.

"I will support such legislation," he replied. "If we cannot have an abolition of capital punishment we ought to have public exhibitions of executions, I believe."

"Do you mean that you woud favor the public staging of deaths in the electric chair?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, why make it a secret affair. If we must have capital punishment we might as well make it the greatest possible deterrent of crime." he said.

The Minstrel

A Medieval Story of the Rhine

By F. A. MITCHEL

Not far from Ehrenbreitstein, on the Rhine and on the same side of the river, is a castle, or, rather, the ruin of a castle, which looms up against the sky when seen from the stream below by the thousands of tourists who pass in the Rhine boat. Light clouds sail above it, winds circle about it, as when it was a fortress and the banner of its possessor floated above its highest tower. On looking up at it from the steamer's deck one may fancy its drawbridge let down to the distant rattle of chains, its portcullis raised and the baron himself at the head of a body of his retainers emerge and ride proudly down the declivity.

At any rate, such were my flights of fancy as I watched it while passing up the river and saw it appear faint as mist ahead, reveal itself as we steamed by, then recede and finally disappear in the distance behind.

I asked a gentleman who was gazing upon it as intently as I if he could tell me anything about it when it was in its prime. He proved to be a student of the history of the castles of the Rhine and gave me an incident pertaining to this particular one that I afterward wrote out as follows:

During the seventeenth century a family known by the name of Wrentheim occupied the castle, the last possessor of that name being Baron Caspar Wrentheim. This nobleman had no sons, his only child being a daughter, Bertha. Since this girl would inherit all her father's possessions at his death, besides being a very attractive woman, there were many suitors for her hand. Among them was Count Carl Kellerman, the possessor of an estate lying a few leagues from the river and not far from Wrentheim castle. He was a commoner who had grown rich in trade and had purchased his title. Very ambitious, he made up his mind that he would marry Bertha, thereby becoming the possessor of a castle and a feudal lord.

One morning when Bertha was walking on the battlements of her father's castle she saw a cavalcade approaching. Seeing that it would enter the inclosure, she went to a room overlooking the courtyard. There she saw Count Carl Kellerman dismount from his horse and enter the living apartments of the castle.

Kellerman was fifty years old and extremely ill favored. He was bent in the back and bald, and his face indicated a grasping disposition. Bertha took a great dislike to him even at seeing him. He had not been in the castle long before her father came to her and informed her that the count had come to propose for her hand. The baron had replied that he would refer the matter to his daughter. Bertha sent back a refusal. The count left the castle showing his spleen at being refused, and the baron knew that he would find some pretext for a quarrel. This he dreaded, for, though the count was not a fugerain—that is, a feudal lord—he was rich and could hire men to fight for him.

Not long after Kellerman's refusal some of the baron's retainers while crossing territory owned by the latter were attacked by him and his hirelings, who were far more numerous, overpowered and taken prisoners. Kellerman sent Wrentheim word that his men had been trespassing on his property. He would release them if the baron would give him his daughter to wife; if not he would put out their eyes and send them back to him. He gave the baron a week to consider his proposition.

Both father and daughter were much beloved by their retainers because of their kindness and affection for all who were in any way dependent on their bounty. This offer placed them in a desparate position. Either Bertha must marry the hated Kellerman or the captives, some of whom were the fathers of families, while others were dear either as brothers or lovers, would be blinded for the rest of their lives.

Bertha secretly resolved that she would save the prisoners, but before a marriage with the detestable man who had made such an inhuman proposition would take her own life.

One evening when the baron and his daughter were sitting together bemoaning the misfortune that had befallen them a servant announced that a minstrel was without who would, if permitted, afford entertainment. The baron was about to direct that the man be sent away when Bertha interposed, saying that the music might serve to draw their minds from their trouble. The baron assented, and the minstrel was admitted.

Wilhelm—the only name the young man gave himself—was tall and straight as an arrow. He unslung his harp as easily as if it had been a crossbow and was about to begin a song when the baron said to him:

"I wonder that one should devote himself to the harp whose arm seems far more fitted to wield the battleax."

"If you prefer military service to song I will give it," replied the minstrel.

"Would that you could serve us in that way, but it is impossible."

"Why so?"

The baron gave an account of the application of Count Kellerman for Bertha's hand and of the means he had taken to force the alliance. When he had finished the minstrel asked at what time the terms must be accepted or rejected and was informed that only three days remained for a decision.

"Since you require military service of me," said Wilhelm, "I will not waste time in song. Adieu. Perhaps I shall soon see you again." And the harpist took his departure.

He was not seen after that for some hours. Baron Wrentheim attached no importance to his coming and was not impressed by his going. Not so Bertha. She had listened with rapt attention to his music and when he had gone said to her father that something told her the young man would bring them deliverance. But the baron was despondent, and she failed to arouse hope in him.

The next day the minstrel returned and asked to see the baron. When the latter appeared Wilhelm said to him:

"I have been to the home of Count Kellerman, where I offered to sing for him. He listened to my song, in which I predicted that he would marry a beautiful woman and become a feudal lord. He was so pleased that he gave orders that I be well treated. I learned where the prisoners were kept and during the night made an inspection of the building. Give me a force of picked men, and tonight I will liberate them. They are guarded by a hundred hirelings, who, if surprised, may be put to flight by half their number of real men at arms."

The baron, inspired by hope, at once gave orders for the selection of the men required. He longed to head the expedition himself, but this would not be just to Wilhelm. Besides, the baron was too deeply interested to retain that coolness which was required. At nightfall fifty of the best men among the baron's retainers were gathered in the courtyard of the castle, and the minstrel, who now carried a sword instead of a harp, after telling them that they were to go to rescue their comrades and save the Countess Bertha from marriage with a villain, gave them their instructions. They were to go separately and by different routes to a wood near Count Kellerman's estate, where they would lie concealed till the minstrel appeared to lead them to the rescue. They would hear the castle clock strike the hour of midnight and must then be ready for what was to follow.

As soon as the men had received these instructions they began to leave the castle, some in groups of two or three, but most of them singly. It was an hour before the last man, the minstrel himself, left. Before going Bertha pressed his hand and bade him godspeed. Then he struck out by the shortest route to his destination, reaching the rendezvous just as the castle clock in the distance could be faintly heard striking the hour of midnight.

Kellerman's precautions against a rescue had been fairly well taken. He had put out a picket on the road by which a force might approach from the castle, but he had relied upon this and a guard of 200 men to protect the building containing the prisoners, dividing it into reliefs, so that half the guard would be always under arms. The rescuing party not having gone to the attack in a body and not in any case by the road, the count's guards were ignorant of the few but resolute men in the wood not half a league distant from them.

Wilhelm led his men crouching among the bushes toward their goal till but a few hundred yards remained to be traversed. Six men carried a log, with which they were to batter down the doors of the prison and release the prisoners. When a signal—two shots from an arquebus—was given the attacking party were to engage the guards while the six men used the battering ram.

Suddenly two shots rang out on the still air and were followed by terrific yells. The guards on duty sprang to arms, but had not time to form before a wedge shaped body of men split them in two parts, driving them from the building they were charged with protecting. Then commenced a series of loud thuds on the prison door. In a few minutes it yielded, and the prisoners poured forth, each man being handed arms as he appeared.

Meanwhile the hundred men of the guard who were sleeping were aroused. Those who were engaged were rallied, and an overwhelming force was ready to repel the enemy. Too late. A shrill whistle gave the signal for retreat, and Wilhelm, in command of a rear guard, engaged Kellerman's men, while the advance, in which were the released prisoners, made their way back in the direction of the castle. Shortly before dawn all passed over the drawbridge in no haste, for the count, having lost his prisoners, had withdrawn his men.

The courtyard was ablaze with torches; all the inmates were present to welcome their returned victorious comrades and the rescued prisoners. The old pile rang with acclamations. The baron, with Bertha, stepped forth to thank the minstrel, and, after doing so, the baron said:

"What can I bestow upon you for this great service?"

"Nothing, except what I came for. I am Wilhelm Ballenstein, the son and heir of Baron Ballenstein, whose castle stands near the confluence of the Rhine and the Moselle. Hearing of the Lady Bertha, I came in the guise of a minstrel to satisfy myself as to the truth of reports of her beauty and good qualities before asking to be honored with her hand. I am more than satisfied and beg to be entered on the list of her many suitors."

The victory was followed by a wedding, and in time the groom drove Count Kellerman out of the country.

OWNING A HOME.

The Real Estate Man Presents His View of the Question.

The public has no better friends than the real estate agents, although individuals may sometimes think that they are a trifle persistent in their efforts to induce one to make a purchase.

In reality, however, this is where they do the greatest good, not only for the city in which they live, but for the man to whom they sell property, and this is especially true in the case of a home.

The great majority of people are too slow to realize the importance of becoming home owners, and the efforts of the real estate dealers have induced thousands to purchase who otherwise would have let splendid opportunities pass.

It is especially important that all young people become home owners at the earliest time possible, because in the strength of their youth they will have no trouble meeting the payments on a home, and in a few years they will have it paid for. On the other hand, if they fail to buy the years will pass and find them living up all they make.

Because of taxes, insurance and depreciation many people figure that it is cheaper to rent than to own a home, but since the man owning the property is willing to make that kind of investment it is pretty evident that in the long run it pays the owner.—National Real Estate Journal.

MISSED THE TRAIN.

It Was Not the Agent's Fault, Either, Only His Misfortune.

The real estate man from the city was eager to close the deal for Uncle Billy Weatherman's forty acres, which would front on a beautiful lake after the big White river dam in the Missouri Ozarks was built.

The papers lay on the table awaiting Uncle Billy's signature. The real estate man was impatient. He was in a hurry to get back to Hollister, the nearest railway station, so as to catch the only train that would get him back to Kansas City the next morning.

"Now, if you'll sign right there—on the dotted line," he said, handing a fountain pen to Uncle Billy.

Uncle Billy took out his spectacles and read the papers carefully.

"I reckon I'd better not be in too big a hurry about this hyar," he temporized, with the shrewdness of the Ozark mountaineer. "I don't read as peart as I used to. I b'lieve I'll have my sons read them papers, mister."

"It would be a great favor to me, Uncle Billy," remarked the Kansas City man, looking at his watch, "if you could manage to see them in time to finish up this transaction by noon. You see, I've got to get away today. How many sons have you, anyway?"

Uncle Billy scratched his head a minute and said, "Eighteen."—Youth's Companion.

An Early Underground Road.

London's underground railway stations are decidedly different from what they were when first built. A writer in London Society of May, 1863, describes Farringdon street station as resembling "a family vault on a large scale, with a series of hip baths introduced diagonally into it for light and ventilation. The hip baths are lined with glazed tiles, and to keep the resemblance to their prototype we find the leakage drained off at the end into a vessel something like a soap dish. A dense fog filled the place when I was there, and, as the people waiting for the trains were seen wandering up and down the platform, one might have imagined them ghosts of the great unwashed condemned to linger in sight of those lavatories they neglected in their mortal life."

Looking Ahead.

"I have just telephoned to our new neighbors to ask them if there is anything we can lend them," said Mrs. Scrimpins.

"Aren't you getting wonderfully generous?" asked her husband.

"Oh, it's just as well to be neighborly. Most of our stuff is pretty well worn, and as they moved in I saw a lot of things that will be worth having when it comes our turn to borrow."—Washington Star.

Two at One Trick.

"Let me plow this field."

"Thanks."

"I'm canvassing this district for congress," said the willing worker after finishing the field. "Do you own this fine farm?"

"Oh, no," replied the other man; "I'm the candidate on the other ticket! The farmer has gone to town, but I assured him the field would be plowed by the time he got back."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Silent Chill.

He—There's no use introducing me to any one. I can't dance.

She — What nonsense! I saw you dancing with Miss James the night before last.

"Yes, but she hasn't spoken to me since."—Life.

Corrected Him.

"Come back for something you've forgotten, as usual?" said the husband.

"No," replied his wife sweetly. "I've come back for something I remembered."

Long Wait.

Callow Youth—Barbab, how long will I have to wait for a shave? Barber (glancing at him)—Oh, about two years. —Boston Transcript.

British airmen, early in the war, raided the German Zeppelin sheds near Dusseldorf. Lately they attacked the sheds at Friederichshafen and damaged at least one of the structures. One machine was lost and its navigator fell into the hands of the enemy. The Germans are beginning to realize that they have need to be as careful of their air craft stations as of their ship refuges, experiencing as they are, a little of their own mode of warfare.

Si, the Siwash,

In a Wreck on Puget Sound

By JOHN H. WALSH

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Si is lying on my bunk, wrapped in my Grand Army coat. His name really ain't Si; it's Tom. But I call him Si, which is short for Siwash—a Siwash being a Puget sound Indian.

Si is a Siwash all right, and, though he's only four years old and he's a half breed, he looks like old Chief Seattle. And he treats me as an equal—and he gets away with it, too—though I'm sixty-nine. That shows character.

And Si's had experience!

Take just this collision experience. That won't come to anybody else for ten thousand years, and here Si has had it before he's four.

Why, I have had enough adventures myself, for I've been ship keeper on the U. S. S. Stalwart here at the Sierra navy yard for fifteen and three-quarter years. But Si has me sewed up for plenty on adventure, though I could tell yarns of my own.

But first I'm setting it down about Si, his ma and the collision of the Humahuma and the Stalwart. I'll tell about myself when I've got leisure.

However, I do want to say in passing, while I think of it, that ship keeping is the most exacting work there is. You have to know the name of your ship, and to remember what day is pay day, and when to come off watch, and when to go on, and I tell you it takes brains to keep all those things straight in your mind.

Then once in a year they complicate things by putting your ship in a drydock or by changing her anchorage a little, and you have to change your habits, which is hard. And it's because it is such exacting work as I've described that they always keep responsible men like us old soldiers on such jobs.

Of course it's a strain, and I suppose I could not have held the job so long if I didn't have iron nerves.

You see, I know myself that I have iron nerves, because General Thomas told me so when he saw me eating hardtack in a trench during the Chickamauga skirmish. And I've needed my iron nerves in ship keeping, but a lot of people don't understand why.

For example, there is a gentleman in Sierraton who digs clams with a shovel and peddles them with a wheelbarrow, and he said once he thought he'd try ship keeping for a rest.

I laughed at him, and then I warned him he couldn't stand it, which was true too. However, I'm writing about Si, and I'll write about digging clams when I have time for it, for I'm as good a clam digger as there is on Puget sound, which is saying a lot, for all the smartest men out here were digging clams twenty years ago.

Si's ma used to have an awfully hard time making a living, and from time to time I've helped her a little at it, for I've had $2.20 per day right along, and I'm a bachelor and don't need all that money for myself.

So yesterday, which was pay day, I gave her $5, and I said, "Take Si to Seattle and see the sights." And she did it.

At least she put on her pink waist and her green shawl, and she hauled Si down to the boat by one arm, his feet dragging all the way.

After that I loafed around until evening, when I went to the Stalwart and relieved old man Keller.

After he'd left the ship I walked around and inspected things, as I always do, and I decided, as I've decided every day for ten years, that the Stalwart is still a mighty fine ship.

Pretty soon I moved around a little, and when I got aft and was looking over the rail under the stern light I could see young smelts in the still, oily water, and they looked like shreds cut out with a knife from a silver bar. And, oh, how solemn and still it was!

You could hear a gasoline boat two miles away thumping, missing strokes, stopping and then thumping again, and you could hear oarlocks squeaking their course across the bay.

At first it was clear overhead, and I could see the stars and the lights at the navy yard, and I could hear the sentries hail people in loud, important voices. And then the lights faded and blinked out, one by one, and I knew fog was shutting in on us. And the sounds seemed sort of muffled by the fog.

I went forward then to the ship's bell under the bridge, and once a minute by watch I'd ring rapidly, and presently Bill Paterson on the Boston would ring, and afterward we'd hear Bixby on the Concord.

Well, I kept on ringing the bell. At first there weren't any steamer whistles sounding, but after a time I commenced to hear a dull, thrilling ooo-h, oo-h, from far away down the Narrows.

I knew at once that this was the late boat from the city, the Humahuma, and that she was navigating by echoes, as they always do in fogs on this sound.

And then I got a feeling that Si and his ma would be on the boat, so I rang the bell faster and faster, for I didn't want the Humahuma to go colliding with the Stalwart and smashing Si and me up.

But the Humahuma's whistle got louder and louder until it sounded almost on top of us.

I was frantically disturbed, for I wasn't used to having ships come so close, and I rang the bell as though I were being paid a dollar a stroke—but no effect!

It got so I could hear the engines thump, thump, and hear the water turn off from the cutwater with a continuous, moist, rustling sound.

Then suddenly the whole Humahuma leaped out of the fog, coming straight at me, every light burning, coming full speed, right on top of me!

I stopped ringing and jumped to the rail, and during two seconds I swore and roared and pulled my beard, and then she hit us right amidships, and the shock sprawled me on the deck on my back and knocked the wind out of me.

The Humahuma had hit the Stalwart square, and she had cut us half in two. But she backed out so quickly that before I could get to my feet she was driving both engines astern, and she was already clear of us.

Just a moment later she disappeared in the fog, but I saw, nevertheless, that her bow was stove in and ruptured and that on deck there was a barndoor of a woman's figure which had in its arms a child.

I felt sure from their shapes that the woman and child would be Mrs. Siddons and Si.

Would the Humahuma sink?

I was sure she would, from what I had seen. And then I noticed that my own ship, the old Stalwart, was sinking too. What to do?

I ran to the splintered hole, and I heard the water whistling as it rushed in, like wind in the treetops, only in sharper notes.

What to do?

I jumped and rang the alarm call on the bell, and the ships ahead passed it along. I rang it again and again, and then a frail skiff with a half grown boy in it appeared alongside out of the fog.

"I'll take you off, uncle!" said the boy.

I told him not to be familiar, that I wasn't his uncle at all and that as for going off with him in his skiff I couldn't.

"I'm sort of captain," said I, "and I can't leave. You know yourself a ship keeper can't go without being relieved; his job is to stay with his ship. But I'm much obliged to you, and I'd appreciate it more yet if you'd run down to the Humahuma and pick up some friends of mine."

The boy hollered, "Aw, come on, you nutty old devil; she's sinkin'!"

But I said, "No; I'm staying, though I'd like well to see how Si and his ma are getting along, and I wish you'd go down for me and see."

But just then another skiff came out of the silvery fog, and it carried the long old admiral himself, going in a wherry, with two bluejackets h'isting him along.

"Oars!" he cried, abreast the gangway, and then he called to me: "Why don't you get off the ship? She's sinking."

I saluted him just as I'd saluted Thomas at Chickamauga and says:

"Can't till I'm relieved."

And do you know he seemed to get real mad. He says:

"You're relieved now. Haven't you got any sense in your head? Get out of that into the skiff! Give way, lads!"

"All right, sir," says I. "If she's orders she goes, and I'm much obliged to you."

And I jumped into the skiff with the boy, and we followed the admiral's boat through the fog toward where we could hear muffled shouts and cries.

The Humahuma sank before we arrived, and we were soon in the midst of floating buckets, boards and articles of clothing. But there were a good many shore boats already there, and the survivors were all picked up so far as could be seen.

So we started looking in the various boats for Si and his ma, but we couldn't find them, though we rowed around and around and around.

Finally the other boats commenced to go in shore, one by one, but we kept on rowing until no one was there except the pale faced boy and me.

We'd row a few strokes, then stop to listen and see if the heavy, leaden, foggy silence wouldn't be broken.

Finally the silence was broken. A faint moaning noise came from out in the white fog some place.

We pulled for it; then we paused and listened, hoping to hear it again.

When we did hear it again I climbed to the bow, and we pulled and paused and pulled and paused.

Sometimes it seemed far off, sometimes close. But presently I saw a shadow on the water.

"Way 'nuff!" I cried. "Give me an oar. I'll paddle."

And so I came to the shadow, gently and carefully, and it was Si and his ma that had made the shadow. Si was all right.

He was wrapped in a life preserver, and he was unharmed, except that his back was wet and that he was hungry and sleepy. But his ma lay face downward, dead—drowned in some mysterious fashion by the very buoyancy of the life preserver she wore.

I called loudly, and some boats came out and helped me with Mrs. Siddons' body. But I took Si myself.

I wrapped him up in my new Grand Army coat, and I took him straight home, and, though some women came in, I fixed for his comfort myself.

I gave him some milk and a teaspoonful of brandy, and then I wrapped him in my army coat again, and he went to sleep chewing his knuckle, which shows that he was perfectly satisfied.

And I hereby state that Si's title to that Grand Army coat is good. I'm taking care of Si, and I guess iron nerve will help in that just as it does in everything else.

It looks like a chameleon Christmas from here; what?

An officer whose letter appears in the London Morning Post writes: "We live on various forms of dog biscuits and bully beef of different brands. They vary enormously in quality, and on my return I should like to get hold of some of those Chicago meat kings, wring their necks and put them through their own mincing machines.

The Belleville Intelligencer

recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some new Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament, and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the text matter which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full-page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying text matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

READ WHAT THE EDITOR OF THE

Ladies' Home Journal

SAYS ABOUT THIS GREAT WORK:

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL
THE CURTIS PUBLISHING CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Edited by EDWARD W. BOK

"Why I like this illustrated edition of the Bible is because everything about it has been well done and seems to have been done in the right spirit. The Book itself has been approached by the annotator with reserve and intelligence, and by its artists with sympathy and knowledge. It has not been made into a meaningless picture book. The pictures here serve a distinct purpose. They enrich the text, but they do more; they intelligently explain it, and many a hitherto obscure passage will assume to thousands a new meaning through these eye-teaching pictures. Popularizing the Bible is a risky experiment in the hands of many, but it has been made a splenpid achievement in this case.

"EDWARD W. BOK."

This is the one Book of All Books that Will Be Appreciated by Every Member of the Family, Young and Old Alike

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religous beliefs, such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

Self Pronouncing.

Every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistic beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Get this Bible by clipping certificates from The Intelligencer. Today's certificate is printed on another page, and the plan is fully explained there.

What Uncle Intended

He Had an Odd Way of Bringing It About

By SARAH BAXTER

An old man lay on a sickbed, pale and emaciated. At a table close by, with writing materials before him, sat a man with that expression on his face which is best described as a business thoughtfulness and is usually to be found on the face of a lawyer.

"Read to me these bequests, Mr. Cutler," said the sick man.

Mr. Cutler read over two or three items, none of them amounting to over $100.

"Now," continued the testator, "I wish you to put the following in legal language: 'My nephew, Edward Hendry, son of my brother of the same name, and my niece, Lillian Clegg, the daughter of my sister, Elizabeth Clegg, are to be notified after my death at the same hour and minute that whichever is first married shall inherit the residue of my estate.'"

The lawyer laid down his pen and looked fixedly at his client.

"I fear, Mr. Hendry," he said, "that by such a course you will so entangle your estate that it will go to neither your nephew nor your niece, but be absorbed in the chancery court."

"I'll risk that," replied the other. "I have certain intentions, and if they can't be carried out I don't care where my fortune goes after my death. Put it down as I say in proper form."

The attorney spent nearly half an hour over the item, then read it to the sick man, who appeared to be satisfied with it, and said:

"Now write, 'I direct that my will remain in the keeping of my attorney, Ebenezer Cutler, who is directed to keep secret this provision and to announce it to my nephew and my niece at the same moment, giving no advantage whatsoever to either, and that said attorney is to receive the sum of $10,000 for faithfully carrying it out.'"

"Who, may I ask," said Mr. Cutler, "is to decide whether I carry out your intention faithfully?"

"The courts, if the matter is questioned."

The attorney immediately went to work to express the provision in legal parlance and when it was finished read it to the testator, who, after making a few minor corrections, seemed satisfied with it. Then the lawyer copied all that he had written, called in witnesses, who signed the will, gathered up his papers and, after an encouraging remark to the sick man, withdrew.

Two days later Edward Hendry received a letter bearing the official stamp of Cutler, Morrison & Hyde, attorneys, notifying him of the death of his uncle, David Hendry, and saying he was interested in the estate. He was requested to call at the office of the firm on the 16th day of September at 10 o'clock a. m., when he would be informed as to the nature of his interest. Miss Lillian Clegg also received a notification to the same effect.

On the morning of the 15th of September Miss Clegg drove up to the office of Cutler, Morrison & Hyde and was shown into a private room. She had not been there ten minutes when the door was opened and in walked her cousin, Edward Hendry. Each started on seeing the other, and each appeared greatly embarrassed. Mr. Hendry bowed stiffly, and Miss Clegg returned the bow with hauteur.

"It is some time since we met," remarked the gentleman, in order to break an embarrassing silence.

"Yes, it is."

"Uncle David was a very good man."

"An excellent man."

"Rather singular, though."

"Very singular."

"His intentions were good, but he was not always wise in carrying them out."

There was no reply to this. Miss Clegg knew very well what was meant. Her uncle had endeavored to make a match between her and her cousin Edward Hendry when he was twenty and she was barely eighteen. Ned had at the time become temporarily infatuated with the daughter of a butcher and had shown plainly that even a million of dollars, which his uncle had agreed to settle on him in case he married his cousin, was not sufficient to cause him to give up the lady of his love.

"I've often thought," he continued, "that if Uncle David had chosen a different time and had not made it a matter of money"—

"There's no use going backward. It's too late now. Uncle is dead, and I'm engaged."

The young man looked very much disappointed.

"I'm engaged to a splendid fellow. He's considered to be one of the finest young men in America."

Hendry when he had been absent for some time from the butcher's daughter and returned to see her as she was—commonplace and homely—had sought to undo what he had done with his cousin. She had declined even to speak to him when she met him on the street. She was now inflicting upon him further punishment. However, he was not minded to take his drubbing easily. He told an untruth, pretending to be engaged.

"My fiancee is very lovely, too," he said, looking at his cousin to observe the effect upon her. But if she had any interest in his heart she refrained from showing it. She made no comment on his engagement whatever.

"I suppose Uncle David has left us something," he added, turning the subject, "but I fear we shall have to be content with a mere pittance compared with what we might have had."

"I don't see why you say 'we might have had.' I was not aware that I consented to his plans."

"True, you did not. But possibly"—

"No such thing. I had made up my mind before you made up yours."

"I have no doubt of it."

"All the wealth of the Indies would not have tempted me"—

At this point a clerk entered and told these two young persons that Mr. Cutler would like to see them in his private room. The lady sallied out first with her head held high, and was followed by the gentleman, who looked as if he would like to have some man give him an excuse to strike him. When they entered Mr. Cutler's office they found him sitting at a long table, and he motioned them to seats on the opposite side. Then, taking up a document that lay before him, he said in a professional tone:

"This is the last will and testament of David Hendry. After making a few minor bequests he leaves the residue of his estate, which I think will foot up something over a million dollars, to whichever of you two shall first be married."

The announcement was received with a profound silence, but stirred a volcano of emotion in the breasts of the cousins. The first word spoken was by the young man.

"In that event," he said, "the estate will undoubtedly go to my cousin, since she is engaged to be married and can comply with the provisions very quickly, while I should be obliged to find a girl who would be willing to marry me and whom I would be willing to marry. This would take up considerable time. Besides, I would not choose a wife simply for the purpose of securing a fortune."

"I thought," said Miss Clegg, "you said you were engaged?"

"Did I?"

"Yes, to a lovely girl."

A sickly smile came upon Hendry's features and passed immediately.

"Pardon me," said the attorney. "The testator appointed me to notify you of this singular provision of his will. Further than that I have nothing to do with the matter except to say that if either of you marries and claims the estate I shall expect undoubted evidence not only of the marriage, but of the hour, minute and even second on which you are pronounced married by the person who performed the ceremony. This must be sworn to and certified by a notary."

"It is not necessary for my cousin to take all this trouble so far as I am concerned," said Hendry. "I would not be so ungallant as to keep her from a fortune if I could, and I'm not minded to marry at present. I see no reason why she should not marry her lover and enter upon the possession of the property."

"I wonder why uncle didn't divide it between us," said the girl after a pause.

Hendry rose from his chair and, addressing his cousin, said:

"You may take your time in making your wedding preparations without fear that I shall deprive you of your inheritance, though as to this you must act your own pleasure."

"One moment," said Lillian. "Mr. Cutler, can't we divide the property?"

"Not until after one or the other has been married and satisfied the terms of the will."

Miss Clegg thought hard for a few moments. "Ned," she said at last, "suppose you get married and after the wedding give me a part of the property."

"Suppose you do that."

"Whom would I marry?"

"Marry? Why, that very fine fellow to whom you are engaged."

"Oh, dear, I forgot! I'm not engaged. I said that only to make you feel bad for the way you treated me when Uncle"—

"Not engaged?"

"No."

"Excuse me for a moment," said the lawyer. "I have a client waiting for me. I will return presently."

When he had closed the door behind him Lillian said:

"Dear uncle! He was very fond of us both."

"Yes, and he wished us to inherit this property together. If I had not made a fool of myself over that red headed, freckled"—

"Don't speak disrespectfully of one you have loved."

"Love be hanged!"

"I have no doubt that uncle made his will as he did to bring us together."

"That intention was"—

"Thwarted by you. I could no nothing since you preferred another."

"I didn't—I mean I don't"—

"If you say a word against the girl you loved I shall not respect you. Suppose it had been I that you loved and she were now charging you with having preferred me to her."

"You can forgive me."

She was sidling up to him and he was putting his arms about her when there was a faint rap at the door, and Mr. Cutler returned with the same businesslike air he had worn when he went out, though his knocking before entering belied it.

"Mr. Cutler," said Lillian, "you needn't trouble yourself further about this matter. We have compromised."

"Indeed."

"Yes; Ned has apologized for his brutal treatment of me when Uncle Dave tried to bring us together some time ago, and we are going to do just as the dear old man wished we should."

In borrowing $50,000,000, without interest, from Great Britain until the end of the war, Belgium probably has a fairly good idea where the money will come from then.

The Mayor of Ottawa has had his wages garnisheed for office rent. This is dreadful. Surely a Mayor has some privileges and latitude that the ordinary mortal cannot claim.

EARLY VISITING CARDS.

Those Used in Italy Were Elaborate Works of Art.

Some authorities hold that the origin of the visiting card lay in the circumstance that when Pericles first laid siege to the heart of Aspasia he sent her a bouquet to which, fearful lest she might not guess from whom the compliment proceeded, he caused to be attached a strip of wood wherein his name was cut.

According to Bertarelli, who, among others, has been at much pains to compile the history of the card, it is difficult to say whether it was first used in Greece or in China. However that may be, it seems to be an ascertained fact that the visiting card did not really obtain to any extent in Europe until the time of Louis XIV. It crossed the Pyrenees with Philip of Anjou when he was installed in the palace at Madrid, and Louis himself was the cause of its being introduced into the Netherlands.

Then it was adopted in Italy, where it was subjected to much elaboration. First, the cards showed a modest border of flowers or leaves; then appeared landscapes, bits of architecture, allegories, etc. Finally came scenes of rural life, alternating with views of monuments and towns. The name was printed on the picture of a wall, a tree or a fountain.

A view of the Adriatic figured on the card of Count Alexandre Papoli, while the Franco family favored a large stone guarded by two dogs, with the amphitheater of Verona in the background.—Baltimore News.

ITS PRODUCT TOO GOOD.

A Wonderful Oil Well That Was Found In the Balkans.

In Mr. Caton Woodville's "Random Recollections" is the story of a rich oil well that was discovered in the Balkans.

On one of his journeys he was shown a deep hole, sunk most probably by the ancient inhabitants of the country for mining purposes, but which he was assured was a petroleum well. Afterward Mr. Woodville heard the full story of this well.

A petroleum "find" was reported from the district, and an expert from Baku, in the Caucasus, the great petroleum district, was sent to the Balkans by a syndicate to inquire into this valuable discovery. He was taken by eager natives to this hole, and a bucket was dropped down at the end of a long rope and drawn up again, brimful of oil.

The expert examined the contents of the bucket, tested it carefully, and then, turning to the assembled natives, he exclaimed: "This is the most wonderful oil well in the world. The petroleum is already refined."

The explanation was, of course, that some enterprising person, not knowing that petroleum comes from the oil wells in a crude state, had carefully placed some ordinary commercial petroleum in the well in the hope that the expert would think there really was an oil well there and offer a big price for the property.

First Feminist Party.

The earliest deputation of women to parliament was organized close on 2,000 years ago. Under the triumvirate of Augustus, Antony and Lepidus it was proposed to tax the property of 1,400 wealthy Roman matrons in order to meet part of the expenses of the civil war then raging. They refused to submit to this imposition and sent Hortensia, one of their number, to plead against it before the senate. In the course of her speech she asked, "Why should we be compelled to pay for a war into which we had no wish to embark or for the support of a government whose policy we have no means of controlling?" This argument proved so effective that the tax on women was reduced to one-third of the amount originally proposed.—London Tatler.

Lakes of Massachusetts.

Like other glacier roughened areas, Massachusetts, though not specially distinguished as a lake region, is liberally supplied with inland bodies of water. A recent survey showed 1,115 lakes and ponds exceeding ten acres in extent, the total area covered being nearly 100,000 acres. The largest is Assawompsett pond of 2,121 acres in Lakeville, and the one having the longest name is Chaubunagungamaug of 1,188 acres in Webster. Only one is in Nantucket county, while Worcester county has 298.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Star Dust.

A constant rain of meteor, star and comet dust is pouring upon this world of ours. But you should not jump to the conclusion that the earth is perceptibly "growing" on account of the influx of dust from without. It does grow a very little in that way, but it has been calculated that it would take a thousand million years to accumulate a layer one inch thick.—New York Journal.

Reverse Side.

"Have you managed to get a new cook yet?"

"Not quite."

"What do you mean by that?"

"The last one we applied to wants references from the cook who just left us."—Baltimore American.

What Uncle Intended

He Had an Odd Way of Bringing It About

By SARAH BAXTER

An old man lay on a sickbed, pale and emaciated. At a table close by, with writing materials before him, sat a man with that expression on his face which is best described as a business thoughtfulness and is usually to be found on the face of a lawyer.

"Read to me these bequests, Mr. Cutler," said the sick man.

Mr. Cutler read over two or three items, none of them amounting to over $100.

"Now," continued the testator, "I wish you to put the following in legal language: 'My nephew, Edward Hendry, son of my brother of the same name, and my niece, Lillian Clegg, the daughter of my sister, Elizabeth Clegg, are to be notified after my death at the same hour and minute that whichever is first married shall inherit the residue of my estate.'"

The lawyer laid down his pen and looked fixedly at his client.

"I fear, Mr. Hendry," he said, "that by such a course you will so entangle your estate that it will go to neither your nephew nor your niece, but be absorbed in the chancery court."

"I'll risk that," replied the other. "I have certain intentions, and if they can't be carried out I don't care where my fortune goes after my death. Put it down as I say in proper form."

The attorney spent nearly half an hour over the item, then read it to the sick man, who appeared to be satisfied with it, and said:

"Now write, 'I direct that my will remain in the keeping of my attorney, Ebenezer Cutler, who is directed to keep secret this provision and to announce it to my nephew and my niece at the same moment, giving no advantage whatsoever to either, and that said attorney is to receive the sum of $10,000 for faithfully carrying it out.'"

"Who, may I ask," said Mr. Cutler, "is to decide whether I carry out your intention faithfully?"

"The courts, if the matter is questioned."

The attorney immediately went to work to express the provision in legal pariance and when it was finished read it to the testator, who, after making a few minor corrections, seemed satisfied with it. Then the lawyer copied all that he had written, called in witnesses, who signed the will, gathered up his papers and, after an encouraging remark to the sick man, withdrew.

Two days later Edward Hendry received a letter bearing the official stamp of Cutler, Morrison & Hyde, attorneys, notifying him of the death of his uncle, David Hendry, and saying he was interested in the estate. He was requested to call at the office of the firm on the 16th day of September at 10 o'clock a. m., when he would be informed as to the nature of his interest. Miss Lillian Clegg also received a notification to the same effect.

On the morning of the 15th of September Miss Clegg drove up to the office of Cutler, Morrison & Hyde and was shown into a private room. She had not been there ten minutes when the door was opened and in walked her cousin, Edward Hendry. Each started on seeing the other, and each appeared greatly embarrassed. Mr. Hendry bowed stiffly, and Miss Clegg returned the bow with hauteur.

"It is some time since we met," remarked the gentleman, in order to break an embarrassing silence.

"Yes, it is."

"Uncle David was a very good man."

"An excellent man."

"Rather singular, though."

"Very singular."

"His intentions were good, but he was not always wise in carrying them out."

There was no reply to this. Miss Clegg knew very well what was meant. Her uncle had endeavored to make a match between her and her cousin Edward Hendry when he was twenty and she was barely eighteen. Ned had at the time become temporarily infatuated with the daughter of a butcher and had shown plainly that even a million of dollars, which his uncle had agreed to settle on him in case he married his cousin, was not sufficient to cause him to give up the lady of his love.

"I've often thought," he continued, "that if Uncle David had chosen a different time and had not made it a matter of money"—

"There's no use going backward. It's too late now. Uncle is dead, and I'm engaged."

The young man looked very much disappointed.

"I'm engaged to a splendid fellow. He's considered to be one of the finest young men in America."

Hendry when he had been absent for some time from the butcher's daughter and returned to see her as she was—commonplace and homely—had sought to undo what he had done with his cousin. She had declined even to speak to him when she met him on the street. She was now inflicting upon him further punishment. However, he was not minded to take his drubbing easily. He told an untruth, pretending to be engaged.

"My fiancee is very lovely, too," he said, looking at his cousin to observe the effect upon her. But if she had any interest in his heart she refrained from showing it. She made no comment on his engagement whatever.

"I suppose Uncle David has left us something," he added, turning the subject, "but I fear we shall have to be content with a mere pittance compared with what we might have had."

"I don't see why you say 'we might have had.' I was not aware that I consented to his plans."

"True, you did not. But possibly"—

"No such thing. I had made up my mind before you made up yours."

"I have no doubt of it."

"All the wealth of the Indies would not have tempted me"—

At this point a clerk entered and told these two young persons that Mr. Cutler would like to see them in his private room. The lady sailed out first, with her head held high, and was followed by the gentleman, who looked as if he would like to have some man give him an excuse to strike him. When they entered Mr. Cutler's office they found him sitting at a long table, and he motioned them to seats on the opposite side. Then, taking up a document that lay before him, he said in a professional tone:

"This is the last will and testament of David Hendry. After making a few minor bequests he leaves the residue of his estate, which I think will foot up something over a million dollars, to whichever of you two shall first be married."

The announcement was received with a profound silence, but stirred a volcano of emotion in the breasts of the cousins. The first word spoken was by the young man.

"In that event," he said, "the estate will undoubtedly go to my cousin, since she is engaged to be married and can comply with the provisions very quickly, while I should be obliged to find a girl who would be willing to marry me and whom I would be willing to marry. This would take up considerable time. Besides, I would not choose a wife simply for the purpose of securing a fortune."

"I thought," said Miss Clegg, "you said you were engaged?"

"Did I?"

"Yes, to a lovely girl."

A sickly smile came upon Hendry's features and passed immediately.

"Pardon me," said the attorney. "The testator appointed me to notify you of this singular provision of his will. Further than that I have nothing to do with the matter except to say that if either of you marries and claims the estate I shall expect undoubted evidence not only of the marriage, but of the hour, minute and even second on which you are pronounced married by the person who performed the ceremony. This must be sworn to and certified by a notary."

"It is not necessary for my cousin to take all this trouble so far as I am concerned," said Hendry. "I would not be so ungallant as to keep her from a fortune if I could, and I'm not minded to marry at present. I see no reason why she should not marry her lover and enter upon the possession of the property."

"I wonder why uncle didn't divide it between us," said the girl after a pause.

Hendry rose from his chair and, addressing his cousin, said:

"You may take your time in making your wedding preparations without fear that I shall deprive you of your inheritance, though as to this you must act your own pleasure."

"One moment," said Lillian. "Mr. Cutler, can't we divide the property?"

"Not until after one or the other has been married and satisfied the terms of the will."

Miss Clegg thought hard for a few moments. "Ned," she said at last, "suppose you get married and after the wedding give me a part of the property."

"Suppose you do that."

"Whom would I marry?"

"Marry? Why, that very fine fellow to whom you are engaged."

"Oh, dear, I forgot! I'm not engaged. I said that only to make you feel bad for the way you treated me when Uncle"—

"Not engaged?"

"No."

"Excuse me for a moment," said the lawyer. "I have a client waiting for me. I will return presently."

When he had closed the door behind him Lillian said:

"Dear uncle! He was very fond of us both."

"Yes, and he wished us to inherit this property together. If I had not made a fool of myself over that red headed, freckled"—

"Don't speak disrespectfully of one you have loved."

"Love be hanged!"

"I have no doubt that uncle made his will as he did to bring us together."

"That intention was"—

"Thwarted by you. I could no nothing since you preferred another."

"I didn't—I mean I don't."

"If you say a word against the girl you loved I shall not respect you. Suppose it had been I that you loved and she were now charging you with having preferred me to her."

"You can forgive me."

She was sidling up to him and he was putting his arms about her when there was a faint rap at the door, and Mr. Cutler returned with the same businesslike air he had worn when he went out, though his knocking before entering belied it.

"Mr. Cutler," said Lillian, "you needn't trouble yourself further about this matter. We have compromised."

"Indeed."

"Yes; Ned has apologized for his brutal treatment of me when Uncle Dave tried to bring us together some time ago, and we are going to do just as the dear old man wished we should."

EARLY VISITING CARDS.

Those Used in Italy Were Elaborate Works of Art.

Some authorities hold that the origin of the visiting card lay in the circumstance that when Pericles first laid siege to the heart of Aspasia he sent her a bouquet to which, fearful lest she might not guess from whom the compliment proceeded, he caused to be attached a strip of wood wherein his name was cut.

According to Bertarelli, who, among others, has been at much pains to compile the history of the card, it is difficult to say whether it was first used in Greece or in China. However that may be, it seems to be an ascertained fact that the visiting card did not really obtain to any extent in Europe until the time of Louis XIV. It crossed the Pyrenees with Philip of Anjou when he was installed in the palace at Madrid, and Louis himself was the cause of its being introduced into the Netherlands.

Then it was adopted in Italy, where it was subjected to much elaboration. First, the cards showed a modest border of flowers or leaves; then appeared landscapes, bits of architecture, allegories, etc. Finally came scenes of rural life, alternating with views of monuments and towns. The name was printed on the picture of a wall, a tree or a fountain.

A view of the Adriatic figured on the card of Count Alezandre Papoli, while the Franco family favored a large stone guarded by two dogs, with the amphitheater of Verona in the background.—Baltimore News.

ITS PRODUCT TOO GOOD.

A Wonderful Oil Well That Was Found In the Balkans.

In Mr. Caton Woodville's "Random Recollections" is the story of a rich oil well that was discovered in the Balkans.

On one of his journeys he was shown a deep hole, sunk most probably by the ancient inhabitants of the country for mining purposes, but which he was assured was a petroleum well. Afterward Mr. Woodville heard the full story of this well.

A petroleum "find" was reported from the district, and an expert from Baku, in the Caucasus, the great petroleum district, was sent to the Balkans by a syndicate to inquire into this valuable discovery. He was taken by eager natives to this hole, and a bucket was dropped down at the end of a long rope and drawn up again, brimful of oil.

The expert examined the contents of the bucket, tested it carefully, and then, turning to the assembled natives, he exclaimed: "This is the most wonderful oil well in the world. The petroleum is already refined."

The explanation was, of course, that some enterprising person, not knowing that petroleum comes from the oil wells in a crude state, had carefully placed some ordinary commercial petroleum in the well in the hope that the expert would think there really was an oil well there and offer a big price for the property.

First Feminist Party.

The earliest deputation of women to parliament was organized close on 2,000 years ago. Under the triumvirate of Augustus, Antony and Lepidus it was proposed to tax the property of 1,400 wealthy Roman matrons in order to meet part of the expenses of the civil war then raging. They refused to submit to this imposition and sent Hortensia, one of their number, to plead against it before the senate. In the course of her speech she asked, "Why should we be compelled to pay for a war into which we had no wish to embark or for the support of a government whose policy we have no means of controlling?" This argument proved so effective that the tax on women was reduced to one-third of the amount originally proposed.—London Tatler.

Lakes of Massachusetts.

Like other glacier roughened areas, Massachusetts, though not specially distinguished as a lake region, is liberally supplied with inland bodies of water. A recent survey showed 1,115 lakes and ponds exceeding ten acres in extent, the total area covered being nearly 100,000 acres. The largest is Assawompsett pond of 2,121 acres in Lakeville, and the one having the longest name is Chaubunagungamaug of 1,188 acres in Webster. Only one is in Nantucket county, while Worcester county has 298.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Star Dust.

A constant rain of meteor, star and comet dust is pouring upon this world of ours. But you should not jump to the conclusion that the earth is perceptibly "growing" on account of the influx of dust from without. It does grow a very little in that way, but it has been calculated that it would take a thousand million years to accumulate a layer one inch thick.—New York Journal.

Reverse Side.

"Have you managed to get a new cook yet?"

"Not quite."

"What do you mean by that?"

"The last one we applied to wants references from the cook who just left us."—Baltimore American.

NINTH ANNUAL BOYS' WORK CONFERENCE OPENS

A Large Delegation in Attendance From Various Parts of Ontario--Open Session Held in St. Andrews Church--Appropriate Addresses by Prominent Christian Workers

The ninth Annual Boys' Work Conference was formally opened last evening in this city. During the day trains on various lines of railways, brought delegates to the city, and when evening arrived, upwards of 300 delegates had been registered and placed in home in the city. They were a fine body of young men, whose deportment was all that could be desired.

The opening Conference session was held last night in St. Andrew's Church and the spacious auditorium was filled. Mr. John L. Alexander, of Chicago, Superintendent of the Secondary division of the International Sunday School Association occupied the chair. He was certainly the right man, in the right place.

After a short prayer, the chairman gave a brief address, being especially directed to those attending the Conference.

The address of welcome to the delegates was given by Mayor Wills, who upon rising to speak, was most cordially received. He assured all present that it was a great privilege for him to be present at the gathering. He could assure all the delegates a hearty welcome to the City of Belleville. We extend to you the Bay of Quinte welcome, which was in every respect a hearty one. The city was yours, and all were welcome, to the city and the homes of the citizens. All would agree that the City of Belleville was improving. The heartiness of the welcome of the city, he could assure the delegates, was genuine. He hoped the Conference would prove to be both a pleasant and profitable one, and that would not be long before they would again to this city.

Three minutes replies to the Mayor's address were given by Messrs. R. C. Coxford, of Pembroke, Harry D. Spencer, of Picton and Franklin B. Egleson of Ottawa. These young men spoke well, and thanked Mayor Wills for the heartiness of his welcome.

Rev. E. W. Halpenny, of Toronto, General Secretary, of the Ontario Sunday School Association, gave an address. His subject was "Training, why, how and when." In his opening remarks the divine said the greatest glory a man can obtain is to grow better day by day. Our motto should be, make me better tomorrow. We are all servants, and some of us are slaves, slaves to ourselves. We should be ever ready to give our best service to God. The question we should ask ourselves is what are we good for? The answer should be that we give our best service to God and to our fellow men. First of all, keep physically fit, as a weak person, is not in a condition to render the best service that is in him. The spiritual side of a person's life was touched upon, by the speaker, and all were enjointed to develop same. Get a knowledge of yourself and no better place to get it is at the home. Learn how to approach a person, learn the door of their heart, and aproach them in a manner that will help them to do better. The field is large and the opportunities are great. Begin at this Conference to do work, as now is the time to put in the training you need. Seize upon the opportunity to help some one. Get into a training class, and train for right service.

"Christian Leadership," was the subject spoke on by Mr. Charles W. Bishop, of Toronto. Christian Leadership depends entirely on fitness. We want an ambition in this Conference, that will fit and qualify us to serve best our Master. Our task should be to help in building up character. We have come to this Conference feeling that we are preparing ourselves for fitness of work. Fitness is the largest problem we have on hand at present. Great tasks are awaiting to be solved and they will be solved, if we arise to the fitness, we are able to measure up to. Fitness is the key to every fellow's life. God's will for you is fitness, and men are looking for that fitness. The fit man is sought for. Every fellow who graduates from our colleges and universities is eagerly picked up. The best positions, that are awaiting, is waiting for a fit person to fill them. Waste no time thinking of jobs waiting for you, but fit yourself for those jobs. The question of fitness is not hard to understand. We know the temptations that beset us, and if we yield to them, the day will come, when we will not be fit for the task before us. Fitness for an athletic training, is necessary, as is also a fitness for service for the country. For the sake of their country, they try to make themselves fit for service. We want fitness for service in God's Kingdom. This is a call for the best that is in us. Make this the ambition of your life. Give yourself to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ. We live in a day that is abounding with opportunities, for fitness of service. Fix your mind on some definite programme, and live up to the standard of your measure. We are now learning how to develop mankind. In referring to the war the speaker said the real men are those who know how to fight and are fighting. Our principal has been the development of man to help man. We have today another standard set up by reason of the great war in progress. This war will be won by men trained for peace, not for war. We want ability to do more than fight. In this war young men are wanted and leaders are looking for them. A great leader stands before us, and He places a great premium upon you. He wants to lead you on, as a regiment to fight in His service. Will we be used for that Leader, and the Master, was the closing remarks of the speaker.

Officers for the Conference was then selected as follows.

President—Mr. Etherington, of Pembroke.

Vice President—Mr. F. Wood, Toronto.

Secretary—Mr. Egleton, Ottawa.

The meeting closed by the singing of a hymn and prayer by the Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrew's Church.

NOTES

The following appointments have been arranged for the various church pulpits for tomorrow:

Bridge St. in the morning—Rev. F. L. Farewell. In the evening, Mr. J. L. Alexander of Chicago, who will have charge of the farewell service.

Tabernacle Church—In the morning Mr. F. Yeigh, of Toronto. In the evening, Mr. W. Wood, (Community Secretary of Brockville).

Baptist Church—In the morning, Mr. C. W. Bishop (National Secretary for Canada). In the evening, Rev. S. D. Dinnick.

Holloway St., Methodist Church—Morning, Rev. S. D. Dinnick. In the evening, Mr. Edward Otter of Pembroke.

John St. Church in the evening-Rev. C. A. Myers.

St. Andrews Church in the morning—Rev. E. W. Halpenny. In the evening, Mr. C. Sharpe of Toronto.

Reformed Episcopal in the morning—Mr. Charles Plewman of Ottawa.

Christ Church in the morning—Dr. Carroll of Brockville.

The Conference photograph was taken in front of the Y.M.C.A. building at 12 o'clock noon.

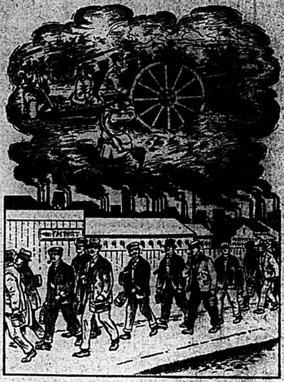
The delegates will be tendered a banquet in Bridge St., Church at 6 o'clock.

The Big mass meeting of young men and boys over 15 years of age will be held in the Tabernacle Methodist Church, when J. L. Alexander will give his great address "On the Trail" at 2.30. The doors will be locked at 3.40 sharp. The meeting will be out at 5.20. Those having appointments for 2 o'clock teas had better not plan to be at this meeting. At the same hour, Charles W. Bishop, who made such an impression in his address "Leadership" will speak to parents at the special meeting for parents in John St., Presbyterian Church, which should be crowded to the doors.

HON. MR. PERLEY TO STAY TILL END OF THE WAR

So High Commissionership Rumors are Set at Rest For Present

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Special—It was authoritatively stated in Government circles to-night that Hon. George E. Perley will remain in London as Acting Canadian High Commissioner until the end of the war. Unless this decision of the Government is later reconsidered, this will, for the time being at least, dispose of the reports frequently published of late that the appointment is likely to go before long to one or other of the various nominees for the post, either within or without the Cabinet.



THE FIRING LINE IN EUROPE IS DEPENDING ON THE WORK LINE IN CANADA.

Germans Quit Move To Reach Calais

This Means the Retirement of the Enemy's Forces From West Flanders

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 27.—(Special)—There are very strong indications that a fresh attempt by the Germans to force their way to Calais by turning or piercing our left wing is being abandoned almost as soon as it was begun. This can mean one thing only—the immediate retirement of the Germans in Flanders. The Allies have maintained their line intact from the North Sea to Switzerland, and they are stronger at almost every point than ever before, mobile reinforcements being ready for emergencies, with excellent railway service to every important position.

The Germans have hurled enormous forces upon the northern portion of the Allies' line during the past six weeks, and have been repeatedly repulsed. Worst of all for them, it has been impossible to conceal the truth from the German soldiers, whose faith in the invincibility of the German machine is shaken, if not shattered. Broken faith in the War Lord means divided counsels and an unsteady morale for the German officers and men alike. The proudest man in Europe is the heroic King Albert. At last, after weeks of anxiety, he sees the Germans about to retreat, balked of the immediate triumph on which they counted as a foregone achievement, the complete conquest of Belgium.

THE FUTURE OF BELGIUM

German Roman Catholic Leader Airs His Views

AMSTERDAM, Nov. Nov. 27.—The prominent German Roman Catholic leader, Herr Erzberger, has published in the Aachener Rundschau an article on the future of Belgium. Germany, he points out, cannot tolerate as its western frontier a state appearing to be neutral. The Germans, he says, have assured themselves of a free passage through to the channel against England, and their army did not make so many sacrifices in Belgium for nothing.

Herr Erzberger would not be content with a semi-independent Belgium under German occupation.

"The fate of Belgium," he says, "has to be so arranged that England can no longer use it as an instrument on the Continent. Belgium must be made a defensive and offensive arm against England."

War Develops New Industry

Middlemen for Army Supply Contracts Latest Form of Pest

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Not all the mysterious looking men that are to be seen in the lobbies of the big hotels these days—particularly the McAlpin, the Martinque, the Waldorf, and the Vanderbilt—are agents of foreign governments; nor, on the other hand, are they men who have something to sell, though they may give that impression. The secret was given away today by L. B. C. Delaney, a lawyer of Washington, who with his clients has forty thousand horses to dispose of.

"This war has developed an entirely new industry, at least as far as this generation is concerned," said Mr. Delaney at the McAlpin today. "It has produced the war commission broker.

"I have met here former agents for steamboat lines, ex-brokers, ex-clerks, and ex-engineers and they have all got contracts from foreign governments, or they have something to sell," he said.

In most cases I have investigated, neither is true. They knew somebody or profess to know somebody; that has one or the other. They belong to the great class of middlemen who want to make commissions. As a rule they are fakers, pure and simple, at least that has been my experience. I mean the fellows who hold you up in the hotel lobbies and who run after you on the street. How they manage to get hold of one's name and his business beats me.

"Why, I have received dozens of letters from concerns stating that they understand I was buying things for foreign governments, and begging to have me look over their catalogues. I have been suspected of having come from Europe to make contracts, instead of it being the other way. I have got something to sell myself."

A ZEPPELIN WAS INJURED IN FRIEDRICHSHAFEN RAID

BERNE, Nov. 27.—Special—Despite German denials, your correspondent is in a position to state from trustworthy information that the attack on the Zeppelin shed of Friedrichshafen did injure one Zeppelin. Further information from Friedrichshafen is to the effect that Commander Briggs, who was made a prisoner and taken to a hospital, has had his face badly cut, but in no danger. His aeroplane was hit in its petrol tank by shrapnel, which forced him to descend. The Germans are amazed at the excellent maps duuof tetpuel; tboh vishZZe tc maps found in his possession.

EX-CHIEF HILL DEAD

BRANTFORD, Nov. 27.—(Special)—Ex-Chief John Hill of the Six Nations Indians died on the reserve in Onondaga, at 88 years of age. At an early age he became Chief of the Seneca Indians, and relinquished only with the advance of old age some ten years ago. He was the first builder and contractor upon the reserve building the Council House 50 years ago.

Believe Find is Portable Bomb

Dynamite Cartridges Fused and Capped Found in Bag's False Bottom

AT VILLE ST. PIERRE

Arrested Austrian Said He Had Packed Explosive in Oakum to Stand Journey From Cobalt

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Fifteen cartridges of dynamite packed with oakum in the false bottom of a telescope bag, with fuse and caps ready attached for the setting off of the explosive was the find of Chief Leguerrier, of the Ville St. Pierre police, when he searched an Austrian boarding house at the corner of St. James street and Third avenue, Ville St. Pierre, yesterday.

What the owner of the grip, which had been converted into a formidable infernal machine, intended to do with it is only a matter of conjecture as yet, but an investigation has already been started by the police authorities. The owner of the grap, an Austrian, named Elie Lesurman, a recent arrival here, was arrested by Chief Leguerrier and was found to be carrying a loaded revolver and to be well supplied with money.

The finding of the infernal machine was more or less of an accident, as the Ville St. Pierre chief of police was searching for goods which had been stolen from a local store when he made the find.

Several robberies and burglaries of a minor nature have occurred in Ville St. Pierre during the past few weeks, and Chief Leguerrier has been working night and day to try to clear up the various cases reported to him. He finally came to suspect the Austrians living in the shack where the dynamite was found. The foreigners boarding there are nearly all out of work and it was with that fact as a foundation for his suspicion that Chief Leguerrier visited the place yesterday for the purpose of conducting a search of the premises.

Austrians Claimed Bag

The police head noticed upon entering the place that there were a couple of the occupants much better dressed than the others, but at the time thought nothing of it. In his search from room to room, the police chief discovered a telescope bag which, being locked, excited his suspicion. He called for the owner and when one of the well dressed men stepped forward he demanded that the bag be opened. Without hesitation, the Austrian unlocked the bag and found an ordinary assortment of clothing, which was to all apearances the entire contents of the grip. The bag, however, had seemed heavier than the amount of clothing seemed to warrant, and Leguerrer stil suspicious, dumped the clothing out in spite of the protests of the owner. Upon close examination, the policeman found that a false bottom had been cleverly fitted into the bag. Lifting this out, he found the dynamite, and quickly realizing the seriousness of the situation, he placed the Austrian under arrest and escorted him to the station, while one of the chief's men carried the bag.

Lesurman stated at the station that he had arrived only last week from Cobalt, where he had worked in the mines. He said that the dynamite had been given to him there and that he had packed it so carefully to avoid accident in transportation. When searched he was found to be carrying a 32 calibre revolver, fully loaded, and a roll of $140 in bills was found in his pocket.

Chief Leguerrier returned to the house with some of his men and picked up two other Austrians whom he suspected of being friends of his prisoner, but was unable to locate the other man whose dress had made him conspicuous among the half-starving foreigners. The latter two men were released later in the day. The military authorities and the Lachine police were notified of the find and steps for a thorough investigation were instigated.

C.P.R.-C.N.O. TERMINALS

Former Company Applies for Confirmation of Agreement.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Special)—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has given notice of application to Parliament for legislation confirming an agreement between the company and the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Company respecting terminals at North Toronto, and also extending the time allowed for completion of the authorized branch line from Bolton Junction to Campbellville.

INTERESTING ADDRESS AT THE ARMOURIES

Prof. Morrison of Queen's University Spoke to the Members of the Women's Canadian Club--A Most Pleasing and Elevating Address

At the assembly room of the Armouries yesterday afternoon an address was given by Prof. J. T. Morrison of Queen's University, Kingston. The affair was under the auspices of the Woman's Canadian Club of the city, and the attendance was such as to fill the spacious assembly room. Mrs. J. F. Wills, President of the Club, occupied the chair.

After the singing of "O Canada," and a few introductory remarks of an appropriate nature by the President, the address was given. It was in every way a masterly effort and befitting the present time. The subject discussed was the Relation of Our Dear Country, Great Britain, to Small Nations.

In his opening remarks the learned professor spoke of small nations and the part greater nations had taken in times past to defend them when in trouble. In the present war Great Britain was defending a small nation and was also defending its own flag. Great Britain, France and Russia were allies in the defence of what was right. Great Britain is in this war to defend treaties and international law. She is in this war for an honorable purpose. The question might be asked; why should we shed blood for another na-

WAR ZONE BULLETIN

ARTILLERY EXCHANGES CONTINUED YESTERDAY--ONE INFANTRY ATTACK REPULSED--ALLIES' ARTILLERY BROUGHT DOWN GERMAN BIPLANE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, Nov. 28.—An official communication this afternoon says:

In Belgium the artillery exchanges were continued during yesterday without any particular incident. The heavy German artillery showed less activity. There was but one attack of infantry, to the South of Ypres, which was repulsed by our troops.

Toward evening our artillery brought down a German biplane carrying three aviators. One of them was killed and the other two were made prisoners.

In the region of Arras and further to the south there has been no change. The day passed very quietly in the region of the Aisne. In Champagne our heavy artillery inflicted serious losses on the artillery of the enemy.

From the Argonne to the Vosges there is nothing to report.

RUMORED THE GERMAN BATTLESHIP WILHELM DER GROSSE STRUCK MINE IN BALTIC AND SANK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Despatches to the Matin, from Petrograd, states that it is reported there that the German Battleship Wilhelm Der Grosse, struck a mine and sank in the Baltic, but adds there there is no official confirmation of this rumor.

HEAVY FIRING NEAR ZEEBRUGGE --ALLIES AEROPLANES OVER FLANDERS--THE BRITISH SHIPS SCOUTING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

A despatch from Rotterdam says that heavy firing was heard Friday morning in the direction of Zeebrugge and the allied aeroplanes were seen flying over Flanders. British destroyers continue scouting off the coast.

KHEDIVE IS WOUNDED SAYS CRI de PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(Special)—That the Khedive of Egypt was shot in Constantinople on July 27 was disclosed in to-day's Cri de Paris.

The Khedive was emerging from the Sublime Porte after a conversation with the Grand Vizier, when a young Egyptian shot him, the bullet piercing both cheeks.

His assailant was kicked to death by the crowd.

Judgment on Ottawa School Case

HANDED OUT AT OSGOODE HALL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Mr. Justice Lennox, in his judgment on the Ottawa School case, handed out at Osgoode Hall, today held that regulation 17, with regard to the bilingual schools, passed in August, 1913, to be intra vires. He found that the Ottawa Separate School Board had violated regulations and he grants an injunction perpetually restraining the Board from continuing to do so.

MEXICANS ASSASSINATE NUMBER OF SPANIARDS

Statement Made to Secretary Bryan by Spanish Envoy at Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 27.—(Special)—Senor Riano, the Spanish Ambassador to the United States, visited the State Department today and informed Secretary Bryan that various Spaniards had been assassinated and their houses burned and robbed by the Zapatistas when they entered Mexico City early this week. Ambassador Riano told Mr. Bryan that this information had been communicated by the Spanish Embassy in Mexico City to the Spanish Government, and had been forwarded by Madrid to Senor Riano in a message that came last night. Senor Riano inquired whether Secretary Bryan had any information on the outrages, but learned that the American diplomatic agents had not reported the incident to the department.

Secretary Bryan assured the Spanish Ambassador that the agents of the United States in Mexico had been instructed to exert themselves to the utmost for the protection of the lives and property of all foreigners in Mexico. These instructions were yesterday repeated by telegraph to all of them in orders from the State Department.

The difficulty about the present situation in the Mexican capital is that there appears to be nobody in authority there to whom any appeal can be made.

CANADIAN DOCTORS ARRIVE IN FRANCE

A Hundred There to Establish a Hospital in Forest of Hardelot

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 27.—(Special)—The advance guard of the Canadian contingent has arrived. A hundred doctors have come over to established a Canadian hospital, which promises to be magnificently equipped. The Canadian building is the golf club on the edge of the great forest of Hardelot, where Napoleon camped his army intended to invade Britain a century ago.

76,000 TURKISH TROOPS MARCHING AGAINST SUEZ CANAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Amsterdam has a despatch from Berlin which says that seventy-six thousand Turkish troops, under Izzet Pasha are marching against the Suez Canal. Their way is barricaded by the British with a long line of trenches and artillery positions.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

A GOOD TURNOUT

The Fifteenth Regiment had a march out last night. The turnout was a creditable one, and the men to suitable marching music rendered by the band, marched well.

HOME GUARDS

The Home Guard Reserve will meet as usual in the Armouries on Monday evening (Nov. 30th) at 8 o'clock. Members are specially ureged to attend, as matters of importance will be discussed.

KEY STONE FELL

Some time during last night a key stone in one of the windows of the Merchants' Bank on the corner of Front and Bridge streets, became dislodged and fell to the walk below. Fortunately no person was passing at the time.

HEN ROOSTS VISITED

On Thursday night some chicken coops in the vicinity of Albert College were visited, but few fowls were taken. At one place a valuable hen was killed and left in the coop. The affair was reported to the police who are making every effort to discover the guilty parties.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

At John Street Presbyterian Church last night, Mr. R. B. Chadwick, superintendent of neglected children of Alberta, gave an illustrated lecture on the Child and the Community. A number were present and thoroughly enjoyed the lecture, which was replete in every particular. Prof. Dan. Cameron was present and assisted in rendering solos, which were much appreciated.

THE MARKET

The attendance upon the market this morning was large and good prices were paid for all produce offered for sale. Butter sold at from 28c. to 30c. per pound; fresh eggs, 38c. to 40c. per dozen, dressed chickens from 75c. to $1.25 per pair, according to size and quality; ducks from $1.25 to $1.60 per pair; geese from $1.00 to $1.40 each, and turkeys from $2.00 to $3.50 each, according to size. Potatoes sold at from 65c. to 70c. per bag.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

David Frederick, a man upwards of 45 years of age, who has resided in this locality for some time, was last evening arrested here, and the charge preferred against him was forgery. On the 16th inst., Frederick presented at a local bank here a cheque for $5, which was made payable to himself and signed by William J. Blain and endorsed by himself and Dr. Clarke. The document proved to be forged. This morning the accused before Magistrate Masson pleaded guilty to uttering a forged document. He was remanded to jail for a week for sentence.

If you want to sell cheap tea, you leave all the dust in it. But cheapness does not always mean satisfaction. The dust and stems are carefully removed from Salada tea thus ensuring a perfectly clean bright tea of a quality and flavor unsurpassed.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. William Argent, who is ill in the hospital is improving.

Mr. John Cruickshanks from Scotland, will preach Sunday evening in Bethel Hall. Everybody welcome.

Master George Teal Pepper entertained his little friends to a birthday party at his home on Albert street.

Entire Contingent Out in Manoeuvres

Twenty-two Thousand Canadians Perform at Salisbury; a Splendid Spectacle

SALISBURY, Nov. 27.—(Special)—Twenty-two thousand Canadians were engaged all day in manoeuvres, all branches of the service participating. The movements were the same as in battle, the idea being to show each unit where it belonged. It was a magnificent sight. General Pitcairn Campbell congratulated the Canadian officers and said the movements were admirably conducted. The men want Canadian plug tobacco for Christmas.

London, Nov. 27.—Intimation made by the Canadian Associated Press ten days ago that forty-six members of the Canadian contingent had been sent back to Canada is now public property. These men, as already stated, are mostly of alien extraction, and will be interned in Canada. A few others are being returned to Canada for quite other reasons.

For the first time the whole Canadian division is put on manoeuvres, which will prove a most welcome change to the keen spirits who, for some time, have been eager to get busy at a real kind of drill which is necessary before they are fit for the front. The only combined movements so far have been route marches and brigade drills.

Considerable amount of leave is still being granted. The work of erecting wooden huts goes on well. Canadian engineers are helping the civil contractors in this work.

HOW TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION

One of our lady readers who found that her skin was becoming harsh and dry from the use of powders, rouge and creams, sends us the formula below. She states that the simple, harmless, and inexpensive lotion made therefrom softened her skin, and so enhanced the beauty of her complexion that she has entirely done away with all other preparation which she had been accustomed to use. This lotion can easily be prepared at home or by any good druggist. It calls for two ounces of Rose Water, one drachm Tincture of Benzoin, and two ounces Flowers of Oxzoin. Mix together and apply night and morning with the hands or use a soft cloth or sponge. Always shake well before using. Our obliging correspondent asks that her name be withheld for personal reasons but nevertheless gives us the permission to publish her letter for the benefit of other readers. She adds that this formula was given her by a woman 65 years old whose youthful complexion and almost total absence of wrinkles were a source of wonder and admiration to all who knew her.

Military News Of This District

(Kingston Standard)

The civilian cooks now engaged at the dormitories of artillery park and the cereal works will soon be replaced by enlisted men. It will be necessary to train military cooks for active service overseas and every day means much to the battalion. The present cooks will be given an opportunity to enlist.

Lieut-Col. Hughes does not intend that his officers and men shall suffer from cold during their training in the winter days. Arrangements have been made to supply the officers with a light fur cap after the pattern of the winter headgear of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. The senior noncoms will be supplied with the same pattern cap in khaki and with fur lining. The men will be supplied with the regular seal military cap. All the men will be given a heavy Arctic overshoe, and the officers will use a waterproof long boot-pack similar to that worn by shantymen. The officers will also use a muskrat gauntlet. All the extra winter wear worn by the officers will be paid for by the officers themselves.

Through Colonel Denison, acting adjutant-general at Ottawa, the officer commanding the 3rd division has been authorized to organize and equip a mechanical transport for overseas service to the extent of 150 officers and men. The matter has been turned over to Major Hamilton, A.D.S.S., of the 3rd division, for organization and as will be noticed in an advertisement in the columns of The Daily Standard, men are being asked for duty as cleaners, wheelers, motor car drivers, fitters, turners, farriers, bakers and men generally for supply column, communication lines, and ammunition parks. All applicants are directed to apply in person to Major Hamilton Hamilton, A.D.T.S. at Tete du Pont Barracks.

Yesterday, G., F., and H. Companies of the 21st went to Barriefield for range shooting.

The following committees in connection wqith the right half section of the 21st Battalion have been appointed and approved:—

Canteen Committee — Capt. Wolfrain, Mr. Dennis, Sergt. Foster, Pte. Patton.

Concert Committee—Capt. Caldwell, Mr. Inderwick, Sergt. Clinton, Corpl. Airth, Ptes. Ingram, Blyth and Patton.

House Committee—Capt. Jones, Mr. Miller, Sergt. Foster, Sergt. McCoy.

Athletic and Games Committee—Capt. Sills, Mr. McGee, Sergt. McCoy, Corpl. Scott, Ptes. McKenna and Wilson.

Honorary secretary treasurer—W. J. S. Sharpe.

Captain Caldwell and Lieut. Pense of the 21st Battalion have been granted leave of absence until the 31st inst.

Mr. J. J. Barrett of Barriefield, brother of Major Barrett of the 5th Field Battery has been invited to join a unit of sharpshooters for active military service. Mr. Barrett is a fine shot, a member of the D.R.A. and the O.R.A.

Major Hamilton, A.D.T.S., has been very busy for several days looking up suitable places for mobilizing troops in and around the city of Kingston. Several places have been located, which will be reported through the proper channel and authority in a few days.

There are now two guest nights at the mess Tete du Pont Barracks. Instead of the usual mess dinner weekly, the officers are having two suppers which take less time to serve and consume. This is owing to the fact that there is so much work to be done that officers have little time for social functions.

The officers attending the R.S.A. here under Liept. Ringwood are getting the fullest possible benefit of all gunnery information that can be secured at the front in the present war. Arrangements have been made so that this is being supplied the officer directing the school, and it is very helpful to all concerned.

Lieut. Ringwood will take the officers of the R. S. A. to Barriefield some day next week and in the vicinity of the hospital on the bay will dig in guns and bury lines of communication. This method is being followed by the allied forces at the front. Signalling is scarcely of any service, the telephone being much more satisfactory with the lines ploughed in for safety and secrecy.

A new wash room will be built between the dormitories of the right half section 21st Battalion in Artillery Park. The present wash rooms have been found inadequate.

Lt.-Col. Duff, medical officer of the 21st Battalion, says that the health of the men in general is excellent.

Every military man seems to be infatuated with signalling. At every place where men are being drilled groups can be seen every day using Morse, semaphore and heliograph.

Lt.-Col. Ogilvie is busy with matters of the R.C.H.A., which with his staff duties every hour in the day is occupied. Col. Hemming, O. C the 3rd Division, is the busiest officer in the city just now. With the administration of all the affairs of the big division and general responsibility for all military affairs in his district, he has no time to spare on his hands.

A KISS

from a man who has been smoking a strong pipe or a "dark" cigar, or has "smoker's throat" is not very pleasant.

Smokers should remember this, and before kissing wife, or sweetheart, or children, take a Pep.

Peps quickly cure that dry, "throaty" feel after a heavy smoke, remove the soreness of throat and palate, and sweeten the breath.

Peps are carried easily in the vest pocket, each being wrapped in a silvered envelope. Upon being put into the mouth pleasant pine fumes and healing medicinal vapours are liberated which form the latest, and most effective treatment for all throat and lung troubles, bronchitis, etc., etc.

For that tickling cough they are splendid. Contain no opium or poison. Druggists and stores, 50c box, or post free from Peps Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

FREE TRIAL

If Peps are unknown to you, cut out this article, write upon it name and date of this paper, and mail it with 1c. stamp for return postage to Peps Co., Dupont Street, Toronto. We will send you free sample. Your druggist or dealer sells Peps at 50c. box; 3 for $1.25. Remember the name "Peps" and take no substitute.

Ontario Hockey Association Meeting

The business for the annual convention of the Ontario Hockey Association which is to be held at the Temple Building, Toronto on Saturday, December 5, at 9 a.m. includes the discussion of a number of important questions that will doubtless attract a large attendance of delegates.

Mr. J. Ross Robertson, as chairman of the sub-committee, has a grist of motions for the betterment of the game, based on the experiences of the governing board during the past year. The proposed changes summarized are as follows:

1. To reinforce the student rule so that it covers a player who is "absent from home and registered and in actual and regular attendance at lectures at a preparatory school, a high school, a university, or an affiliated college."
2. To appoint an assistant referee in finals and semi-finals, if considered necessary.
3. To limit overtime games to 30 minutes' actual play or 90 minutes in all.
4. To charge each team with a loss if the game is abandoned before the 90 minutes have been played.
5. To divide the playing time in three 20-minute periods instread of two 30-minute periods.
6. To make this qualification to the offside rule: "A player having taken a pass from a team-mate, who is prevented from skating him onside through interference, tripping, or other foul by opponent, shall not be declared offside."
7. To make it optional for teams in the senior series to drop a man to equalize for one obliged to leave the game for any reason or to insist upon the opposing team substituting a player for the one retiring.

Chance for the "Village" Players

Mr. J. H. Grooms, of Alvinston, desires a change in the residence rule so that a resident of a "village" shall have the same privilege as a player residing in a rural district or police village, viz., the privilege of playing with the O.H.A. club in the nearest town to his residence. Under the present rules, the "villager" is debarred from playing anywhere except with the village team.

Mr. James T Sutherland of Kingston proposes to make an addition to the players' certificates showing where there played in 1911, 1912, and 1913 to establish their records; he also submits an amendment to debar from office in O.H.A. clubs any person who is the owner of, or has a controlling interest, or is employed in any capacity with any skating rink. Another amendment by Mr. Sutherland is to allow no substitutes except in the case of a goal-tender who has been injured.

Grants to Worthy Objects

It is also proposed to make good use of some of the surplus funds of the association. Mr. Francis Nelson proposes a grant of $1000 to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and Sheriff J. F. Paxton, of Whitby, proposes that the association endow a cot in perpetuity in the Hospital for Sick Childen, to be known as the "Ontario Hockey Association bed," at a cost of $2,000. In addition the hundred odd clubs of the association will be asked to play matches during Christmas Week in the various groups wherever possible, the receipts of which will be donated to the Patriotic Fund.

This is the last day for receiving nominations for the O.H.A. executive, and it appears as if President Charles Farquharson of Stratford would be re-elected by acclamation.

The annual fee for clubs already members of the association is $6 per team, while new clubs are required to pay $5 additional as entrance fee. All clubs desiring to play in the association in this coming winter are requested to notify the secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Daily Star office, Toronto, specifying the series in which they are desirous of competing. Interesting Address To Women

At a special meeting of the Women's Institute of Queen Alexandra School, Thursday afternoon, an interesting address was given by R. B. Chadwick, Supt. Dept. of Neglected Children of the Province of Alberta. His first point made it clear from statistical and scientific data, that from 10 to 15 per cent of the children of every community were mentally defective, also that boys and girls who committed crime were in nearly every case attributable to mental defectiveness. Boys and girls in this class who were 14 years of age, were only equal in judgment to those of 8 years. Children of this type soon become discouraged and unless some systematic effort by capable instructors was at hand they would become immoral and a burden to the community. In Alberta $200.000 is spent annually in this great work. Mr. Chadwick advised that the women use organized effort to help this unfortunate class of children to become useful and industrious citizens and thereby fulfil the old motto, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

At the conclusion of Mr. Chadwick's address a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered upon motion of Mrs O'Flynn and Mrs. Deacon.

INTERESTING ADDRESS AT THE ARMOURIES

tionality? Like personality, nationality comes by degrees. Such is a nation's unit. Literature is the upbuilding of a nation, and is it not a great bond of nationality? Great events and great spirit is a new idea welding a growing nationality. All Canadians are aware that we possess free institutions. They are one of the sure marks of a nation. What is wrong with Germany today is the loss of the idea of true nationality except it be for Germany. That country wanted to crush Belgium and France and then Great Britain. We must all be nationalists in spirit. Have not the smaller nations a right to exist? Some say we do not want small nations, but the smaller nations must not be crushed. By the laws of honor and laws of honest dealings small nations must have their rights. It is the little nations that have given the world great things. The Saviour of mankind came from a small nation. These small nations have given us rich things. We must defend small nations, as the world would be infinitely poorer if they were crushed by a larger nation. The South African war was inevitable and it was no doubt originated by Germany. The Government of South Africa today is a great government. If Britain sinned in that war she has made amends. It was a great and glorious triumph. England has ever been in the defence of small nations. It has always been her motto to fight and stand up for the right of a smaller nation that was oppressed. She was ever on the side of the oppressed. In referring to other countries, especially the Monroe doctrine or law, Prof. Morrison said that all that was good in the Monroe doctrine was British. In this war many drew a sigh of relief when Italy decided to be neutral. The connection of Italy with Great Britain dates back many years. Italy was trampled upon, but by a long process of education England was won for Italy. She declared Italy should be free and she was made free. Today we are in the throes of a great struggle. If Italy and Greece in years gone by deserved to be protected, how about little Belgium? She had to be protected. Against Germany there is a great indictment for the atrocities she has committed; it should cause that country to fall and be shattered. Great Britain is at present doing her duty and she will continue to do it. We are in this war with Belgium for the sake of humanity and for the sake of everything that is creditable in life. We are not fighting for money, glory and territory, but justice, which will prevail. (Applause).

A vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. J. L. Hess and seconded by Mrs. A. McGie, was tendered Prof. Morrison, who responded to the same.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

AS TO LOBSTERS

The news despatches tell us that the canned lobster industry in the Maritime Provinces has been hard hit by the European war. The lobster catch of the spring and summer was a particularly bountiful one, and large investments have been made by the canners in packing the crop.

Today it is stated that the price has gone down from $24 to $8 or $10 per case. The average crop in Canada is valued at about $3,000,000 a year.

The lobster industry is apparently in a condition parallel to that of the apple growing industry a couple of months ago. The only difference seems to be that whereas the apple crop had little prospect of sale prior to its being picked and the policy of the government in securing a market for the apples led to the marketing of the crop, the conditions which have done away with the demand for lobsters have arisen since the crop was harvested and the packers made their investments in it.

At a cost considerably less than that of the advertising campaigns of many Canadian manufacturers the Government advertised the Canadian apple to the Canadian people. To take the place of the export trade which the war cut off, a market for the entire apple crop at home was soon found.

Not only did it relieve the condition of the apple growers and make it possible for them to sell their crop at a fair figure, but it has actually introduced the Canadian apple into thousands of Canadian homes as a staple article of diet.

Two months ago the apple buyers refused to buy and the apple growers refused to pick a large proportion of the crop. Apples were indeed a drug on the Canadian market. They were being shaken from the trees for food for the hogs.

Today it is reported that the apple growers of Canada have been able to dispose of their entire crops, and that the buyers have no doubt that they will be able to dispose of all the stock they have on hand. Wholesale dealers in Ottawa report that the apple sales to consumers in this city this fall have been double those of any previous year.

The policy of the Government which sold the apple crop would undoubtedly sell the lobster crop. The value of the two crops is approximately the same, about $3,000,000. The successful sale of the lobster crop to the people of inland Canada would bring a considerable measure of relief to the fishermen and packers of the Maritime Provinces, and would clear the way for next year's crop. At the same time it would lead the people of inland Canada to become greater consumers of the country's sea food product and promote a domestic trade which would not in future years be affected by conditions abroad.—Ottawa Free Press.

THE TORONTO "STAR" AND THE MILITIA

"Just what the Government is doing is a good deal of a mystery. Just what measures are being taken, if any are being taken, is not clear to many anxious onlookers who think that the eagerness of the men to enlist for active service ought to be welcomed by the Government."—Toronto Star (Liberal).

The Star can find out what the Government is doing any time it wants to. Lord Roberts and other equally competent critics in Great Britain seem to be both familiar and pleased with its work. It is true that there is some little delay in furnishing equipment. But who is to blame for this. Up to the outbreak of the war Liberal papers, the Star a leader among them, subjected the militia to a continuous hurricane of ridicule and abuse. If it was proposed to purchase rifles, cannon, howitzers or ammunition, the Star and its journalistic allies condemned the expenditure as foolish. When General French suggested that we buy a certain amount of armament and equipment, the darling of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Frank B. Carvell, suggested that General French was crazy. The Star condoned that. This ridicule tended to paralyze the Government's efforts at timely preparation, and if we got our first contingent equipped and across the Atlantic as quickly as we did, we have only to thank the herculean efforts of the Government, particularly Major General Hughes and the Militia Department—efforts which won the unstinted praise of Kitchener and Roberts.

WERE THE SPIES TO BLAME?

"German spies who reported Canada disloyal must have judged by the men and newspapers that would precipitate a general election in a time of national crisis."—Toronto Globe.

The Globe seems to be a bit confused. The reports that Canada was disloyal have been going to Germany for some years past.

Among the things reported, no doubt, were:—

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Independence speech in Boston.

Sir Richard Cartwright's declaration that the only thing Canada owed to Great Britain was Christian forgiveness.

Dr. G. A. Turcotte's declaration in the House of Commons that "Canadians gravitate toward and aspire after a state of complete development, complete maturity, which cannot, after all, be anything else than complete independence."

Mr. M. Y. MacLean's declaration in the House of Commons that "we are not indebted to Great Britain for anything."

F. B. Carvell's insult to General French.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's disinclination to allow Canadian troops to go to South Africa.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux's famous letter to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson's reading of the American Declaration of Independence on the floor of the House of Commons.

Hon. William Pugsley's insults to the British Admiralty.

The treasonable action of the Canadian Senate in refusing to come to the aid of the Motherland with three Dreadnoughts.

After all, those German spies were not wholly to blame.

LAURIER AND A PACIFIC FLEET

Discussing the destruction of the German cruiser Emden by the Australian cruiser Sydney, the Manitoba Free Press (Liberal) remarks:—

"Could anything be more clearly proven by the events of the war than the need on the Canadian Pacific shores of a squadron of powerful, modern, swift cruisers?"

The Free Press is unnecessarily severe upon its leader. Does it not remember that the Admiralty, in 1909, asked Canada for a fleet unit on the Pacific, and that the request was bluntly refused by Sir Wilfrid Laurier? Let us refresh the memory of the Free Press with the Liberal leader's precise words:—

"The representatives of the Canadian Government at the Conference (Imperial Conference) took the ground that it would not be advisable for Canada to have her fleet on the Pacific Ocean. Evidently, as I understand the Conference, the British Government were anxious to have a strong force on the Pacific."

CURRENT COMMENT

Despite the loss of the Audacious and other British warships, four new 20-knot French super-dreadnoughts, sister ships, put into commission since the war opened, bring the allied fleet in the North Sea up to at least 69,400 tons greater than it was four months ago.

"They're six fine sons ye have, Casey," said Denis Flaherty to his friend. "They are," replied Casey. "Do you have any trouble with them?" inquired Denis. "Trouble?" repeated Casey. "I've never had to raise my hand to one of them except in self-defence!"—Pall Mall Gazette.

A very young reporter was sent out by his editor to report a wedding. He returned quickly and sat idly at his desk smoking. Presently his chief beckoned to him.

"Why don't you write your article?" asked the editor.

"Nothing to write," replied the "cub." "The groom committed suicide and there ain't going to be no wedding."

Hon. George P. Graham is reported as saying at a gathering of pressmen at Brockville that he preferred editing a newspaper to leading a strenuous political life. This may not, however, be an indication that Mr. Graham is getting lazy. He is the credited power behind two newspapers, while most men in the business find that the care of one brings them all the trouble they can care for.—Montreal Gazette.

Lauds Efficiency Of Militia Dept.

Secretary Shipping Federation Explains How Transport Arrangements Made So Soon

CANADA'S BIGGEST JOB

Gen. Hughes, Gen. MacDonald and Permanent Officials Co-Operate With Representatives of Shipping Co's

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Criticisms launched against the Minister of Militia in other parts of Canada do not find an echo among the principal shipping men of Montreal, who give the highest praise to him for the efficient manner in which he solved the problem of transporting the Canadian Expeditionary force to England. The result was attained in a large degree owing to the harmonious relations which existed between the Department of Militia and the representatives of the various shipping companies whose boats carried the troops across the Atlantic.

These representatives were called to Ottawa to see the Minister of Militia, who went immediately to the heart of the question by asking them to get together and work out just how many steamers they could let him have to carry a certain number of troops on a date which he named. Within a few days a list of fifty-two steamers, averaging in gross tonnage 476,717 tons, was submitted to the Minister as being suitable for the service required, and from them thirty-one steamers were requisitioned, representing a gross tonnage of nearly 380,000 tons.

BIGGEST THING IN CANADA.

Mr. Thomas Robb, secretary of the Shipping Federation, said yesterday to a reporter, who asked about the arrangements: "The efficient manner in which the arrangements for the departure of the Canadian expeditionary force were carried through, reflects the highest credit on the Minister of Militia, General Hughes, General MacDonald and the permanent officials of the department. It is the biggest thing in the way of ocean transportation that a Canadian Government has ever had to handle, and the way it has been done is worthy of all praise. In England the transportation of large bodies of troops goes on in times of peace from one year's end to the other, as the various regiments are drafted to foreign stations in all parts of the world, but in Canada such an undertaking was not conceived as among the things necessary to prepare for. The admirable way in which it was done is therefore all the more to be praised. Now that the expedition has been safely carried over, and some little time has elapsed since, I don't think any harm can come from telling you just what was done.

"The officials of the various shipping companies gave their services ungrudgingly to the Government. Their assistance was invaluable, in view of the fact that they were asked to undertake the coaling and provisioning of the large fleet of vessels, while they also had to look after the engaging of additional crews which had to be provided in order to cope with the increase of work in all departments consequent on the large number of troops carried.

"A measure of praise is due to the various railway companies for the handling of the units which came from all parts of the Dominion, but their share of the work differed entirely from that involved in connection with the trans-Atlantic sailings, inasmuch as their services were spread over a lengthened period, while the departure of the steamers from Quebec was a gigantic task for the officials of the shipping companies who were heavily handicapped by the short space of time allowed them and the fact that the sailings were to be simultaneous. The vessels were brought from different ports and placed under the jurisdiction of Commander H. St. George Lindsay, Naval Officer of the Department, who had charge of the arrangements in connection with the fitting up of the fleet. Most of the steamers were fitted out at Montreal and were later sent to Quebec where the embarkation took place.

"The magnitude of the task which confronted the various shipping companies in fitting out such a large number of merchant steamers on short notice is readily understood from the fact that the ships had to be transformed into transports, involving an immense amount of work in order to conform with the respective requirements.

"Each regiment or division had to take its whole transport with it, so that when it landed on the other side it was a self-contained force. With the cavalry went their horses, with the artillery their guns, with the engineers their pontoons, with the service corps their stores and with each and all their transport wagons, so that when the contingent arrived in England it was completely equipped and ready for service.

"The woodwork for the horse stalls, and other special features, had all been prepared by the transport service and were in store ready to be put on board the troopships. All these details had been worked out in good time by the Government officials, and all that was necessary was to put the organisation in motion."

Each ship was therefore a self-contained unit, and further particulars ascertained by the reporter showed that every requisite needed by the men was also provided for. The canteen, although beer was banished, had all the soft drinks, every kind of tobacco, various articles in common demand in Canadian drug-stores, and a list of prices for each canteen had been passed by the Minister of Militia so that no soldier would be charged an exorbitant price for any article.

Thirty-three ships, with an average need of 2,200 tons each, required the purchase of 72,600 tons of coal for the vessels. Meat, at the rate of 2½ to 3 pounds for each man, would mean a provision of 111,375 to 133,650 pounds of meat for the soldiers and the crew. It is estimated that the average crew would amount to 350 men to the ship. Each ship required five hundred tons of fresh water so that enough fresh water to fill a small lake or a large pond was carried across the salt water.

Then there was the fodder for eight thousand horses, which it was necessary to provide. Hay, oats, and water had all to have their space.

Among the representatives of the shipping lines who took part in the final arrangements were: Messrs. Andrew A. Allan, P. V. G. Mitchell, R. W. Reford, W. I. Gear, J. Allsop, G. M. Bosworth and Captain J. T. Walsh.

Crying Children

When baby cries it is because he is unwell—not because he is bad-natured as so many imagine. Crying is the way the little one has of telling of his pains and the wise mother can instantly tell what ails her little one simply by his cry. Why baby cries a great deal give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be happy again. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Jas. Gaudreau, Notre Dames des Bois, Que., says: "My baby cried day and night and I was greatly discouraged. I began giving him the Tablets and he was soon happy, healthy and fat." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

MANY PROMINENT PEOPLE IN CANADA

Have Written Letters About "Fruit-a-tives" And Have Allowed These Letters To Be Published In Their Home Newspapers

TO HELP OTHERS TO GET WELL

Those Foremost In The Religious, Social and Political Life Of The Dominion Have Permitted their Photos To Appear, Together With Testimonials Telling How They Have Been Cured By "Fruit-a-tives".

One of the most remarkable features of the magnificent success of "Fruit-a-tives", has been the caliber of the men and women who have written to Fruit-a-tives Limited and sent their photos, with permission to publish these in the newspapers. These include a Former Member of the Cabinet, a Senator, a Country Treasurer, two Soldiers, two Justices of the Peace, a High Constable, seven Merchants, one Postmaster, two Superintendents of Sunday School and one School Commissioner. These letters were signed by the writers and may be seen at the company's offices in Ottawa.

Those who have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives" of Stomach Trouble, Indigestion or Dyspepsia—Kidney or Bladder Disease, constant Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica or Lumbago—chronic Headaches or Neuralgia—Biliousness, Constipation or Liver Complaint, are glad to let the whole world know of the remedy that cured them. They feel that they are only doing their duty to write and tell about "Fruit-a-tives" and to urge their sick friends and neighbors to try these wonderful tablets made from fruit juices.

These letters, telling how sick, suffering people have cured themselves in their own homes, have been powerful factors in inducing many others to try "Fruit-a-tives", you realize, this, for if some relative or close friend has tried something and is satisfied with it, you are apt to try it too. The fact that "Fruit-a-tives" has cured thousands of people, all over Canada, is an excellent reason why you should try these wonderful tablets made of fruit juices. GRAND TRUNK NEWS

G. T. P. STEAMSHIPS MAKE REMARKABLE TIME RECORD

In welcoming the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship "Prince George" at Prince Rupert when service was resumed lately, a prominent citizen made the remark "we shall now be able to regulate our watches." The record of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamships in adhering to operating schedules which are arranged much as railway schedules are, is a remarkable one. From March 1912 to the present time these fine steamships have not, in any case, been more than 30 minutes overdue at any port, and altogether have been only 12 times late in approximately 500 trips.

CANADA HAS NEW REGION OF GREAT MINERAL HEALTH

A region of wonderful mineral as well as agricultural wealth is described by R. C. W. Lett, Colonization & Tourist Agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, who has just returned from an extended trip into Central & Northern British Columbia.

Mr. Lett has brought back with him specimens of mineral ores, marble, granite, clays, marls, coal gypsum, cement rock, lime rock, mica, silicas, salt, graphite and other minerals of economic value which are found in various parts of the country he has just visited along the line of the G.T.P. in Britisht Columbia in large workable deposits. He has also brought back samples of natural mineral waters which have been different from any other mineral water hitherto known to exist in the mountains.

From the Edson district Mr. Lett has brought samples of very valuable clays which have been proven by kiln tests to be suitable for the manufacture of terra cotta, tiles, pottery, crockery and other clay products of a superoir quality. In the same district graphite is found, and further west, in the neighborhood of Jasper, there are extensive deposits of marble, beautifully veined and mottled.

Mr. Lett states that a fine agricultural exhibit has been collected for the Banama exhibition at San Francisco from the territory served by the G.T.P. between the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast. The exhibit from central British Columbia is an exceedingly fine one considering the fact that part of the country is only being opened up and the few settlers have not had time to get much land in tillable shape. All kinds of wild and cultivated grasses including alfalfa and wheat, oats and barley, have a place in the collection. Wild pea vine and other vetches are over 10 feet in length, and one bundle of oats stands six feet.

SET FIRE BY A SHELL

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The story of the escape of a man wanted in the United States on a charge of embezzlement, from a prison near Mexico City after a cannon ball had smashed a hole through his prison cell, was brought here yesterday by a Western agent of the American Surety Company. The man was Richard S. Jackson, 30 years old, who disappeared from Oklahoma City in January, 1912, after a shortage of $12,000 had been discovered in the accounts of the Nelson Company of that city, for which he had worked as general bookkeeper and office manager. He was bonded for $10,000 by the surety company. After he had been traced through several Western States the $10,000 was paid and the company company notified its agents to keep on the lookout for Jackson.

He was found running a pool and billiard room in Mexico City in December, 1912, and arrested. He was placed in the Belem Prison, a few miles from the city. Several months later, according to the records of the case, turned in to the New York office of the company yesterday, a force of Carranza's soldiers which carried several field guns, made a raid, and the prison was struck several times. A few political prisoners were released, and, according to the report, "R. S. Jackson escaped through an aperture in the wall of his cell, created by a projectile."

About a month ago Jackson was caught a second time, in Vera Cruz. He was sent back to Oklahoma City a few days ago.

White As A Ghost

PALE OR SALLOW CHEEKS ONE OF THE FIRST SIGNS OF ANAEMIA.

Pale and sallow cheeks with blanched lips and gums, and dark circles under the eyes, are the first signs that anaemia has begun its deadly progress. This first warning is followed by great weariness and breathlessness after any exertion. You grow melancholy, have frequent headaches, awake in the morning feeling tired. You become morbid and nervous, starting at slightest noise, and your heart palpitates violently even on going up-stairs. Most girls from fourteen to twenty suffer from anaemia. Neglect to supple new blood to the languishing, bloodless body, means a life of misery—indeed it is an open invitation to that most hopeless of all diseases, consumption.

The new, rich blood that cures anaemia and gives new health and strength is readily created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This is why these pills have cured more cases of bloodlessness and blood disorders than any other medicine. They have made thousands of girls and women strong, well and rosy, with bright eyes and new energy, just because they nourish the body with the new, rich, red blood of health. Here is a typical instance. Miss Laura Dempsey, Auburn, N.Y., says: "For several months I was in a very bad state of health, with many of the symptoms that accompany anaemia. I was pale and bloodless, had terrible headaches, would be breathless at the least exertion. Having tried a number of medicines without relief I naturally became discouraged and began to fear that I was doomed to continued illness. At this stage a friend who had herself been benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills urged me to try them. I did so and thanks to the pills I am now enjoying the best of health, and feel that I cannot recommend this splendid medicine too highly."

Other weak and ailing girls can also obtain new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by mail, post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONFLICT IS RENEWED

Last Stage of Great Battle of Lodz is Now Going On.

A Decision Is Imminent In the Critical Struggle In Poland and the Russian Forces Are Reported to Have Annihilated Several German Divisions—Bitterly Cold Weather Militates Against Teutons.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — The Central News' Rome correspondent telegraphs:—

"The Russian Embassy here states that the battle of Lodz began afresh after the Germans had brought up reinforcements.

"Several German divisions have been annihilated, many generals have been killed, and the German front has been broken by the Russians in a number of places. A decision is now imminent.

Granville Fortescue, the London Telegraph correspondent at Petrograd, telegraphs:

"The feet of many of the prisoners were frozen." This detail from the battle of Lodz conjures up a picture of Napoleon's all-conquering army of one hundred years ago, which found an enemy it could not rout—the cold.

To-day we have a parallel case. The weather here has turned suddenly cold, and the army of invasion has been caught in front, flank and rear by that redoubtable Russian, Gen. Frost. North Russia sleeps under a blanket of snow.

The weather conditions in Poland will be an important factor in the future campaigning of the German troops, for the most part recruited from cities and small towns, where it is the custom to coddle one's self against the cold during the winter. At home they keep their houses well heated, eat well, and are warmly clothed. Now they are burrowing in frozen ground to find protection from the shot and shell of an untiring enemy. This is in direct contrast to the circumstances of the Russian. To him long, cold winters are an old story. He is inured to the severest frost. Short, depressing days mean nothing to him, and gloomy, interminable nights mean nothing to him. The Russian winter nights will in time sap the fibre of the finest troops.

The battle of Lodz is in its last stage. Such German corps as have been able to hold together, in spite of the hammering they have received, keep up the desperate struggle. German forces retreating from Koluski have been caught by pursuing Russians at Brzeziny. They are trying to fight their way through to Strykow, but this road is no longer open, and every hour their position becomes more desperate. Unless they can replenish their ammunition they are lost.

The thought of a winter in Siberia made more vivid by the cold has given the remnant of the German army the fury of despair, but relentlessly the Russians close in on them. If the enemy break through, but a straggling remainder will ever find the trail to Thorn. If they fail, the battle of Lodz will be the greatest catastrophe ever suffered by German military power.

The successes in front of Cracow continue. Captures on the Austrian side have become so common that the news of two entire regiments had recently been taken passes almost without comment. The investment of Cracow is already under way. Russians realize what a task is before them, and they are preparing for a protracted siege. But they have two surprises in store for their foe. There is every reason to believe that these surprises will shorten the investment.

Meanwhile the Russians are converging on Cracow from three sides. In the battles in this vicinity they have been almost invariably successful. Artillery has been taken in every engagement, and two days' fighting resulted in a bag of 15,000 prisoners.

An earlier despatch from London stated that a third German army in the vicinity of Wielun had initiated an advance which was believed in London to have been started too late to be of any use.

Military men declare that unless the German advance toward Kutno and Lodz was part of a larger movement the operation was too hazardous to be credible.

Peace Not Wanted.

BERLIN, Nov. 28. — The Cologne Gazette, commenting yesterday on a newspaper despatch dealing with the renewed peace talk, says as follows:

"It is premature to talk about peace, and it strikes us as frivolous. No German diplomat and no German soldier thinks of concluding an illusory peace with the powers which we have beaten and confidently hope to continue beating.

"In Germany everybody from the Kaiser to the day laborer is determined to make a clean score this time."

Servians Drove Austrians Back.

NISH, Servia, Nov. 28. — (Via London.)—An official statement issued yesterday regarding the fighting in Northern Servia says:—

"The battle which commenced on Nov. 20 on the Lazarevatz Mionitza front, and in which we repelled the enemy and captured a hundred prisoners still continues.

"On the 21st our heavy artillery bombarded the Austrian monitors off Semlin and forced them to withdraw at the same time silencing the enemy's artillery."

Auto Machine Gun Batteries Offered.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28. — Maj.-Gen. Hughes confirms the offers of automobile machine gun batteries from C. B. Gordon and other Montreal capitalists, and by J. C. Eaton of Toronto. Capt. Eddie Holland, V.C., who was with "Gat" Howard in South Africa, will command the Gordon battery.

VON ESSEN'S EXPLOIT.

Russian Admiral's Squadron Crept In Among Germans.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — The Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post makes an interesting disclosure concerning a success which he says was achieved by the Russian Baltic fleet, under command of Admiral von Essen, early in September. His despatch in substance is as follows:

"It appears that German warships had acquired the habit of cruising in the Baltic up to the limit which the Russian fleet had decided to hold. Having received certain information, Admiral von Essen painted several of his cruisers and destroyers with the German colors and under cover of foggy weather contrived to join the German ships, the presence of the Russian warships had not been suspected until it was too late.

"At a convenient moment, the admiral opened fire, sinking one German cruiser and badly damaging another, while the Russian destroyers put in good work on the smaller German craft. Having delivered this blow the Russian vessels sailed home untouched.

"The Germans naturally remained silent regarding the fight and for various reasons the Russians also kept quiet, but a number of the coveted St. George crosses were distributed among those who were responsibl for the success of this venture."

In connection with the above story, it is interesting to note a brief statement which was given by the official news bureau on Sept. 4. The communication was as follows:

"According to information derived from a trustworthy source, seven German destroyers and torpedo boats have arrived at Kiel in a damaged condition, and it is understood that others have been sunk in the vicinity of the Kiel Canal."

AUDACIOUS SAVED.

She Is Said To Be Undergoing Repairs at Belfast.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. — Passengers arriving yesterday on the steamer Lusitania from Liverpool, say that the dreadnought Audacious, reported sunk off the Irish coast, has been raised and is now in a Harland & Wolff dry dock at Belfast, undergoing repairs. According to J. J. Spurgeon, one of the passengers, this report is generally current in Liverpool and is accepted as true by those in the inside, although the same degree of secrecy is maintained as to salvage operations as was the case regarding the sinking of the battleship and the attendant rescue of her men by the steamship Olympic.

The report is that the Audacious did not sink in the spot where she was left by the Olympic, but that other vessels succeeded in drawing her into shallow water, where the hole in her bottom was patched sufficiently to permit her being towed to Belfast.

The passengers on board included Col. G. Patterson Murphy and Col. H. H. McLean, who were attached to the first expeditionary force of Canada. They are returning home, but declined to discuss their mission or the war.

LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED.

Britain's Greatest Call for Funds Has 100,000 Replies.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Lloyd George, in the House yesterday afternoon, gave official confirmation to reports that the British war loan of $1,750,000,000, for which bonds were issued, has been oversubscribed.

The Chancellor gave no figures. He said, however, that a feature of the loan was the enormous number of individuals, totaling nearly 100,000, who had made application for small sums. These, the Chancellor declared, would receive the first allotments. He added that the loan is the largest ever raised.

In the course of a statement concerning financial conditions in the country, the Chancellor stated that the financial deadlock which followed the outbreak of the war was due to inability to collect outstanding debts abroad. "We can neither buy nor sell, although the whole world owes us money."

As an instance, Mr. Lloyd George referred to the United States, which, he said, owed Great Britain about a thousand millions sterling.

MEDAL FOR JOFFRE.

"Medaille Militaire" Is Conferred on French Commander-in-Chief.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—President Poincare has conferred upon Gen. Joffre the "medaille militaire," the highest honor that can be conferred on a general. The presentation was made in the presence of Premier Viviani, Minister of War Millerand, the presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies and the members of the General Staff.

In making the presentation, President Poincare said the simple medal, which was the emblem of the highest military virtues and which was worn with equal pride by illustrious generals and humble soldiers, was a mark of the nation's gratitude to their commander-in-chief. Mr. Poincare added that he associated with him in his sincere congratulations Gen. Joffre's devoted collaborators of the General Staff and the magnificent armies of France.

As symbols of war no wonder so many of the eagles are bald.

It will be interesting to see if Mexico can rise without a stabilizer.

CANADIAN FORD INDUSTRY

Over 1,200 Persons Dependent on the Manufacture of Machine.

FORD, Ont., Nov. 27.—It is hard to conceive a whole city of people depending for their livelohood on a single manufacturing industry, yet this is true in connection with the making of Ford cars. Approximately 12,675 people find a good living in the turning out of Fords in Canada—enough people to make up the population of a city larger than either St. Catharines or Stratford, Ont., or Saskatoon, Sask.

Practically all of the inhabitants of the town of Ford are dependent on the plant, as are also a large number from Windsor and Walkerville.

The above figure includes all employes of the Ford plant, and those of the concerns in Windsor and Walkerville making wheels, lamps, tops, and similar accessories, and which are almost entirely dependent on the Ford account. The total number of employes under average conditions is 2,535. The families of these employes are figured in by multiplying by 5, which is the official census figure for the average family. Thus the total of 12,675 is reached, which beats the size of St. Catharines, Stratford or Saskatoon by a small margin.

HAZEN DOWNS REPORT

Drastic Naval Legislation Pure Fiction, Says Minister

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—The report sent out from Ottawa indicating drastic naval legislation at the next session of Parliament is decidedly deficient—in fact, "it is pure imagination", was the way the Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of the Naval Service, described it to-night.

COULD INVADE CANADA SAYS WILLIAM H. TAFT

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Monroe doctrine was strongly indorsed, its relation to the present European war and its applicability to Canada discussed, and the declaration that interferences by the United States in Mexico and Central American States have had nothing to do with that doctrine was made by former President William Howard Taft in an address at Montclair, N.J., last night.

In taking up the proposition of Great Britain's enemies landing troops in Canada, Mr. Taft said:—

"Canada is already furnishing substantial military aid to Great Britain and the allies. She has sent a body of 30,000 men, of well equipped soldiers, and is preparing more and intending to send them. On what theory, therefore, could we justly object to Germany's taking counter-measures and carrying the war into a country which is waging war upon her? All that the Monroe doctrine would consistently require of us would be to insist that when the war is over, if Germany were successful, she could not take over the territory of Canada and overthrow her Government and establish her own there, or take any oppressive measures which would have a similar effect. But we could not object to her exacting an indemnity if she were the victor."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Philip Herbert Holt, well known as a shipowner and a philanthropist, died in Liverpool yesterday.

The British House of Commons yesterday adjourned until Feb. 2, and the House of Lords adjourned until Jan. 6.

It has been announced by the Turkish Minister of Finance that the interest on the loan of 1909 will be paid only to such bondholders as present themselves at Constantinople.

The evangelical clergymen of Berlin, Germany, and its suburbs have signed a declaration protesting against the military decree which bars ministers from military service.

Hon. I. B. Lucas, Provincial Treasurer, announced yesterday that $600,000 of the second million dollars' worth of bonds issued by the Ontario Government had already been taken up.

The late Hon. Wm. Paterson of Brantford, formerly Minister of Customs, left an estate valued at $134,250, of which $126,890 was personal property and $7,450 of real estate. It goes to his wife and three children.

AUSTRALIA'S FORCES.

Commonwealth's Total Contribution of Men So Far Is 28,258.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 28. — In the Senate yesterday the Minister of Defence said that in addition to the forces raised for service in Europe and the citizen forces there were 51,153 members of rifle clubs and 16,000 recruits, totalling 67,153 reservists available for the war, a grand total of 164,631 men under arms. The Government has also raised first, second and third reinforcements to the Australian Imperial forces, totalling 9,000 completed units previously accepted by the British Government, making a total of 28,258 for the Commonwealth.

The Premier told the House of Representatives that 2,000 men monthly could be provided in addition to the number already sent.

Will Permit Missionaries To Leave.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Ambassador Morgenthau, at Constantinople, cabled the State Department yesterday that the Turkish Minister of the Interior had given orders to permit the departure from Turkey of several Canadian missionaries, for whom safe conduct had been asked by the British Ambassador here.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

SOUTH WING ADVANCES

French Have Made a Big Advance in Upper Alsace.

They Have Moved From Thann and Have Occupied Gebwenheim, Where the Germans Had a Force of 100,000 Men—Rheims May Be the Next Point of Attack For the German Legions on the West.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—From a reliable source information has been received of a considerable French advance in upper Alsace. Advancing from Thann the French occupied Gebwenheim, southwest of Cernay, where the Germans had massed ten thousand men. This advance gives the French direct communication with Belfort via Rodern, whereas previously they were compelled to take high circuitous routes. Farther north they descended from Schluct heights to Rossweir and Munster, the latter an important centre on the road to Colmar.

The following official communication was issued last night: "The day has been calm. There is nothing to report."

The German artillery fire upon the allied positions eased off during yesterday, the official communique issued yesterday afternoon states. During the visit of the newspaper men of neutral countries to Rheims, however, the city was violently bombarded by the enemy.

The text follows:

"The slackening of the artillery fire of the enemy was noted all along the line during the day of Nov. 26. Two infantry attacks directed against the heads of bridges which had been thrown down on the right bank of the Yser, to the south of Dixmude, were easily repulsed.

"There was no other engagment on the rest of the front in Belgium, and as far as Oise, nor was there any action on the Aisne or in Champagne. Nevertheless, Rheims was rather violently bombarded during the time that a number of journalists from neutral countries were making a visit to the city.

"In the Argonne some infantry attacks resulted in the loss and then the recapture of certain trenches. The men engaged in this fighting never exceeded a battalion. The ground lost and then retaken was never more than 25 yards.

"Along the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges there is nothing to report."

An official naval bulletin, issued last evening, says:

"In the Mediterranean French and British squadrons continue to blockade the Adriatic Sea and the Dardanelles and to protect the coasts of Egypt and the Suez Canal.

"In the North Sea British and French ships have made a reconnaissance of the German batteries established on the Belgian coast. The German cruisers in the Pacific do not seem to have left Chilean waters since the fight of Nov. 1."

The bombardment of Rheims would indicate a resumption of activity along the lines before that city. There is much speculation among staff officers of the allied armies as to the next objective of an assault in force by the Germans. With the invaders beaten off at Nieuport, Dixmude, and along that front, checked at Arras and Armentieres, it may be that Rheims is to again withstand the shock of the Prussian avalanche. There has also been a vigorous artillery exchange in the vicinity of Arras and along the line from Ypres westward to La Basse, where the Indian troops have recently won distinction.

It is denied from German sources that the bombardment of Zeebrugge on Nov. 23 by British warships resulted in the destruction of submarines being built there, of an important arsenal and great quantities of stores.

The Germans spoke scornfully of the small damage, which they say was caused by the British fire.

CANADIANS IN FRANCE.

Hundred Doctors Establishing Hospital at Hardelot Forest.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Arthur Leech, The Daily News' war correspondent, wires that the advance guard of the Canadian contingent who left here at the beginning of the month, has arrived in northern France. It consists of 100 doctors, who have gone over to establish a Canadian hospital, which, he says, promises to be one of the most magnificently equipped of the many which have come from England, Australia, America and India. The spot chosen by the Canadians is a favorite seaside resort, and their building is the club house of a golf club. Many of the contingent are French-Canadians from Quebec, and this place lies on the edge of the great forest of Hardelot. The medical staff took possession of the building Thursday, he adds, "and we promised the feat of hustling in its speedy equipment in order that at any moment they may be ready for administering to the fine force of men who have come to aid the nation in its hour of need."

Turks Routed.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — A despatch from Tiflis, Caucasia, says:—

"It is officially announced here that the Turkish forces east of Erzerum have been completely routed by the Russians and have fled to that stronghold. The Russians have taken 9,000 prisoners and sixteen guns. Fighting has been renewed south of Alashgerd, but the Kurd horsemen and their Turkish reinforcements have been driven back."

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Britain Will Add Fifteen Dreadnoughts Before End of 1915.

Germany In Same Time Will Finish Three More Says Winston Churchill—Losses In Submarines Have Been Equal, Britain Has Lost Six Old Vessels — Britain Leads Elsewhere.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech in the House of Commons last evening, before the adjournment of the lower House to Feb. 2, told the country, that, despite the loss of some of the older ships of the British navy, there was no cause for nervousness, but every reason for complete confidence in the power of the navy to give effect to the wishes and purposes of the Empire.

The First Lord told of the danger to British ships from mines and submarines and of the possibility of armored and fast enemy liners escaping to the high seas to prey on the allies' shipping, which, he added, had been prevented thus far. He concluded his speech with the statement that there was anothr danger, "that of an oversea invasion—an enterprise full of danger for those who might attempt it."

On the whole, the First Lord said, he considered the navy had done well. It was, he declared, driving German commerce from the seas, and preventing enemies getting war material, which they needed more and more as the war proceeded. Even if England were single-handed, there would be no reason to despair, but with the French in control in the Mediterranean and Japan in the Pacific and the Russian navy developing, "we could go on indefinitely, receiving our supplies from wherever we need them, transporting our troops wherever they are required and continue the process with our strength growing greater every month, until at the end of perhaps a not very distant date, we achieve the purpose for which we are fighting."

As for building, the First Lord said, England would add fifteen capital ships to her fleet before the end of 1915 to Germany's three. In fact, he declared, England could lose one super-dreadnought monthly for a year and still maintain her superiority over Germany in these ships.

Light cruisers, Mr. Churchill continued, were being rapidly added to the British fleet, and England had commissioned since the commencement of the war more than Germany had had destroyed or interned. This number, including the Breslau, he said, amounted to six.

The loss of British merchant ships, the First Lord said, was a loss that had been anticipated by the Admiralty. Nevertheless, England had been able, by virtue of its sea power, to draw from all over the world for the cause of the allies everything that was needed, including an abundant supply of munitions, while deficiencies in these commodities were beginning clearly to show in the enemy's military organization.

"We have been at war for four months and I should like to consider how the process of attrition is working," said the First Lord of the Admiralty, referring to the German plan of reducing the British fleet by raids. "The number of submarines lost on both sides has been equal. Our destroyers have shown an enormous superiority in gun power, and we have lost none of them, while eight or ten of the enemy's have been destroyed. We have lost six of the older armored cruisers and Germany has lost two; but we have three or four times as many of these as the enemy has. Of the most important class of minor vessels, modern fast light cruisers, we have lost two out of thirty-six; Germany has lost six out of twenty-five."

In conclusion, Mr. Churchill expressed the hope that these facts would comfort nervous people. He paid tribute to the patriotism of the workmen in the shipbuilding yards. He said that the health of the sailors was twice as good as in peace times and their conduct exemplary. The navy was following the traditions of the historic struggles of the seas.

Kaiser Visited Kiel.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — The correspondent at The Hague of The Evening News transmits a rumor from well-informed sources that Emperor William during the past week paid a flying visit to Kiel, where he spent several days.

It is suggested at The Hague, the correspondent continues, that this visit foreshadows renewed activity on the part of the German fleet, which, as the Russian ports soon will be icebound will shortly be freed of the necessity of watching the Baltic.

Fiji Islanders for War.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 28. — A despatch from Suva says that Lewis Harcourt, the British Colonial Minister, has given his approval for the sending of a contingent of Fiji Islanders to the front.

The Fiji Islands constitute a British colony in the South Pacific and are administered by a governor. The inhabitants are of a Malayan-Polynesian stock, and before they were Christianized were barbarous warriors with a tendency towards cannibalism.

Montreal Has Joffre Avenue.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—Several of the new street names in Montreal perpetuate persons or places prominent in the present war, including Joffre avenue, French avenue, Avenue de L'Aisne and Septembre avenue, the latter to commemorate the month in which the German armies were halted in their march towards Paris.

AIRMAN SAVED CRAFT.

Daring of Commander of Dirigible Prevents a Disaster.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A special correspondent of The Standard, writing from a town in northern France, says:—

"A remarkable feat has earned distinction for the commander of a dirigible who was sent out to destroy with bombs a railway junction occupied by the Germans. Descending low, after evading the enemy's searchlights, the dirigible dropped the first three bombs in rapid succession, but the fourth, after its mechanism had been set going, failed to slide from its tube.

"The dirigible was in imminent danger of being blown to pieces, but the commander boldly climbed out on the framework with an axe in his hand, and, now under the full glare of the searchlights and pelted with bullets, hacked away the tube and its projectile only just in time. The bomb exploded 300 feet below. The dirigible was tossed in all directions, but got away safely. Its purpose was fully accomplished."

Deadly Poison on Soldier.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — An analysis of the contents of the bottle found on the person of a private of the 18th Battalion, arrested Wednesday night, shows the liquid to be a deadly poison, made up largely of strychnine. The man is under a strong guard at Wolseley Barracks, and Lt.-Col. Wigle, commanding officer of the battalion has decided upon a most searching investigation.

CORDITE NOT GUNCOTTON

Ascertained by Explosion Smoke, Which Was White

CHATHAM, Eng., Nov. 26.—The smoke of the explosion which destroyed the battleship Bulwark, it was pointed out, was white; therefore it came from cordite and not from guncotton, which is used in torpedoes.

A naval signal man said to me: "I was just coming off watch on my ship when I heard an explosion. It shook us from stem to stern. There was only one explosion. The Bulwork's magazine undoubtedly blew up in the fore end of the ship.

The district in the neighborhood of the explosion presents a scene almost too terrible to describe. It is strewn with an enormous amount of wreckage. Some of it was hurled across the Thames to the Essex coast.

Among the debris recovered was an affectionate letter from the wife of a seaman on board the Bulwark giving an account of how she was caring for the children, and adding: "I am longing to see you again. Your loving wife, till death do us part."

Minister of Militia Repudiates Report

Says He Had No Controversy With Lord Kitchener or the Admiralty

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Special)—The attention of the Minister of Militia was tonight called to the report of his recent address before the Canadian Club of London, Ont. Certain newspapers reported the Minister as stating that he would not accept Earl Kitchener's advice as to protection for the Canadian transport, and that the first contingent owed its safety to his care.

The Minister said: "This report completely misrepresents my language. There was no communication from me to Lord Kitchener on the subject. The escort for the convoy was arranged by the Admiralty, and consisted of a squadron of seven battleships and cruisers. The arrangements made by the Admiralty were considered entirely adequate, and the result proved the correctness of this judgment. No question of controversy of any kind arose either with Lord Kitchener or the Admiralty. Any report of my speech which gives a contrary impression is quite inaccurate."

200 MOTOR TRUCKS WANTED FOR TRANSPORT

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—Special—The Government is arranging for a couple of hundred motor trucks of about three tons capacity for the transport department of the second contingent. A large number of agents of motor vehicle manufacturers have been in the capital for some days past trying to secure the order, but indications to-night are that the Minister of Militia, acting on the advice of experts, will endeavor to secure a specially adapted truck of a standard design, which may be assembled in Canada with all the parts procurable later in France or Belgium and interchangeable on any of the machines used for the Canadian Transport.

This would facilitate all repairs, and would insure a necessary uniformity in all the cars used. In order to do this it will take a few days to work out the design, and meanwhile no order will be placed. It is probable that the parts of the motor truck agreed upon will be purchased where ever best obtainable, and the truck itself then assembled and completed under departmental supervision in Canada.

AN EASY WAY TO STOP HEAD NOISES

GOOD ADVICE FOR THOSE WHO FEAR DEAFNESS

Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Head-noises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self administered at home. Leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and then take one teaspoonful four times a day until the noises disappear and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action, the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretion in the middle ear and the result it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P.Q. who make a specialty of it.

Goeben Lost Eleven Men.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—(Via London.)—It is announced here that in her recent engagement with Russian warships in the Black Sea, the Goeben lost eleven men killed. But one shell struck the vessel, and that above the water line.

Don't Suffer With Stiff Aching Limbs

Don't be inconvenienced and annoyed by tired, inflamed muscles. Massage the parts with Absorbine, Jr., and root out the trouble. Athletes do. They know that Absorbine, Jr. penetrates quickly and reduces soreness and inflammation—that it is powerful and efficacious in cases of serious sprains, wrenches, torn ligaments and painful affections.

Absorbine, Jr. is a different kind of liniment. It is a non-poisonous Antiseptic and Germicide. Applied to an open sore or wound, it kills the germs, makes the part aseptic and promotes rapid and healthy healing. That is why it is so good for cuts, wounds, and sores.

Absorbine Jr. is a discutient and resolvent, effective in reducing Bursal Enlargements, Fatty Tumors, Swollen and Enlarged Glands or Veins. Use Absorbine, Jr. where you want relief quickly and permanently.

JIM SUTHERLAND AGAIN MANAGES FRONTENACS

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—(Special.)—The Frontenac Hockey Club organized at a meeting held in the City Council chamber, when the following officers were elected for the coming season: President, Geo. B. McKay; Treasurer, B. Abernethy; Secretary, S. E. Trotter; Manager, aJmes T. Sutherland; Assistant Manager, Geo. Van Horne; Trainers, Jack Powell and Douglas Pound; Chief Supreme Rooter, Jack Cousins; Auditors, James Taber and Jack Cousins.

The captain of the junior team is "Terry" Millan. Two former players of the club are at the front, Geo. Richardson and "Scotty" Davidson. The club finances show a balance. A trip to Cleveland, New York and Detroit is being arranged.

1200 INFANTRY AND CAVALRY TO TRAIN AT COBOURG

(Cobourg Post)

Several weeks ago the editor of the Post drew the attention of local military men to the fact that an effort on their part might secure for Cobourg the mobilization of 1000 or 1500 men of the third contingent for training purposes. The powers that be moved slowly and it was not until a few days ago that an effort was made to have a number of the infantry and cavalry quartered at Cobourg. On Thursday an officer arrived from headquarters, at Kingston, and together with a local officer inspected a number of places. The Thompson-Macdonald building on Second St., the Pratt building, Baltimore hotel and Taunton House on Division St., the old hospital, the steel plant, the skating rink and the horse show buildings were visited. It was the opinion of the officer that the steel plant building could be fitted up in a very short time to accommodate 600 men; the stabling accommodation at the horse show park also impressed him.

BOSTON AND MOTHER ENGLAND

(From the Boston Traveller)

There can be no question about New England's love for mother England. The two countries are bound together by a thousand ties of blood and circumstances. Our speech, our literature, our visions and our ideals are nearly all of common origin. Perhaps no other two countries, so widely separated geographically, are so closely allied in all that makes for the broad interests of humanity.

It may be that our German citizens may well complain at this country's seemingly rather pronounced sympathy in favor of Britain and her Allies. Is there anything that America, and Bostonians in particular, will not do for England and her colonies.

Yes, emphatically there is. We here in Boston, won't accept a Canadian 10-cent piece with the king of Great Britain and Ireland and the emperor of India backing it up, as an equivalent for two street care fares.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

Miss Crespigny

By

Frances Hodgson Burnett

Author of
"That Lass o' Lowrie's"
etc., etc.

"Another party?" asked Mrs. Despard.

"Oh yes!" said Lisbeth. "And of course, a little music, and then a little supper, and a little dancing, and all that sort of thing." And she frowned impatiently.

Mrs. Despard looked at her in some displeasure.

"You are in one of your humors, again, Lisbeth." she said sharply.

"Why shouldn't I be?" answered Miss Crespigny, not a whit awed by patroness. "People's humors are their privileges. I would not help mine if I could. I like them because they are my own private property, and no one else can claim them."

"I should hardly think any one would want to claim yours," said Mrs. Despard, dryly, but at the same regarding the girl with a sort of curiosity.

Lisbeth Crespigny shrugged her shoulders — those oddly expressive shoulders of hers. A "peculiar girl," even the mildest of people called her, and as to her enemies, what did they say of her? And her enemies were not in the minority. But "peculiar" was an unnatural term to apply to her. She was "peculiar." Seeing her kneeling close before the fender this winter evening, one's first thought would have been that she stood curiously apart from other girls. Her very type was her own, and no one had been heard to say of any other woman, "she is like Lisbeth Crespigny." She crouched upon the leopard-skin rug in an odd attitude. She was rather small of figure, but she had magnificent hair; her black brows and lashes were a wonder of beauty; her eyes were dark, mysterious, supercilious, and in size actually immense. She often frightened people. She frightened modest people with her nerve and coolness, bold people with her savage sarcasms, quiet people with her moods. She alarmed Mrs. Despard occasionally, when she had first come to live with her; but after three years, Mrs. Despard, she was strong of nerve herself, had become used to her caprices, though she had not got over being curious and interested in spite of herself.

She was a widow, this Mrs. Despard. She had been an ambitious nobody in her youth, and having had the luck to marry a reasonably rich man, her ambition had increased with her good fortune. She was keen, like Lisbeth, quick-witted, restless, and not too spiritual. She had no children, no cares, and thus having no particular object in life, formed one for herself in thus making herself pleasingly conspicuous in society. It was her whim to be conspicuous; not in a vulgar way, however; she was far too clever for that. She wished to have a little social court of her own, and to reign supreme in it. It was not rich people she wanted at her entertainments, nor powerful people; it was talented people—people, shall it be said, who would admire her ascetic soirees, and talk about her a little afterward, and feel the distinction of being invited to her house. And it was because Lisbeth Crespigny was "peculiar" that she had picked her up.

During a summer visit to a quaint, picturesque village on the Welsh coast, she had made the acquaintance of the owners of a quaint, picturesque cottage, whose picturesqueness had taken her fancy. Three elderly maiden ladies were the Misses Tregarthyn, and Lisbeth was their niece, and the apple of each gentle spinster's eye. "Poor dear, Phillip's daughter," and poor, dear Phillip, who had been their half-brother, and the idol of their house, had gone abroad, and "seen the world," and after marrying a French girl, who died young, had died himself, and left Lisbeth to them as a legacy. And then they had transferred their adoration and allegiance to Lisbeth, and Lisbeth, as her manner was, accepted it is her right, and taken it rather coolly. Mrs. Despard had found her, at seventeen years old, a restless, lawless ambitious young woman, a young woman when any other girl would have been just a child. She found her shrewd, well-read, daring, and indifferent to audacity; tired of the picturesque little village, secretly a trifle tired of being idolised by the three spinsters, inwardly longing for the chance to try her mettle in the big world. Then, too, she had another reason for wanting to escape from the tame old life. In the dearth of excitement, she had been guilty of the weakness of drifting into what she now called an "absurd flirtation," which had actually ended in an equally absurd engagement, and of which she now, not absurdly, as she thought, was tired.

"I scarcely know how it happened," she said, with cool scorn, to Mrs. Despard, when they knew each other well enough to be confidential. "It was my fault, I suppose. If I had left alone, he would have left me alone. I think I am possessed of a sort of devil, sometimes when I have nothing to do. And he is such a boy," with a shrug, "though he is actually twenty-three. And then my aunts knew his mother when she was a girl. And she when he came to Pen'yllan, he must come here and stay with them, and they must encourage him to admire me. And I would like to know what woman is going to stand that." ("Woman, indeed!" thought Mrs. Despard.) "And then of course he had some sense of his own, or at least he has what will be sense some day. And he began to be rather entertaining after a while; and we boated, and walked, and talked, and read, and at last I was actually such a little fool as to let it end in a sort of promise, for which I was sorry the minute it was half made. If he had kept it to himself, it wound not have been so bad; but of course, being such a boyish animal, he must confide in Aunt Millicent, and Aunt Millicent must tell the others; and then they must gush, and cry, and kiss me, as if everything was settled, and I was to be married in ten minutes, and bid them an everlasting farewell in fifteen minutes. So I began to snub him that instant, and have snubbed him ever since in hopes he would get as tired of me as I am of him. But he won't. He does nothing but talk rubbish, and says he will bear it for my sake. And the fact is, I am beginning to hate him; and it serves me right."

She had always interested Mrs. Despard, but she interested her more than ever after this explanation. She positively fascinated her; and the end of it all was, that when the lady left Pen'yllan, she carried Lisbeth with her. The Misses Tregarthyn wept, and appealed, and only gave in, under protest, at last, because Lisbeth was stroner than the whole trio. She wanted to see the world, she said. Mrs. Despard was fond of her. She had money enough to make her so far independent, that she could return when whim seized her; and she was tired of Pen'yllan. So, why should she not go? She might only stay a month, or a week, but, however that was she had made up her mind to see lift. While the four fought their battle out, Mrs. Despard looked on and smiled. She knew Lisbeth would win, and of course Lisbeth did. She packed her trunk and went her way. But the night before her departure she had an interveiw with poor Hector Anstruthers, who came to the garden to speak to her, his boyish face pale and haggard, his sea-blue eyes wild and hollow with despair; and like the selfish, heartless, cool, little wretch that she was she put an end to his pleading peremptorily.

"No!" she said. "I would rather you would not write to me. I want to be let alone; and it is because I want to be let alone that I am going away from Pen'yllan. I never promised one of the things you are always insisting that I promised. You may call me as many hard names as you like, but you can't deny that——"

"No " burst forth the poor lad, in a frenzy. "You did not promise, but you let me understand——"

"Understand!" echoed his young tyrant. "I tried hard enough to make you understand that I wanted to be let alone. If you had been in your right senses, you might have seen what I meant. You have driven me almost out of my mind, and you must take the consequences." And then she turned away and left him, stunned and helpless, standing, watching her as she trailed over the grass between the lines of rose-bushes, the moonlight falling on her white dress, and the little light-blue scarf she had thrown over her long, loose, dusky hair.

Three years ago all this had happened, and she was with Mrs. Despard still, though of coarse she had visited Pen'yllan occasionally. She had not tired her patroness, if patroness she could be called. She was not the sort of girl to tire people of their fancy for her. She was too clever, too cool, too well-poised. She interested Mrs. Despard as much to-day as she had done in the first week of their acquaintance. She was just as much of a study for even, even in her most vexatious moods.

"Have you a headache?" asked Mrs. Despard, after a while.

"No," answered Lisbeth.

"Have you had bad news from Pen'yllan?"

Lisbeth looked up, and answered Mrs Despard with a sharp curiousness.

"How did you know I had heard from Pen'yllan? she demanded.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Despard, "I guessed so from the fact that you seemed to have no other reason for being out of humor; and lately that has always been a sufficient one."

"I cannot see why it should be," said Lisbeth, tartly. "What can Pen'yllan have to do with my humor?"

"But you have had a letter?" said Mrs. Despard.

"Yes: from Aunt Clarissa. There is no bad news in it, however. Indeed no news at all. How did I ever exist there?" her small, wan face lowering.

"You would not like to go back?" suggested Mrs. Despard.

Lisbeth shrugged her shoulders.

"Would you like me to go back?" she questioned.

"?" in some impatience. "You know as well as I do, that I canot do without you. You would never miss me, Lisbeth, as I should miss you. It is not your way to attach yourself to people."

"How do you know?" interposed Lisbeth. "What can you know about me? What can any one man or woman know of another? That is nonsense."

"It is the truth, nevertheless," was the reply.

"Who were you ever fond of? Were you fond of the Misses Tregarthyn who adored you? Were you fond of that poor boy, who was so madly in love with you? Have you been fond of any of the men who have made simpletons of themselves, because you had odd, fine eyes, and an odd, soft voice, and knew better than any other woman in the world, how to manage them? No; you know you have not."

Lisbeth shrugged her shoulders again.

"Well, then, it is my way, I suppose," she commented; "and my ways are like my humors, as you call them. So, we may as well let them rest."

There was a pause after this; then Lisbeth rose, and going to the table, began to gather together the parcels she had left there when she returned from her shopping expedition.

"You have not seen the dress?" she said.

"No."

"It is a work of art. The pansies are as real as any that ever bloomed. They might have been just gathered. How well that woman understands her business!"

CHAPTER 11.
Meeting an Old Love.

She went up-stairs, after this, to her own room, a comfortable, luxurious little place, near Mrs. Despard's own apartment. A clear, bright fire burned in the grate, and her special sleepy-hollow chair was drawn up before it; and when she had laid aside her hat, and disposed of her purchases, she came to this chair, and seated herself in it. Then she drew the Pen'yllan letter from her pocket, and laid it on her lap, and left it there, while she folded her hands, and leaned back, looking at the fire dreamily, and thinking to herself.

The truth is, that letter, that gentle, sweet-tempered, old-fashioned letter of Miss Clarissa's, stung the girl, wordly and selfish as she was. Three years ago she would not have cared much, but "seing the world"—ah! the world had taught her a lesson. She had seen a great deal of this world, under Mrs. Despard's guidance. She had ripened marvelously; she had grown half a score of years older; she had learned to be bitter and clear-sighted; and now a curious mental process was going on with her.

"We shall never cease to feel your absence, my dear," wrote Miss Tregarthyn. "Indeed, we sometimes say to each other, that we feel it more every day; but at the same time, we cannot help seeing that our life is not the life one so young and attractive ought to live. It was not a congenial life for our poor dear old Phillip, and how could it seem congenial to his daughter? And if, by a little sacrifice we can make our dear Lisbeth happy, ought we not to be more willing to submit to it? We are so proud of you, my dear, and it delights us so to hear that you are enjoying yourself, and being so much admired, that when we receive your letters, we forget everything else. Do you think you can spare us a week in the summer? If you can you know how it will rejoice us to see you, even for that short time," etc. etc. through half a dozen pages.

And this letter now lay on Lisbeth's lap as we have said, while she pondered over the contents, moodily.

"I do not see," she said, at last, "I do not see what there is in me for people to be so fond of."

A loosened coil of her hair hung over her shoulder and bosom, and she took this soft and thick black tress and began to twist is round and round her slender mite of a wrist with a queer sort of half-vindictive force. "Where is the fascination in me?" she demanded of the fire, one might have though. "It is not for my amiability, it is not for my 'odd fine eyes, and odd soft voice,' as Mrs. Despard puts it, that those three women love me, and lay themselev under my feet. If they were men," with scorn, "one could understand it. But women! It is because they are so much better than I am, that they cannot help loving something even me? Yes, it is!" defiantly. "Yes, it is."

She was angry, and all her anger was against herself, or at least against the fate which had made her what she was. Lisbeth knew herself better than other people knew her. It was fate, she told herself. She had been born cold-blooded and immovable, and it was not to be helped. But she never defended herself thus, when others accused her; she would have scorned to do it. It was only against her own secret, restless, inner accusations that she designed to defend herself. It was characteristic of her that she should brave the opinions of others and feel rebellious under her own. What Lisbeth Crespigny though in secret of Lisbeth Crespigny must have its weight.

At last she remembered the dress lying upon the bed—the dress Lecomte had just sent home. She was passionately fond of dress, especially fond of a certain striking, yet artistic style of setting, for her own unusual effective face and figure. She turned now to this dress, as a sort of refuge from herself.

"I may as well put it on now," she said. "It is seven o'clock, and it is as well to give one's self plenty of time."

So she got up and began her toilet leisurely. She found it by no means unpleasant to watch herself grow out of chrysalis form. She even found a keen pleasure in standing in the brilliant light before the mirror, working patiently at the soft, cloud-like masses of her hair, until she had wound and twisted it into some novel, graceful fancifulness. And yet even this scarcely arose from a vanity such as the vanity of other women.

She went down to the drawing-room when she was dressed. She knew she was looking her best, without being told. The pale-gray tissue, pale as a gray sea-mist, the golden-hearted, purple pansies with which it was lightly sown, and which were in her hair, and on her bosom, and in her hands, had an absolutely odd suitableness. Her eyes, too, strange, soft, dense, mysterious under their sweeping, straight black lashes—well, Lisbeth Crespigny's eyes and no other creature's.

"A first glance would tell me who had designed that dress," said Mrs. Despard. "It is no: Lecomte; it is your very self, in every touch and tint."

Lisbeth half-smiled, and looking down the length of the room, where she stood reflected in a mirror at the end of it, unfurled her fan, a gilded fan, thickly strewn with her purple pansies; but she made no reply.

glass-door, in the drawing-room, opened into a conservatory all aglow with light and bloom, and in this conservatory she was standing half an hour later, when the first arrivals came. The door, a double one, was wide open, and she, in the midst of the banks and tiers of flowers, was bending over a vase of heliotrope, singing a low snatch of song.

"The fairest rose blows but a day,
The fairest Spring must end with May
And you and I can only say,
Good-by, good-by, good-by!"

She just sang this much, and stopped. One of the two people who had arrived was speaking to Mrs. Despard. She lifted her head, and listened. She could not see the speaker's face, because a tall, tropical-leaved lily interposed itself. But the voice startled her uncomfortably.

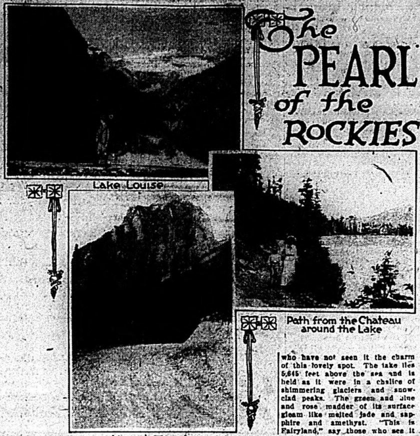
The PEARL of the ROCKIES



Lake Louise

Path from the Chateau around the Lake

Mount Temple

NAMED in honor of Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria, and wife of a Govern[illegible]eneral of Canada, Lake Louise, [illegible]e pearl of the Canadian Rockies, has for over twenty years been the despair of poets and artists who have vainly endeavored to transfer to paper or canvas an image which might convey to those who have not seen it the charm of this lovely spot. The lake lies 5,645 feet above the sea and is held as it were in a chalice of shimmering glaciers and snow-clad peaks. The green and blue and rose madder of its surface gleam like melted jade and sapphire and amethyst. "This is Fairyland," say those who see it and with difficulty tear themselves away. To the more prosaic C.P.R. it means thirty thousand passengers a year, tourists who have come from all over the world to see for themselves an incomparable gift from Nature.

VON KLUCK CELEBRATED HIS CAPTURE OF PARIS TOO SOON

Almost at Gates of City, He Tarried and Celebrated Victory With Champagne and Band Concert

PARIS, Nov. 25.—L'Opinion prints an interesting account of Gen. von Kluck's unlucky Sunday, September 6, the day Paris heard the roar of cannon in the distance, written by Paul Birault, from evidence he has collected at first hand.

Three or four Frenchmen have approached Von Kluck and seen him in his own surroundings and their testimony has been gathered. Saturday, September 5, at Coulommiers, 45 miles by rail from Paris, the General believed he had won, and tired by the long effort from Charleroi, certain that victory could not escape, he resolved to take a few hours' rest.

Two officers had come in the morning to prepare quarters for the staff and, preceded by a squad of Uhlans, had gone to the City Hall and demanded a horse and carriage. With these they proceeded to visit the cafes. The Uhlans at each one went down to the cellar and brought up all the champagne cases they could find. When the carriage was full they drove to the house chosen for the General, unloaded and proceeded on another expedition.

Behind half-closed shutters the inhabitants watched these proceedings and some were risking themselves outside, when cries arose. A cyclist squadron arrived, preceding the Death's Hand Hussars, who galloped in, revolvers in hand, and foot soldiers with bayonets fixed, every one shouting "The Staff! The Staff! No one in the streets!" Every one fled and Von Kluck made his entry.

Champagne and Sardines

He was in a charming mood that day and amused himself by reading the quaint names on the street signs, Rue le da Pecherie, Cour de l'Ange, Boulevard du Balayage and Boulevard de la Mutualite. The beauty of the landscape seemed to have won him and given him an appetite. At any rate as soon as he had arrived he ordered something to eat. The cook, who had come two hours before, was ready. He had emptied into a large pan three tins of green peas, borrowed from the nearest grocer, added four pounds of bacon and boiled the lot oven an open fire. The menu included plenty of sardines, Von Kluck's favorite delicacy when well sprinkled with champagne.

This slight foretaste having been finished, Von Kluck sent for the wife of the French gardener, who was acting guardian of the place, and said:—

"Your masters are with the army, right? Have you any children? Five sons with the colors? Perfect. I promise to protect them when they are incorporated in the German army."

In Paris in a Week

Then he ordered three beds to be placed in a small drawing room on the ground floor for himself and two Generals, and a thick layer of straw to be laid in the other rooms for his staff. He surveyed the preparations and expressed his satisfaction, adding:—

"This is our last stage, we leave Coulomimers, the day after to-morrow to enter Paris." Then standing before the woman he said: "In eight days you will be a German."

For all preparations were made for the entry into Paris. A high personage had just arrived, protected by an imposing escort. It was said to be Prince Eitel, the Kaiser's second son, appointed to head the troops as they paraded through the capital of France.

The Mayor was ordered to change "The banks are closed", he pleaded. 10,000 marks into French money. "You will have half an hour," replied Von Kluck.

In thirty minutes Gen. Darmstadt betook himself to the City Hall and received 12,500 francs.

"That's not my reckoning", said the German officer. "Ten thousand marks make 13,500 francs, as Gen Von Kluck has decided that the mark is at a premium, German silver being better than French."

And Gen. Darmstadt laughed heartily at his chief's excellent joke.

The Morning After

On Sunday morning Gen von Kluck rose late and his good temper had left him. Germans cannot stand French wine, which they drink in large gulps as they do their own beer, instead of in sips, and their awakenings are painful. The charming house where Von Kluck was installed seemed to reek, a bitter smell invaded the nostrils, the straw on which the escort slept was filthy. Von Kluck took breakfast in the garden and then had a table placed on the veranda and made it his office.

At 2 o'clock there were signs of great animation, military couriers began arriving one after another, who seemed to bring bad news. At Rosoy en Brie the English were resisting, then they were beginning a vigorous offensive. At dusk a Taube flew over the headquarters and gave forth prolonged appeals from its siren. Was it a signal of defeat?

Collected and calm, Von Kluck gave his orders. Darkness had now settled on the town, but the headquarters, fully alight, seemed to vibrate the engine room of a steamship. All at once the light grew weaker, the gas slowly grew lower and then went out.

Von Kluck felt terror. What danger was coming out of this hostile darkness? Hurriedly his escort prepared to defend, and while the officers hunted for candles, the faithful Darmstadt rushed to the City Hall crying:

"A thousand francs! You will pay one thousand francs an hour!"

At the same time he seized the Mayor's secretary, surrounded him with Uhlans and conducted him to the gas works. There it was easy to discover that the manager having left the town twenty-four hours before, after putting out the fires, the gasometers were exhausted. Von Kluck on being told, ordered three hostages to be taken, the Mayor, M. Delsol; the secretary, M. Bard, and M. Chatay, the public prosecutor. Gen. Darmstadt insisted on arresting the last nomed himself, so as to add another insult or two. After doing this freely, he pointed to the magistrate'se toque and said, "Take your cap and follow me!"

Threatened to Shoot Hostages

The hostage were warned that they would be shot in the morning and the town fined $20,000. But the staff had lost valuable time by this scare. Maps studied under a chance light are hard to read, and a plan of defence must be improvised while the English, pursuing their advantage, were drawing near the town. At dawn they were about half a mile away from the staff's quarters, which was in danger of being captured.

One of the English crack shots at 800 yards brought down a German sentinel, so Von Kluck decided to flee. Before leaving he had the hostages placed before a wall and for twenty minutes he kept them in anxious suspense, then set them free.

Thus began Von Kluck's withdrawal from before Paris.

Among the Lions in the Dark.

Lecturing at the Royal Photographic society, reports the Dundee Advertiser, A. Radclyffe Dugmore said that on one night in British East Africa he saw twelve lions and succeeded in photographing ten of them. He set up three cameras near a carcass, connecting them with a flashlight apparatus. He watched through the night in a hiding place, and when a lion appeared he pressed a button, which opened the shutters of all three cameras and ignited the flash powder. Immediately after the flash the lions ran off, growling, and it was then necessary for the photographer to go out with a hand lamp and then reset the instruments. Until a man had done that he never knew what darkness was. Lions at night, said Mr. Dugmore, went by in troops of any number from three or four up to thirty or forty.

His Stock in Trade.

The nervous little man next to the car window sized up the fat man who shared the seat with him and ventured the inquiry:

"How's business?"

"Can't complain," said the other laconically.

"What do you deal in?"

"Mothers-in-law, billygoats, tramps, the weather, stranded actors, candidates, politics and the like."

"Whattyye tryin' to do?" snarled the nervous little man. "Tryin' to kid me?"

"Nope," the fat man grinned. "The things I have named in a large measure comprise my stock in trade. You see, my dear sir, I am a professional writer of jokes and anecdotes."—Youngstown Telegram.

As Parlow Plays

THE tone of the Violin is exceptionally difficult to reproduce. Its richness and lusciousness depend on over-tones, so soft, so delicate, so fleeting, that the ordinary "talking machine" can neither record nor reproduce them.

But Mr. Edison—the wizard—the inventor of the Phonograph, the wonder of the musical world—accomplished the seemingly impossible in

The new EDISON PHONOGRAPH
(THE INSTRUMENT WITH THE DIAMOND POINT)

So perfect are the Edison methods of Recording — so perfect are Edison instruments and records (which you may have in your own home at small cost) that the violin records become the violin of Ole Bull and Joachim. All the richness fullness, softness — all the throbbing, heart-appealing tenderness—all the luscious tones and over-tones—float from this amazing instrument just as the great artists achieve them on their priceless violins.

The new Edison Phonograph has the diamond reproducing point, unbreakable and long playing records, superior motors and construction, concealed horns, and the Cabinets are made in true Period styles, in perfect harmony with the finest furniture.

Milady's Mirror

The Business Woman's Toilet.

The business woman has no time for morning prinking. As one young woman puts it, "Before I go to bed at night I have to be dressed for the next day." She does not spend more than an hour in the evening over her toilet, but in addition she spends an hour once a week at a first class beauty parlor. One week she has a shampoo and scalp treatment, another facial massage and manicure treatment; on another visit her feet are put in order, and so on.

She takes her warm, cleansing bath at night, but before this she cleanses her face and neck thoroughly with a good cleansing cream, then anoints it with massage cream, which for the moment she leaves on the face.

Grooming the Hair.

She lets down her hair, brushes it thoroughly and leaves it pinned up lightly, but sufficiently high to escape a wetting in the bath. Then she files her nails and jumps in her bath, which is soft and fragrant with soap powder. She does not allow the water to touch her face or neck, but she uses a flesh brush vigorously over her body and scrubs her finger nails and toe nails before she empties the tub and rinses off well with a fine spray. This spray or thorough rinse is absolutely necessary, for, after the soapy water has done its cleansing purpose, it should be well rinsed off the skin.

Massaging the Face.

When she returns to her toilet table the heat of the bath has started a mild perspiration on scalp and face, and the massage cream that she has left on her face has been largely absorbed. She gives her scalp a five minute massage, and, slightly wetting her hair, she rolls the locks about the face and nape of the neck over kid rollers for the night. The skin of the face being now well lubricated, a few minutes' facial massage quite removes the tired lines of the day, and she finishes with a brisk douche of cold water.

Caring For the Nails.

The skin about the nails has been softened in the bath, and a few minutes' work with a nail stick, followed by a little polishing, is sufficient to put them in good condition. Nails that are never neglected are not difficult to keep in order.

If any artificial hair is worn this is the moment to brush it and arrange it for the morning. If there are any changes to be made in the dress—a stitch to take, a fresh collar to be added—do it now. Lay out clean clothes; put soiled ones into the laundry bag. The few extra minutes this will take are largely compensated for by the restfulness of going to bed in a tidy room and the consciousness that there need be no rush or disturbance in the morning.

How to Wash the Hands.

There is a right and wrong way of doing everything, and this maxim applies as much to washing the hands as to anything else.

Choose your soap carefully. It must be good and pure and not too highly scented. A little borax or ammonia in the water will serve the double purpose of softening it and assisting to remove stains.

Every time you wash your hands wash them thoroughly, taking care that the lines on the palm are perfectly cleansed. If this is neglected the lines will become coarser and deeper, which is just what we are most anxious to avoid.

It is very important indeed that the hands should be thoroughly dried and that they should not be exposed either to cold or the heat of the fire immediately after being washed.

If they are left with a little dampness on them you are encouraging the formation of chaps, and roughness and redness are sure to follow.

Foot Ease.

Nothing is more trying to the temper than a corn. If the corn is a hard one and very bad bind a slice of lemon over it every night till it is less painful.

If you have soft corns between the afflicted toes put pads of absorbent cotton saturated with boracic powder. Use a fresh pad every day. It is wonderful how quickly this treatment relieves the pain.

If your feet get tender, and blister easily when walking you should always wear woolen stockings, and before pulling them on your feet should be well dusted over with boracic powder.

Beautiful White Hands.

To whiten hands that have become browned through exposure the following is an excellent mixture:

Take a wineglassful each of honey, lemon juice and eau de cologne.

Mix well together, pour into a china jar and keep closely corked. Apply night and morning after washing and drying, rubbing the mixture well into the hands.

The Powder Puff.

Instead of powder puffs requiring frequent cleansing there are now offered tiny balls of absorbent cotton tied with pink, blue, yellow or mauve ribbons to match the toilet table color. These are to be used once and discarded. They should be kept in a wide mouthed jar or bag.

NEW PATCHWORK.

Quaint Revival of a Once Popular Style of Needlework.

CONVENTIONALIZED DESIGNS.

Floral Patterns and Geometrical Figures Are the Favored Effects For the Decoration of Cushion Covers, Curtains, Tray Insets, Etc.

A new idea in fancy work is the adapting of quaint geometrical designs in applied colored cottons which appeared in the bedquilts of a century ago. Pillow tops, table covers, curtains, lamp and candle shades and insets for trays and baskets may all be carried out in this style of decoration.

The work when used in this way requires no quilting, the designs being cut from the colored cottons and felled with tiny stitches to the foundation material. The use of an embroidery hoop insures better results, but much of the work is held in the hand like any other ordinary piece of sewing.

Showy floral designs are favorites, partly because of the beauty of the colorings and partly because it is possible to gain good effects with conventionalized flowers. Tulips, morning glories, wild roses and hollyhocks are particularly well suited to reproduction in this applique fashion, and ferns and leaves are effective carried out in several shades of green. Bunches of grapes, cherries and plums are also good, cottons of the correct colors being chosen to carry out the natural effect.

PINCUSHION COVERS.

Wall paper designs and handsome cretonnes suggest many appropriate patterns for this style of work and also give desirable color schemes. Each bit of the design must be cut out, with a narrow margin allowed for turning in. The best way is to cut a cardboard pattern of the flowers and leaves required. This is then laid on the colored material and the outline marked with lead pencil.

But cutting a little beyond the line there will be sufficient to turn under and baste. The design is then caught lightly to the foundation and when arranged to the best advantage is felled neatly, the stitches being not only small, but of such a slant as to be almost hidden under the edge of the applied design.

French chambrays come in lovely shadings for this work, as their two toned effect gives a natural coloring when used for flowers and foliage.

The woman who is seeking ideas for Christmas gifts may find the above suggestion useful. The illustration may also be helpful, showing as it does a charming pincushion embroidered on soft dull surfaced silk, with knots of rosebuds and forgetmenots. The border is a frill of cluny lace. It also shows a handsome pincushion cover in cutwork. The pattern is marked on the linen, and after the edges have been embroidered the material is cut away so that the colored surface over which the cushion is laid may show through. Lace and bows of ribbon are applied to the border.

CARING FOR THE SICK.

Don't jar the bed by leaning or sitting upon it.

Don't have temperature of sick room over 65 degrees. Keep cool.

Don't fill the room with fresh flowers. Keep one or two bouquets in the room at a time. Change every two or three hours if you have a great many.

Don't whisper.

Don't tiptoe.

Don't shout.

Don't rattle paper. Nothing gets on one's nerves more than this.

Don't talk too loudly.

Don't appear anxious. People who are ill are very sensitive to your anxiety.

Don't give the patient more water in a glass than he is allowed.

Don't allow the sheets to become wrinkled.

Don't forget to be kind and patient.

Don't forget to smile.

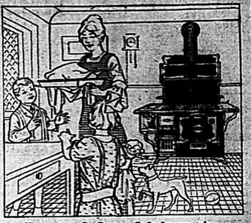
The Gurney-Oxford is a Splendid, Dependable Stove

SUPPOSE you buy a range, and that range is a disappointment.

Suppose it doesn't hold the fire between meals. Suppose it burns too much coal—or that it bakes well to-day and to-morrow "falls down." That is a serious matter—is it not?

If three times a day you have to deal with a stove that is a source of trouble and worry—that fact has an influence on your domestic happiness.

That is a strong statement—but isn't it true?



The owner of a Gurney-Oxford never takes anything from the oven with uncertainty as to results.

So before you buy your stove is the time to investigate. The Gurney-Oxford Stove has a nation-wide reputation for reliability. It's not the cheapest stove. It is impossible to make so good a stove as this and sell it for what a cheap stove costs. But, it's a thoroughly well-made stove. The material and workmanship in it are the very best. It's an economical stove inasmuch as it's durable: it will outlast two or three stoves less well made. And during its long life it never fails to do its work. It's there to cook every meal with no trouble or worry.

The Gurney-Oxford Economizer enables you to keep the fire in perfect control always. The grates are designed for perfect combustion.

The divided flues convey the heat from the fire to all sides and corners of the oven. The owner of a Gurney-Oxford does not know what it means to worry over a fire or to take a roast or a batch of biscuits from the oven with uncertainty.

The thousands of Canadian housewives who own Gurney-Oxfords rely on them without disappointment.

They have proved themselves to be splendid, dependable stoves, and extremely economical in fuel consumption.

We want to show you the Gurney-Oxford and demonstrate the features that have gained for it first place in everything that makes a stove valuable.

CURIOUS FOSSIL FORESTS,

Twelve Tower, One Above the Other, in Yellowstone Park.

In the Yellowstone National park twelve successive forests, one on top of another, have been buried by outflows of lava and petrified, according to a government pamphlet entitled "Fossil Forests of the Yellowstone National Park," by F. H. Knowlton.

The area within which the fossil forests are now found was apparently in the beginning an irregular but relatively flat basin, on the floor of which, after a time, there grew the first forest. Then there came from some of the volcanoes, probably those to the north, an outpouring of ashes, mud flows and other material which entirely buried the forest, but so gradually that the trees were simply submerged by the incoming material, few of them being prostrated. On the raised floor of the basin, after a time, the next forest came into existence, only to be in turn engulfed as the first had been, and so on through the period represented by the 2,000 feet or more of similar beds.

The whole history of the manner in which these forests were fossilized is not fully understood, but it was undoubtedly dependent on or at least greatly facilitated by the presence of volcanic and hydrothermal activity, which was doubtless then, as it is to some extent now, a marked feature of the park region. The fossil forests are surrounded by a matrix that is known as an acidic lava, which contains abundant silica in solution. The first part of the process of silicification may well have been that silica would be deposited in all the cells and vessels of the wood, making an accurate cast of all open spaces. Then, while the slow process of decay went on, as each particle of organic matter was removed its place was taken by the silica, until finally all the wood substance had disappeared and its place, atom by atom, had been taken by silica.

Don't worry over a mistake that can be corrected. Get busy and correct it.

If you want a better job than you have do your best on the one you have.

If the world was without woe the cynic would be the unhappiest man of all.

There are many men who say nothing and yet are not busy at the wood-

Thornedale

Or an Inglorious Flight

By EDITH V. ROSS

A young man fashionably dressed alighted from a train at a station in the country and called an auto cab.

"Drive me to the Thorndale House," he said, "but first"—handing the driver a baggage check—"get my trunk."

The gentleman seated himself in the cab while the cabman went for the trunk. The latter was new to the place and, not knowing any such hotel as the Thorndale House, made inquiries of the station agent.

"He must mean Thornedale, the residence of Mr. Edward Thorne. It is up the road about a mile. You'll know it when you come to it, for it is a fine place between the road and the river."

The cabman lugged the trunk to the auto, deposited it therein, then started for Thornedale. On reaching it he pulled up under a porte-cochere, near which on the veranda sat a young lady reading a novel. The gentleman stepped out of the auto. The cabman dumped the trunk on the veranda and drove away. The stranger walked past the young lady through the open front door into the house. Seeing no such place as a hotel office or any one to receive him, he went back on to the veranda, raised his hat deferentially to the young lady and said:

"Beg pardon. Can you tell me where I'll find the landlord."

"The landlord?"

"Yes, or the clerk or anybody to receive me. This is the Thorndale hotel, is it not?"

"The Thornedale? Oh, yes, this is Thornedale."

"I was recommended to come here by a lady. She is here, is she not—Mrs. Overaker?"

"Mrs. Overaker is expected. She has not yet arrived. You are"—

"Mr. Wingate—John Wingate."

"Oh, Mr. Wingate. I've heard Mrs. Overaker speak of you. Be seated, Mr. Wingate. There's no one about just now but myself. I'll get some one to show you to your room and take up your trunk."

"Please don't incommode yourself. I am in no hurry."

The young lady, who had half risen, reseated herself.

"Quite likely," said the young man, fishing for the young lady's name, "I have heard of you through Mrs. Overaker."

"I am Luella Humphrey."

"Humphrey," meditatively. "I don't know that I have heard her mention any one of that name."

"Have you known Mrs. Overaker long?"

"Only a few months. She came east last spring and visited some friends of mine—the Grosvenors."

"I was quite surprised to hear that Mrs. Overaker was coming back this season. It's a long journey for her to take."

"It's an equally long journey from here to her home."

An imperceptible smile flitted across the young lady's lips. She knew why Mr. Wingate was there and why Mrs. Overaker was coming there. The former was a bachelor, the latter a widow. A courtship between them had been made easy by the lady, and an engagement was to be expected. But, since it was difficult for Mr. Wingate to go to the widow, the widow had made an excuse to go to Mr. Wingate. She had written him that she would be at Thornedale early in October. The lady wrote an illegible hand, and Mr. Wingate read "the Thorndale." Supposing the place to be a hotel, he had gone there to make her a proposal.

Mr. Wingate was a good catch. The widow was ten years older than he and had set her cap for him. Miss Humphrey was a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne and of an age when young ladies are usually on the lookout for husbands. Here was an opportunity—an opportunity that had been enhanced by the widow's bad handwriting in another way than in leading Mr. Wingate to think she was to stay at a hotel. She had written him and the Thornes as well that she would arrive on the 10th of October. He had read it the 1st. Miss Humphrey, if she played her cards well, might have ten days to get a matrimonial hook into Mr. Wingate's mouth.

After Mr. Wingate's remark that it was an equally long journey to the widow's home Miss Humphrey sat listening to what he said further, but intent on what immediate action she would take. Presently she excused herself, and a maid came and showed Mr. Wingate to his room. His trunk followed later. While he was making his toilet an automobile pulled up under the porte-cochere and a gentleman and lady alighted. They were Mr. and Mrs. Thorne. Miss Humphrey told them of the guest who had arrived and the mistake he had made, suggesting that it would be amusing to permit him to continue to be deceived. Thorne, who was ready for anything whereby to make his stay in the country endurable, fell in with the plan enthusiastically.

When the guest came down just before luncheon he was received by Mr. Thorne, who said to him cheerily:

"Sorry not to have been here to receive you, sir. Fact is, we have room for very few guests at any time, and now those who have been here are all returned to the city. So I don't trouble myself to stay about the place much. My niece tells me that she took care of you. Do you like your room?"

"Very much."

"Well, come in to luncheon. Since our guests are all gone it would be lonely for you to eat alone, so we will take you in with us."

"That's very kind of you."

The party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, Miss Humphrey and Mr. Wingate, sat down to table in a dining room handsomely furnished and partook of a luncheon which the guest pronounced equal to any he had ever eaten in a private house. What puzzled him was that both the landlord and landlady seemed to be to the manner born, while their niece was evidently every inch a lady. True, the landlord talked a great deal about the fine season they had had and the money they had made out of their guests. This seemed to be mortifying to his wife and niece, for during these boasts they both concealed their features behind their napkins. When they had finished the meal and were rising from the table Mrs. Thorne said to her niece:

"Luella, I think you had better take Mr. Wingate out for an auto ride this afternoon. This is a dull place, Mr. Wingate, but we'll do the best we can to keep you from being lonely."

"I shall consider myself under deep obligations," replied the guest.

When an hour later a runabout was brought to the porte-cochere Miss Humphrey took the wheel, and she and Mr. Wingate sped away merrily. They returned only in time to dress for dinner.

"Please charge up all the extras," he said to the landlord privately, "the auto and any wine I order, and I'll pay when I settle my bill."

"You'll find everything charged," said Thorne, "even the cigars."

Mr. Wingate was so delightfully entertained that he didn't fret about the delay in the widow's coming. He played tennis with Miss Humphrey in the morning and rode in the auto with her in the afternoon. In the evening the four occupants of the house played cards, and the days sped by merrily. One day Miss Humphrey said to her companion:

"When do you expect Mrs. Overaker?"

"Mrs. Overaker? Why, I expected her on the 1st of the month. What's this—the 3d?"

"This is the 9th."

"You don't mean it. I wonder what is delaying her."

"Delaying her? You don't expect her at all now, do you?"

Mr. Wingate hoped in his heart that she would not come, but he said that something might have occurred to change her plans. That evening it was evident to all except Mr. Wingate that something of importance was at hand. A delicious dinner was served. Miss Humphrey was clad in a costume that the guest pronounced a "blue dream of heaven." After dinner the landlord and landlady excused themselves and left the place, leaving Mr. Wingate and their niece in the drawing room. A perfume of flowers came in from the conservatory adjoining. Mr. Wingate forgot all about the widow, and—well, when Mr. and Mrs. Thorne returned he was engaged to Miss Humphrey.

A supper was set in the dining room, to which the four persons adjourned. Mrs. Thorne and her niece hung back for a few whispered words. Then there was the popping of a champagne cork, and Mrs. Thorne, holding her glass high, proposed the health of the newly engaged couple. Mr. Thorne kissed his niece and, slapping his guest on the back, said vociferously:

"This is no hotel. This is the residence of your humble servant, Edward Thorne, banker. But you've been welcome, my boy, and we give you our little Lu gladly. We've heard lots about you from Mrs. Overaker, and all to your credit."

The expression on Wingate's face was a mingling of surprise, shame and happiness.

"When do you expect Mrs. Overaker?" he asked.

"Tomorrow afternoon."

"I regret that my limit of time to be absent has expired and I shall not have the pleasure of meeting her after all. I must go back to the city in the morning."

"So soon?" exclaimed the host and hostess in a breath.

"Don't detain a man from his business," said Luella. "I think Mr. Wingate is perfectly excusable in going, and if I don't complain no one should."

"We'll all go," said the host.

The next morning an automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, Miss Humphrey and Mr. Wingate pulled out from under the porte-cochere destined for the city, Mr. Thorne at the wheel. They had been gone only a few minutes when a train passed on the railway track beside them.

"Supposing," said Mr. Thorne, "that Mrs. Overaker should be ahead of time and on that train."

Mr. Wingate shuddered.

"Such a thing is possible," said Mrs. Thorne. "If Mrs. Overaker is on the train we shall meet her coming from the station."

Mr. Wingate shuddered again.

"It will be embarrassing for me," continued the speaker, "since I agreed to keep her during her stay here."

"I'll turn off by this road," said Mr. Thorne.

He did turn off, and Mr. Wingate breathed a sigh of relief.

Mrs. Overaker did arrive by that train, and when she reached Thornedale she found it deserted. Mrs. Thorne made an excuse to the widow such as ladies of breeding know how to manufacture. Mr. Wingate needed no excuse. How could he meet the widow at the Thornes' when the Thornes were not at home?

recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some new Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament, and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the text matter which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full-page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying text matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

READ WHAT THE EDITOR OF THE

Ladies' Home Journal

SAYS ABOUT THIS GREAT WORK:

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL
THE CURTIS PUBLISHING CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Edited by EDWARD W. BOK

"Why I like this illustrated edition of the Bible is because everything about it has been well done and seems to have been done in the right spirit. The Book itself has been approached by the annotator with reserve and intelligence, and by its artists with sympathy and knowledge. It has not been made into a meaningless picture book. The pictures here serve a distinct purpose. They enrich the text, but they do more; they intelligently explain it, and many a hitherto obscure passage will assume to thousands a new meaning through these eye-teaching pictures. Popularizing the Bible is a risky experiment in the hands of many, but it has been made a splenpid achievement in this case.

"EDWARD W. BOK."

This is the one Book of All Books that Will Be Appreciated by Every Member of the Family, Young and Old Alike.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religous beliefs, such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

Self Pronouncing.

Every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Out of "Caste."

Many people, unless actually familiar with the ways and customs of the native of India, have little idea as to how superstitious many of these people are, especially with regard to their "caste" system.

In this district not very long ago a coolie while passing through the jungle was suddenly attacked and most severely mauled by a bear. His comrades, however, although they knew that a few miles distant there was a well equipped hospital, conveyed him to a village close by, where he was kept without medical assistance of any kind and in a blazing sun for three days.

When eventually brought into the hospital the man's plight may be better imagined than described. The surgeon and his assistants managed to keep him alive, but his face is so disfigured that he is known in the district as the "reache wallah" (bear man). The most extraordinary thing about this case is that the unfortunate person was during the time he lay in hospital considered by the fraternity to be unclean, with the result that his own wife was, through attending to his requirements, thrown out of "caste."—India Gazette.

Mexican "Puchero."

When things are at their best in Mexico first rate feeding is to be had. When such an expert as George Augustus Sala describes anything as "a grand dish" there can be no doubt about it, and that is how he speaks of the "puchero"—the literal meaning of which is "pipkin." There is beef in it—boiled beef—the French bouilli, in fact. There is bacon. There are garbanzos (broad beans) and charming little black puddings and cabbage and delicate morsels of fried banana. It is very wholesome and very filling, and there is no use in your complaining that an odor of garlic pervades it, because the room and the tablecloth and your next neighbor are all equally redolent of the omnipresent ajo. There is a proverb which I may translate thus:

He who lets puchero pass
Is either in love, or asleep, or an ass.

—London Chronicle.

He Beat the Postoffice.

The French postoffice once found itself bested by a man who refused to pay an excess fee. He was condemned to pay the amount in dispute and a heavy fine besides. He declared that the authorities would not extract a centime from him and set about having his revenge. He bought a plot of ground in the French Alps, twenty-seven kilometers from the postoffice, and there built a hut. In this he installed an old shepherd, in whose name he subscribed to the Petit Journal, to deliver which it was necessary to engage a special postman, there being no other habitation within a wide circuit. After a time the authorities prevailed on Nardin to withdraw his shepherd, whereupon they withdrew their claim and paid him a small indemnity.—St. Joseph News Press.

Woman and Work.

Women are today what they have been throughout the history of the race—good wives, good mothers, good pals, good sweethearts, good sisters. Women in industry are no new thing. Women have been in industry since time began, and the women who have gone out to factory, to office, to schoolroom, to hospital, to clinic, to platform, are but doing, outside the home, what their mothers and grandmothers did inside the home. To take three-quarters of woman's vocations outside the home and to leave her with manacled hands inside the home would be to let her beat her life out against the cave wall of a prison cell in an idleness that would be madness.—From "The Autobiography of a Happy Woman."

England's Oldest Theater.

The village theater at Little Easton may be the oldest theater in use in England, but it is not the oldest in existence. Visitors in Dorchester can find there a wonderfully preserved Roman theater, designed, it has been estimated, to seat about 13,000 people and artfully arranged to have the sun behind the majority of them for the greater part of the day. And this theater has been used in compartively modern times, for in 1706 10,000 people (alleged to be civilized) gathered there to witness the burning of a woman who had poisoned her husband.—London Spectator.

Women and Men.

Woman began at zero and has through ages slowly unfolded and risen. Each age has protested against growth as unsexing woman. Men might spin and churn and knit and sew and cook and rock the cradle for generations and not be women. And woman will not become man by external occupations. God's colors do not wash out; sex is dyed in the wool.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Restraint.

"Before we were married you called me an angel."

"I know it."

"And now you don't call me anything."

"You ought to be sincerely glad that I possess such self control."—Houston Post.

Reform.

Passenger—Your trains always used to be late. Today I arrived ten minutes before departure time and find my train gone. Station Master—Ah! Since our new manager took charge we are trying to make up for lost time.—Paris Journal Amusant.

The invasion of Prussia by the Russians makes one wonder if the Russian proclamation abolishing vodka was not a clever ruse to make their soldiers cross the border, where they knew liquor was to be had. There is an old proverb about driving men to drink, which may be working out in Russia in a modified form.

According to The London Advertiser, Liberal policies have been "uniformly sound and attractive." If you do not believe this look at the strength of the party in the Ontario Legislature and at the Ontario delegation of 13 members in the House of Commons.

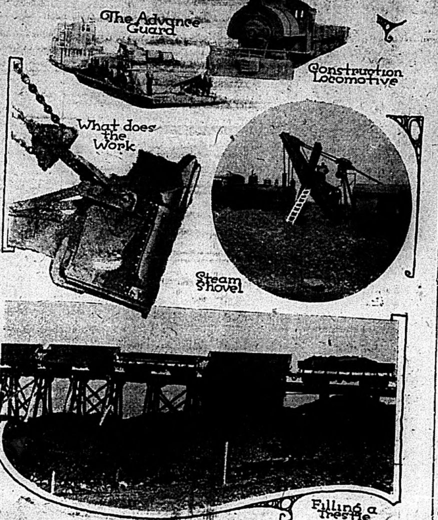
RAILWAY BUILDING in Canada



RAILWAY BUILDING IN CANADA

As you fall back in the luxurious arm chair of the observation car of the Imperial Limited, after having been served with tea, perhaps in the same manner that you would be served in your own home or at your favorite club, you do not realibe and even little care about the enormous cost of the road of steel over which you are speeding. Your chief thought, if you have one regarding the railway is that the track is smooth and the cars do not jolt you as they swing around the curves.

Railway construction is the heaviest kind of work. Nature and all of her allies seem bent on preventing the building of this narrow connecting path of commerce. Every foot is fought for and costs heavily in life, labor and money. It is gruelling, cruelly arduous work in every department. The first engineers over the route are pioneers in every sense of the word and their labors consist of much more than surveying. In the early history of the Canadian Pacific the engineers were often called upon to thread wildernesses, little, if ever, tried before by white men. These engineers were also explorers and much of the scientific data concerning the vast country to the west was gathered by the men sent out by this railway company to locate its line to tide water on the Pacific Ocean.

Briefly, the general course of precedure for railway construction in Canada is about as follows, although, of course, it must be understood that such procedure varies greatly with individual cases as governed by local conditions.

An examination of traffic possibilities indicating that the construction of a line of railway between two given points is advisable having been made, the first thing done is to make a general examination of the area of country under consideration from which a map showing all the governing topegraphical routes are projected and those that appear most suitable are picked out by further study. This further study consists of running preliminary lines by means of chain, transit and level, from which the physical characteristics, such as distance, curvature, rise and fall and approximate construction cost for each route can be determined.

It having been decided from these preliminary surveys as to which is the most economical route for the line under construction, detailed location surveys are then made over this route and the centre line of the final location staked out.

Estimates are then made to ascertain necessary width of right of way required, plans of the final location are prepared and submitted to the Governor-in-Council for the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada for approval. As this work progresses, examinations of the surrounding country must be made for ballast pits, water supplies and other materials which may be required in the construction of the railway. Detailed surveys must also be made for local traffic facilities.

It having been finally located and approved, the next item to be considered is the purchase of the right of way.. If the line traverses an unsettled district, roads often of considerable length, must then be constructed, by which the necessary plant, materials and supplies to be used in the work can be transported to the line. In the construction of these roads it is very often encessary to go to considerable expense on account of the fact that to do heavy construction work a very heavy type of plant must be used.

Camps for the housing and sustenance of men and horses must be constructed and an efficient method of transportation for supplies established. The engineering work from this time forward consists of minor adjustments of the location such as may appear economical; preparation of land plans; the staking out and measurement of the work to be done, and the preparation of detailed bridge plans.

In timbered country the right of way as a general practise, must be cleared for its entire width. The timber, where suitable, is used for fence posts, track ties, telegraph poles and trestles.

The equipment usually employed in grading consists of steam shovels weighing from 20 to 90 tons, locomotives of various types, weighing from 20 to 140 tons; cars for the transportation of materials to be moved in the excavation of the cuttings, construction of embankments, ranging in capacity from one-half to thirty yards; appliances for the unloading and spreading of materials, such as Lidgerwood unloaders, caw plows and spreaders. The small cuttings and embankments are usually constructed by grading machines, scrapers, wagons and cars. In additions to the above general equipment, in rock work steam and air drills, boilers, and compressors, must be supplied.

In the construction of bridges, plant consisting of concrete mixers, rock crushers and derricks must be supplied. Where large gaps are to be crossed, for which insufficient material is at hand to fill, it is a customary practise to construct temporary trestles of timber, which permit of track laying to be carried on and which can later be filled by train haul materials transported often from considerable distances. This type of timber construction is also customary in the bridging of streams where it is possible, in order to avoid delay to the general progress of the work. Steel bridges to replace these temporary structures can then be constructed after the line is in operation. Large bridges are very often the governing feature in the length of time required to construct a railroad, as, where temporary types of construction are impracticable, it becomes necessary to wait for the erection of the steel work after the track reaches the structure in question, thus often causing very serious delays to the general progress.

As the grading and construction of culverts, bridges and trestles nears completion, yards must be established at available points for tracklaying. Track materials are obtained and carefully piled in these yards in such a manner that they are available for quick delivery to track laying machines. Tracklaying of lines of any considerable length is generall done with a tracklaying machine, of which there are various types. These machines consist of derricks for handling rails and trams which are adjusted to the side of flat cars and which have rollers in the bottom over which ties and rails are moved from the material cars on the train to the front of the machine. With such a machine working to its capacity, without interruption, from two to three miles of track can be laid in a day. As the tracklaying proceeds, ballast must be obtained and placed under the ties, and track raised to proper elevation, properly surfaced. Crushed rock is the best ballast and is used extensively by the Canadian Pacific.

Telegraph line construction must be kept up as closely as possible with tracklaying in order to facilitate the movement of trains. As soon as tracklaying is sufficiently advanced to admit of the forwarding of materials, water tanks, station buildings, yards and terminal equipment are constructed.

Railway construction costs hundreds of thousands of dollars per mile. In many cases the rate per mile has been above a million dollars.

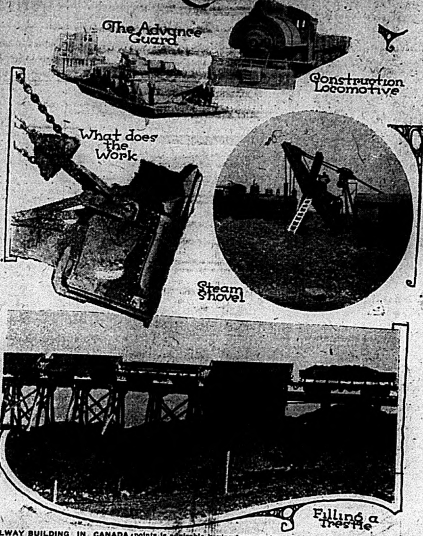
RAILWAY BUILDING in Canada



RAILWAY BUILDING IN CANADA

As you fall back in the luxurious arm chair of the observation car of the Imperial Limited, after having been served with tea, perhaps in the same manner that you would be served in your own home or at your favorite club, you do not realibe and even little care about the enormous cost of the road of steel over which you are speeding. Your chief thought, if you have one regarding the railway is that the track is smooth and the cars do not jolt you as they swing around the curves.

Railway construction is the heaviest kind of work. Nature and all of her allies seem bent on preventing the building of this narrow connecting path of commerce. Every foot is fought for and costs heavily in life, labor and money. It is gruelling, cruelly arduous work in every department. The first engineers over the route are pioneers in every sense of the word and their labors consist of much more than surveying. In the early history of the Canadian Pacific the engineers were often called upon to thread wildernesses, little, if ever, tried before by white men. These engineers were also explorers and much of the scientific data concerning the vast country to the west was gathered by the men sent out by this railway company to locate its line to tide water on the Pacific Ocean.

Briefly, the general course of precedure for railway construction in Canada is about as follows, although, of course, it must be understood that such procedure varies greatly with individual cases as governed by local conditions.

An examination of traffic possibilities indicating that the construction of a line of railway between two given points is advisable having been made, the first thing done is to make a general examination of the area of country under consideration from which a map showing all the governing topographical routes are projected and those that appear most suitable are picked out by further study. This further study consists of running preliminary lines by means of chain, transit and level, from which the physical characteristics, such as distance, curvature, rise and fall and approximate construction cost for each route can be determined.

It having been decided frpm these preliminary surveys as to which is the most economical route for the line under construction, detailed location surverys are then made over this route and the centre line of the final location staked out.

Estimates are then made to ascertain necessary width of right of way required, plans of the final location are prepared and submitted to the Governor-in-Council for the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada for approval. As this work progresses, examinations of the surrounding country must be made for ballast pits, water supplies and other materials which may be required in the construction of the railway. Detailed surveys must also be made for local traffic facilities.

It having been finally located and approved, the next item to be considered is the purchase of the right of way.. If the line traverses an unsettled district, roads often of considerable length, must then be constructed, by which the necessary plant, materials and supplies to be used in the work can be transported to the line. In the construction of these roads it is very often encessary to go to considerable expense on account of the fact that to do heavy construction work a very heavy type of plant must be used.

Camps for the housing and sustenance of men and horses must be constructed and an efficient method of transportation for supplies established. The engineering work from this time forward consists of minor adjustments of the location such as may appear economical; preparation of land plans; the staking out and measurement of the work to be done, and the preparation of detailed bridge plans.

In timbered country the right of way as a general practise, must be cleared for its entire width. The timber, where suitable, is used for fence posts, track ties, telegraph poles and trestles.

The equipment usually employed in grading consists of steam shovels weighing from [illegible] to 90 tons, locomotives of various types, weighing from 20 to 140 tons; cars for the transportation of materials to be moved in the excavation of the cuttings, construction of embankments, ranging in capacity from one-half to thirty yards; appliances for the unloading and spreading of materials, such as Lidgerwood unloaders, caw plows and spreaders. The small cuttings and embankments are usually constructed by grading machines, scrapers, wagons and cars. In additions to the above general equipment, in rock work steam and air drills, boilers, and compressors, must be supplied.

In the construction of bridges, plant consisting of concrete mixers, rock crushers and derricks must be supplied. Where large gaps are to be crossed, for which insufficient material is at hand to fill, it is a customary practise to construct temporary trestles of timber, which permit of track laying to be carried on and which can later be filled by train haul materials transported often from considerable distances. This type of timber construction is also customary in the bridging of streams where it is possible, in order to avoid delay to the general progress of the work. Steel bridges to replace these temporary structures can then be constructed after the line is in operation. Large bridges are very often the governing feature in the length of time required to construct a railroad, as, where temporary types of construction are impracticable, it becomes necessary to wait for the erection of the steel work after the track reaches the structure in question, thus often causing very serious delays to the general progress.

As the grading and construction of culverts, bridges and trestles nears completion, yards must be established at available points for tracklaying. Track materials are obtained and carefully piled in these yards in such a manner that they are available for quick delivery to track laying machines. Tracklaying of lines of any considerable length is generall done with a tracklaying machine, of which there are various types. These machines consist of derricks for handling rails and trams which are adjusted to the side of flat cars and which have rollers in the bottom over which ties and rails are moved from the material cars on the train to the front of the machine. With such a machine working to its capacity, without interruption, from two to three miles of track can be laid in a day. As the tracklaying proceeds, ballast must be obtained and placed under the ties, and track raised to proper elevation, properly surfaced. Crushed rock is the best ballast and is used extensively by the Canadian Pacific.

Telegraph line construction must be kept up as closely as possible with tracklaying in order to facilitate the movement of trains. As soon as tracklaying is sufficiently advanced to admit of the forwarding of materials, water tanks, station buildings, yards and terminal equipment are constructed.

Railway construction costs hundreds of thousands of dollars per mile. In many cases the rate per mile has been above a million dollars.

Private of 23rd May be Alien Spy

Gave Name as "Anderson" but is Thought to be German

IS NOW UNDER ARRFST

Claimed to be United States Citizen and Claimed Landlady as Next Of Kin--Investigation Ordered

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—Whether "Private Anderson", of the 23rd Battalion "Westmount Rifles," for active service, is a German spy or not is a question that is interesting military authorities considerably just now. In any event, he was arrested yesterday morning as a precautionary measure, and turned over to the Provost Marshal, Major Date, who will hold the necessary inquiries.

It was stated at 23rd Battalion quarters yesterday that so far they had little direct information on the matter, although sufficient evidence had been gained to make it advisable to put Pte. Anderson under arrest, pending a full investigation.

So far as could be ascertained yesterday, Anderson claims to be an American citizen, but it was stated that he was planly a German, his accent and manners proclaiming his German antecedents. This German appearance started a close watch upon Anderson's connections. It was found that he had been boarding with a Mrs. Donnelly, whose son-in-law, when called, was surprised to see their exboarder, whom they took to be a German, and who had frequently expressed himself as a sympathizer with the German cause, serving in the ranks of a British regiment enrolled to fight the Germans.

Information was at once laid with Lt.-Col. Fisher. This brought out the fact that Anderson in enlisting had claimed to be an American citizen It was discovered also that he had given the name of his boarding mistress, Mrs. Donnelly, as his next of kin, claiming her as his aunt. Investigation showed that she was no relation at all of Anderson's.

These facts, coupled with the German appearance of the man, were considered sufficient to warrant his arrest, and an investigation to show whether he was really a German spy.

SONS OF SCOTLAND ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Commemorating the Anniversary of Scotland's Patron Saint-An Appropriate Discourse by Rev. E. C. Currie at John Street Church

To commemorate the anniversary of the patron saint of Scotland, St. Andrew, the members of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, of this city, on Sunday morning, in a body, attended divine service at John Street Presbyterian church. The turnout was a creditable one. Headed by the pipe band, under the leadership of Prof. Johnstone, and playing appropriate selections, the march to the church was made from the lodge room.

Rev. E. C. Currie, pastor, preached, and his discourse was in keeping with the occasion. After the usual devotional exercises had been conducted the minister delivered the sermon. His text was from John i:35-42, being particularly in reference to Andrew, one of the Apostles.

In his opening remarks the pastor said it was a pleasure to address the members of the Sons of Scotland society. The purposes of the society were referred to and explained. Scotchmen were banded together that they may preserve the traditions of Scotland and that they may help each other. Scotchmen were naturally patriotic and they had reason to be so. Who is more patriotic than the Scotchman? The Jews were, and are, a patriotic people, possibly more so than any other race of people. Every land has its bard, but no land had a greater or a more fervent bard than Sir Walter Scott. His poems cannot be read without the reader being impressed with patriotism. Through them is a fine touch of patriotism. There must be a reason for the Scotchman's patriotism, and there are several reasons. We in Canada are proud of the country and ourselves. Many emigrants who come to Canada soon afterwards become Canadians and often forget their mother land. A man from Scotland is a patriot and never forgets his home land. One of the characteristics of Scotland is the high intelligence of the masses. Plain living and high thinking is another characteristic of the Scottish people. In Scotland there are no uneducated masses, as there are in some countries. Carlyle's memory is revered, and he studied by candle light. Think what he has accomplished. Scotland has produced names that will never die. Many of her sons are today teachers and leaders of men. In the present great conflict we think of, what the Black Watch, the Cameron men, the Gordon Highlanders, and the Scots Greys have done and are doing. They have always been in the vanguard and brought glory to their regiments and their country. The deepest element in Scottish character, however, is religion. The church has played an important part in Scotland. This is due to the religious influence of such men as John Knox. How prominent in missionary work are the names of Morrison, Livingstone and Gordon. In referring to Andrew, the Apostle, the pastor said he was a fine man, who had high ideals and lived up to them. As soon as he followed His Master he went out after his brother. Andrew did not ask "Am I my brother's keeper." He knew he was and went after his brother. This soul saving enterprise should be the first business, because it was the first business of Jesus. The world is today waking up to this thought. It is the first business because man is a spiritual being. It is the first business because God said so. The church of Jesus Christ exists as a great missionary enterprise and soul-saving business. Andrew did great missionary work when he brought his brother to Jesus. We should be in the church of Jesus ourselves and then seek some one else and bring them to the Saviour of mankind. We should be ever ready to bring others to what is good. How instinctively natural it should be to have others enjoy the good we have within us. God grant that this will be our mission.

During the service appropriate music was rendered by the choir, and a solo was given by Mrs. McArthur in a most acceptable manner.

FROM FAR-AWAY PLACES OF EMPIRE THESE THREE SONS GO TO BATTLE LINE

One is in England, Second in Canada, Third in Australia--But All Volunteer

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—From far away parts of the Empire three sons will go to fight for England. One of the three is Claude Sonny, inside right of the M.A.A.A. football team. More than that; their father offered himself as a French reservist, but was rejected on account of his age Not deterred, and wishing to do something, he then offered himself at the British war Office, and is how intrepreter in connection with the relief work to the Belgian refugees. Every male member of the family has given himself to the Empire.

Each of the three brothers volunteered thinking that he alone would represent the family in the army. All were accepted and commenced drilling. One day about a fortnight ago, Claude received a letter saying that one of his brothers, L. M. Somny, had joined the Middlesex Yoemanry. On thursday of this week came a letter from Australia saying the G. V. Somny had obtained a commission as lieutenant and that he was then on his way to England with the Australian contingent.

Claude Somny, who lives at 21 Buckingham avenue, has only been in Montreal for a month, having been transfered from the head office in London to the Canadian branch of the Law Union and Rock Insurance company He is of splendid build, and besides starring in football, is somewhat of a boxer.

Casement Insane, Says Conan Doyle

Prominent Members of Nationalists Party Repudiate Casement and His Utterances

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Special)—In a letter to The Chronicle on Sir Roger Casement's visit to Berlin, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says:

"That he should, in full possession of his senses, act as a traitor to the country which had employed and honored him is inconceivable to anyone who knew him. He had, it is true, a strong prepossession in favor of Germany before the war, but this was due to his belief that she was destined to challenge the Monroe doctrine, which Casement bitterly resented as being the ultimate cause of all that Putumayo barbarism which he had officially to investigate. I may say that I disagreed with him upon this subject, but in all our discussions I have never heard him say one word which was disloyal to Great Britain. He was a sick man, however, worn by tropical hardships, and he complained often of pains in his head.

"I have no doubt he is not in a normal state of mind and that this unhappy escapade in Berlin is only an evidence of it."

The Irish Nationalist party in the House of Commons has repudiated Casement and all his works. A prominent member of the party, in conversation with The Morning Post, said: "We deny that Casement has the least right or title to speak in the name of the Nationalists of Ireland."

Minister of Marine To Command Turks

Djemal Pasha Long Obsessed With With Idea of Destroying The Suez Canal

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Special)—The Times special correspondent at Cairo cables:—

The news that Djemal Pasha, Minister of Marine, has been appointed to the command of the Ottoman forces destined to operate against Egypt is, if true, proof that the Turks are not making a mere demonstration against the Suez Canal.

Djemal Pasha is one of the foremost figures in Turkish politics. His military value is uncertain. He has the reputation of being a headstrong and energetic leader, and is known to have strong Pan-Islamic sympathies.

Since the British occupation of Egypt—a discovery which seems to have been made for him by the German Ambassador at Constantinople—he has been almost a monomaniac on the subject of an expedition against the Suez Canal, whereby he hoped to avenge what he considered an affront put upon Turkey by Britain when she laid an embargo on two Ottoman Dreadnoughts built in England.

WAR BULLETINS

RUSSIANS TOOK 600 PRISONERS, 7 GUNS AND MANY WOUNDED ALSO 10 MILES OF GERMAN TRENCHES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PETROGRAD, Nov. 30.—Six hundred prisoners, seven guns and many wounded fell into the Russian hands in yesterday's fighting to the west of Lowicz, where the Russians took ten miles of German trenches between Glovno and Sobota according to information received today through trustworthy sources.

Glovno is 16 miles north east of Lodz and Sobota is 12 miles north of Glovno. The trenches were protected by triple earthworks and wire defences.

The occupation of Glovno, Bielavy and Sobota straightens and strengthens the Russian right wing, which already is said to have widely outflanked the German left and bringing the Russian right from 20 to 25 miles in its advance on Strykow, where the battle is now raging, and puts the German centre under an attack from Glovno and Lodz.

Military experts are of the opinion that the German position around Lodz today is far more critical than it was during the initial reverses around Warsaw a month ago. They point out that the Germany army is 100 miles from Thorn, its base and the fact that the occupation of its present position was so precipitate indicates a line of retreat was not well organized.

FIGHTING ON PRUSSIAN FRONTIER IN OUR FAVOUR--GERMANS ABANDONING MUNITIONS OF WAR--RUSSIANS NOW ABREAST OF CRACOW

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PETROGRAD, Nov. 30.—The Army Messenger's Correspondent says that fighting on the Prussian Frontier is turning advantageously for our side. Our cavalry has dispersed the enemy, who is retiring and abandoning his munitions of war. Our energetic pursuit prevents the Germans from occupying their prepared positions.

The Army Messenger's Correspondent in Galicia says "We continue to push the Austrian army in the direction of Cracow, and several of our contingents are already abreast of that city.

THE SITUATION IN BELGIUM AND FRANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, Nov. 30.—This afternoon's official communications says:

"In Belgium the enemy is remaining on the defensive.. Artillery fire has been feeble and we have made some progress at certain points.

"In the vicinity of the Fay, we hold securely a position we occupied November 28th.

"In the region of the Soissons there has been intermittent artillery fire, directly against the town.

"There has been heavy fog on the heights of the Meuse.

"In the Woevre district, the enemy bombarded the forest of Apremont, but without result.

"There is nothing to report in the Vosges."

GERMANS INGENIOUSLY FIXING UP WAR REPORTS TO ALLAY THE GROWING APPREHENSION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Daily News correspondent at Copenhagen says the German general staff with the connivance of the Kaiser are endeavoring to allay the rapidly growing apprehension in Berlin by ingeniously mixing up official reports. Even this which the people are at present acclaiming happened more than a week ago and they have no knowledge of the Russian victories which have happened since.

SEIGE OF CRACOW HAS BEGUN--RUSSIANS BOMBARDING FORTS --ONE SUBURB ON FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A despatch from the correspondent with the Russian army, The Corriere Delaa Sera, at Milan says the siege of Cracow has begun. The Russians are bombarding the forts with their heavy guns and one suburb is said to be on fire.

CONFIRMED THAT GERMAN FLEET IS IN SOUTH ATLANTIC--A POWERFUL BRITISH FLEET IS NEAR BY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MONTEVIDEO Nov. 30.—The recent reports that the German fleet is now in the South Atlantic appear to have been confirmed here today. It is also rumored that a powerful British fleet is near by.

THE BOYS' WORK CONFERENCE CLOSED

Sessions Held on Saturday and Sunday Largely Attended—The Banquet in Bridge Street Church a Huge Success--Farewell Meeting a Memorial One

The Ninth Annual Boys' Work Conference, for the year 1914, is now an event of the past. It was held in this city, commencing on Friday evening, and was brought to a close last evening, when the farewell service was held in Bridge Street Methodist Church. There were in attendance at the Conference 325 delegates, representing all parts of Eastern Ontario, and 100 delegates from the city. The boys and young men, attending the gathering were an intelligent class, and manly in every respect. As expressed by many it was the best conference ever held, and no doubt much good will result. Pleasure was combined with work and thought, and the spirit of all was heartily entered into. That the delegates have taken away with them favorable impressions of the hospitality of our citizens, there can be not the slighest doubt.

On Saturday two sessions were held in St. Andrew's Church, and later in the afternoon the boys had a hike to the Ontario School for the Deaf, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Every portion of the main building, the new dormitories and work shops were visited and many carefully scrutinized same.

THE BANQUET

In the evening a banquet was tendered to the delegates by a number of the ladies of the city, and, to use an expression by one of the speakers, it was a howling success. It was held in the spacious Sunday School rooms of Bridge Street Church. Covers were laid for 500, and it was none too many, as every chair was filled. It was a rather inspiring sight to see so many

GEN. GONZALES SEIZES CONTROL IN MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Nov 29—Special—General Pablo Gonzales, one of the three leading division Generals of the Constitutionalist army of Mexico before it was divided by factional strife, has declared himself Provisional President of Mexico, named a Cabinet and announced that his platform is "The Constitution and Reform", according to reports that reached Washington to-day through Government agent at Quertaro.

Gonzales has established himself at Pachuca it was reported, which is about forty-five miles east of Tula which is fifty miles north of Mexico City, on the Mexican Central Railway. Carranza, in leadership of a third faction, has his headquarters at Vera Cruz.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN KEPT IN UTTER DARKNESS

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Special—A despatch to The Morning Post from Berne says: Since the attack on Friedrichshafen by English aviators the whole shore of Lake Constance and the town of Friedrichshafen have been in utter darkness at night, save for small colored lights. Pierhead searchlights are playing continuously during the night, and strict orders have been issued to the population that in case of renewed attacks they must go indoors and remain there.

CASUALTIES TO AUSTRIAN ARMY 19,000 OFFICERS AND 900,000 MEN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PETROGRAD, Nov. 30.—On the basis of reports received here today from Hungary it is calculated that the casualties to the Austrian army since the beginning of the war amount to nineteen thousand officers and nine hundred thousand men.

Starving Germans Eager to Surrender

Half-Frozen Isolated Units Lost in Poland; Russian Cavalry Arouses Panic

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Special)—The Times' special correspondent at Petrograd cables:—

A graphic account of the fighting is telegraphed from Lods by a correspondent. Amid the woods, powdered with snow, among the leafless trees, wander masses of German soldiers, isolated from their units, half-frozen and starving, surrendering willingly.

Stories are told of entire companies and battalions which have been lost amid the fields. Their wretched appearance excites the pity of the peasantry, who constantly notify the Russians of the whereabouts of such groups desirous of surrendering. Nevertheless, in many regions the Germans fought splendidly, steadfastly repulsing the attacks and counter-attacking and defending themselves literally until the last gasp.

The Russian cavalry daily arouses panic among the enemy with daring forays. Despite protracted marches in the cold weather it preserves all its destructive force, frequently surrounding the enemy's units, cutting off their transports and enveloping their batteries in an iron ring.

These conflicts sometimes surge from Kutno northwards, sometimes concentrate at Lowics at the intersection of the road to Warsaw, where, while half-surrounded, the scattered bodies of Germans are seeking safety and some outlet for flight. Everywhere the enemy is vainly endeavoring to pierce the Russian lines, directing sections of their infantry, at times destitute of artillery, to cover railways and main roads in an effort to destroy them. Occasionally they succeed, with the help of artillery in preparing temporary passages, but speedily the hesitation and dismemberment of the detachments can be observed. At the same times as the Germans are despatching units without connection at most critican moments are projected remorseless headlong Russian assaults, more and more completely detaching the enemy's columns from the central advancing forces.

Among the forest and ravines German officers and men approach the Russian military automobiles and respond to armed threats with prayers and the touching request: "Take us with you."

KAISER WILL NOT BE PRESENT

Queen Alexandra Had Invited Him to Her Birthday Party.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Special.—Queen Alexandra, who will be seventy years of age on Tuesday, intends to spend her birthday quietly. She is not likely to be visited by the German Emperor, though he was invited to come here for this auspicious occasion before the war broke out. Her Majesty has spent most of the year in town. In spite of much extra business put upon the King, he makes a point of visiting his mother frequently, telling her the most important war news.

Phantom Warship Was Sunk by The Associated Press

Trap Laid by News Service Directors to Catch Operator Revealing the Despatches

RUSE COMPLETE SUCCESS

But Disaster to the Non-Existent Dreadnought Never Reached Public From Service Supplied by Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—H. L. Linder a telegraph operator in the employ of the Postal Telegraph Company, and attached to the office of the New York Globe, was arrested here to-day, charged with violating section 552 of the Penal Law, in that he revealed the contents of a telegraphic message sent out by the Associated press.

For a long time it has been evident that the dispatches of the Associated Press were being systematically stolen and were redistributed by a number of smaller agencies to their clients. A careful watch was set and suspicion pointed to certain men employed in the office of the Globe, a New York evening paper, as the guilty persons. The case was considered by the executive committee of the Associated Press directors at a recent meeting and a plan to detect the culprits and bring them to justice was adopted.

For the purpose of transmitting the more important news in bulletins, wires connect the central office of the organization at 51 Chambers street, with the editorial rooms of the various members in New York. In the office of the Globe these bulletins were copied surreptitiously by H. L. Linder, a telegraph operator employed by the Postal Telegraph Company and repeated to the New York News Bureau, a Wall street concern. Frequently within two or three minutes after their receipt in the office of the Globe they appeared on the new's bureau's ticker and in the reports of the International News Service, the Central News of America, and other minor organizations.

For the purpose of trapping the wire-tappers, the following dispatch was prepared:

"Bulletin.

"Petrograd, Nov. 27.—The Russian dreadnought Flibau, formerly the Ismail, striking a mine in the Gulf of Finland, is a complete loss with 450 lives.

"Add Petrograd under dash—Loss of Flibau—the Ismail was one of four Baltic dreadnoughts laid down at the Kronstadt yards in 1912. She had a displacement of 28,000 tons and carried nine 14-inch guns and twenty 5-inch."

The short bulletin wire was arranged, so that the message should go to the Globe alone. As anticipated the dispatch instantly appeared upon the ticker and not long after was printed in the papers served by other news agencies in different parts of the country. As soon as this was done and before it appeared in any issue of the Globe, a notice to "kill" was sent out and the telegram therefore at no time reached the public as from the Associated Press.

Linder was arrested and made a full confession. He was arraigned this afternoon before Magistrate F. B. House, and held in $5,000 bail for a hearing on December 1st.

DEATH-BATTLE RAGED IN GLARE OF TORCHLIGHT

While Sappers Carried Lights the French Infantry Captured Bavarian Guns

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Special—The Temps prints the following:

Beneath lurid torchlight, French infantrymen captured three Bavarian guns on the heights of Vailly, on the Aisne. Storming the hill in the pitch black darkness, the infantry leapt among the guns, fierce hand-to-hand bayonet fighting ensuing. The night was so dark that both sides hacked their own comrades, until French sappers came up with nearly a hundred torches, illuminating the savage scene. The Bavarians refrained from attacking, and the dense masses were locked in a desperate melee for half an hour, when the Bavarian survivors abandoned the guns and fled.

DISCIPLINE MORE STRICT

Reins Have Been Tightened on Canadians.

SALISBURY PLAINS, Nov. 14.—Weather conditions here in November, one of the worst months in the year, are none too pleasant, but the erection of huts at Lark Hill and Bulford for the Canadian contingent are proceeding as fast as possible, and it should not be long before wooden walls are exchanged for draughty tents. So far the military authorities have given our men a loose rein, but it is gradually being tightened up. Until now serious training and less camp leave are the order of the day. To have pulled the British military ribbons tight at the outset would probably have brought trouble, but with judicious handling, such as General Alderson has shown, difficulties have been avoided and camp regulations have got into a regular stride such as the situation demanded.

The 50,000 books sent by the British people have been alloted and are available intents in each of the four camps. Major the Rev. Steacy, Divisional Chaplain, having undertaken to supervise this work.

The 55 Canadian nurses who proceeded to France last Saturday have got established in the hospitals at Havre and Boulogne, and within the next day or two a further contingent of the nursing sisters proceeds across the channel.

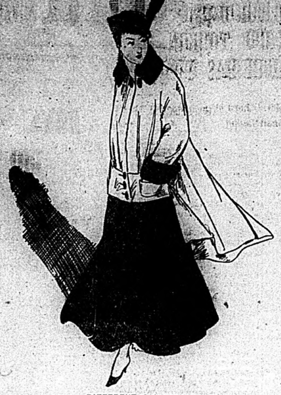
Yesterday a new Canadian hospital was opened in London for about 150 patients, and is known as Mount Vernon, Hampstead, North West London. Here will be found occupation for more of the staff who have hitherto continued to enjoy the unexampled hospitality of London people. There are now altogether some five Canadian hospitals here and on the Continent. Notwithstanding the trying weather on the Plains the doctors consider the contingent health bill very satisfactory, not more than 200 men being under treatment, and none of these are suffering from serious complaints. Colonel Hodgetts, of Ottawa, who is at the head of the Red Cross organization, with Mr. Edward Parker, of Montreal, as assistant, has offices at 14 Cockspur street, London, and he would be extremely gratified if sympathetic Canadians would send to the address there Canadian newspapers and magazines which are much sought after by all, and will be especially welcomed by the sick soldiers, and will be in even greater demand as the time goes on. So far there is not a Canadian newspaper in England of a date later than October 24, but papers even three weeks or a month old are eagerly sought, perused and passed from hand to hand. It is hoped, too, that gifts of cholera belts, sleeping caps, socks, mufflers, cigarettes and pipes may be sent in large numbers to Miss Plummer, marked Field Comforts Canadian Expeditionary Force, Salisbury Plains.

Subscriptions for the same purpose will be gladly received by Miss Arnoldi at the same address. It is felt that with Great Britain magnificently engaged in succoring Belgium and her own sick and bereaved, with almost every member of every British household doing something to mitigate the horrors of war, it will be better to look to Canadians almost solely for the comforts needed for Canadian soldiers. Miss Plummer, who naturally shared in the social life and the hospitality so freely offered here to all the Canadian women who came over, says the thing that has so tremendously impressed her in Britain is the unceasing kindness shown to the mall by St. Thomas' Hospital governors, the staff, and many other London institutions and private families. In order that the Canadian women might be comfortably and suitably accommodated a hundred of the St. Thomas' Hospital gave up their rooms and joined their associates. Everybody had simply showered kindness upon them. Another thing that struck her was the enormous number of British women engaged in Red Cross or other institutional work connected with the war.

"This war," says Miss Plummer, "has brought out all the fine qualities that we always knew were in the British people, and only needed a suitable occasion to show themselves.

No fewer than 400 passed through Dr. Barnardo's institution, were drafted by it into Canada to get a start in life such as is not possible here, and have left good positions to come back and fight for the old country. What is not generally known is that on the East Coast trenches are being dug and land mines laid so that if by any chance German troops landed they would find themselves in exceedingly dangerous positions. In all the villages and towns in the Eastern Counties not only are the garrison towns chock full of troops, but every village and hamlet is similarly full, the men finding accommodation in the cottages, in all of which soldiers are billeted. In my own house, seven miles from the coast, from three to five soldiers have been in occupation for the past five weeks, and as one lot moves off to a fresh town, new men in khaki take their places. Every house, every barn, every institution in the parish and in all the parishes around the same condition exists. The men are a splendid lot, exceedingly well behaved, trouble from disorderly conduct is unknown, and drunkenness practically non-existent.

FRANK MYNOTT.



DIFFERENT COLORS

It is interesting to notice that the Russian coat has been received in a decidedly modified form before Russia entered the war. A new idea in this respect is to have the coat a contrasting color to the skirt. An ultra smart model had a plain black velvet skirt of a comfortable walking length the coat being cerise, bordered with black fox. The hat that accompanied this had a certain suggestion of military form in its outline and was carried out in black velvet with a doublure of cerise, the brim softened with black fox.

Boys' Work Conference Closed

boys and young men around a festive board. The supper provided was all that could have been desired, and, it is needless to state that it was thoroughly enjoyed. A few prominent church workers of the various church in the city were in attendance.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair, who is President of the local Y.M.C.A., occupied the chair, and he filled the position in a was in progress, and the countries inclusion of the supper he gave a brief address, in which he expressed his pleasure at being honored to preside over such a gathering. He had always been intensely interested in young men, who were a great asset, not only to a community, but the country at large. In speaking of church work and Sunday Schools the speaker said that in his opinion no person was never too old to attend Sunday School, and he was pleased that the young men and even boys were taking such an interest in this part of the Church work. He and the committee were grateful to the ladies, who had taken such an active part in some of the details of the conference and especially in providing the banquet. (Applause.)

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies.

Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto was then introduced and gave a patriotic talk on Canada and the great war. The address was illustrated by 100 slides, showing various places where the war was in progress, and the countries involved in same. The lecture was not only interesting, but instructive.

Mr. J. Alexander, of Chicago, being called upon closed the pleasant evening by a brief, but appropriate address which was directed more particular to the boys.

FAREWELL MEETING

The farewell meeting was held in Bridge Street Church last evening, and the auditorium of the sacred edifice was filled to overflowing. In the centre of the church the delegates were seated and they took a porminent part in the service. A number of the prominent workers and speakers occupied seats upon the platform.

The meeting opened by the singing of two well known hymns and prayer.

Mr. Egleton, of Ottawa, the Secretary of the Conference, reported that there were 425 delegates in attendance at the Conference, 325 being outside and 100 from Belleville. Forty places, representing 17 counties in Eastern Ontario had delegates. It had been one of the best Conferences ever held.

The resolution committee presented a resolution expressive of gratitude to the citizens of Belleville for the hospitality extended to the delegates. On motion of Mr. Gilbert, seconded by Mr. Walker the resolution was unanimously adopted.

Fifteen young men, representing the various Counties, towns, and cities delegations then presented resolutions relative to the Conference, and what was their intention of carrying out the work as mapped out by the sessions of the Conference.

These resolutions were all unanimously adopted.

Rev. S. H. Osborne, Pastor of the church, in making the announcements, prefaced some with a few remarks, in reference to the Conference, and its effects, that it would result in an uplifting movement in church work, there was no doubt. He could assure the delegates that their stay in the city had been most enjoyable and profitable.

Mr. Alexander, of Chicago, gave the closing address. He said it might possible not be understood by all what had been going on, and the importance and significance of this gathering of young men. The Church has come to recognize that this is the day of youth, and is awakening to this fact. There was a time when a boy was considered by many a nuisance, but that day was past. It has now become a recognized fact that boys and girls too, must be partners in the church work, and the church is realizing this fact. We are beginning to know that the Sunday School is making great strides. There is work for the boys and by the boys, and the boys are carrying on good work. This is a great new day in the Church, and the church is being quickened by the young men, who are workers and officers within her borders. The great problem of the Church is to get the unemployed Christians in the churches at work. This is a day of youth and a day of the church. The boys are knocking at the door of the churches and saying we want to work in the church, to help her to work out her problems. The day has come in Canada when the boys are taking the part they should take in Church work. The church is grasping at the opportunity to have the boys. No church or Sunday School can live without the loyalty of the boys in church work. This conference will result in activities in many churches. The speaker then addressed himself particular to the delegates, who would return to their respective homes, impressing upon them the necessity of carrying out the ideas they had learned at the Conference.

At the close of the address a number of the boys and young men gave in a few words the impressions they had gained by attending the Conference.

The great meeting was brought to a close by the delegates forming a complete circles around the body of the church and singing "Blest be the Tides that Bind."

The choir of the church, under the leadership of Prof. Cameron, rendered appropriate selections, which were much appreciated.

Supply of Steel Is Now Exhausted

G.T.R. Forced to Suspend Track-Laying Operations--Average Mile a Day Usually

The Grand Trunk Railway, which has been laying 80-pound rails between Belleville and Lindsay, has been forced to cease operations because they have exhausted the supply of steel available. The work will have to be held up completely until a new supply of steel can be secured. It is understod that a large consignment of metal is at present en route to this country from England. The consignment, under ordinary conditions, would have been received in time to continue the work, without interruption, but owing to war conditions, it was delayed, and for a time, the date of delivery was uncertain. It is thought that it will soon be in hand now, and as soon as it is the work will be resumed.

An average of more than a mile a day is made by the construction gang in the laying of the 80-pound rails.

NELSON WAITED FOR OVER TWO YEARS OFF TOULON, SO JELLICOE HAS TIME YET

Full Text of Speech of the First Lord of the Admiralty at the Guildhall Banquet

At the guild ball banquet Nov. 9, Mr. Wintson Churchill, first lord of the Admiralty, told of the great work the navy had done. Though much of it was not spectacular. He mentioned also that for many of the great naval victories of the past Nelson and other admirals had to wait for years before getting a chance to fight. Mr. Churchill answered the toast of the Imperial forces of the Empire.

Mr. Churchill, who on rising to reply was loudly cheered, said: Eighty miles away the greatest battle in the world is going on. Our countrymen, with their Allies, are striving from minute to minute to breast and stem the cruel tides of German devastation, and here we sit in this old hall, as we have so often sat before in bygone years, and as we hope other generations will sit—(cheers)—when the sorrows of this time are forgotten and only glories remain.

Here we sit, and to the outward eye, to the material sense nothing is altered. A stranger, an unthinking stranger, coming now would scarcely distinguish and characteristics which mark our gathering from those which have so often taken place before, when each year we celebrate this important civic festival. That is the Navy. (Cheers.)

It is due to the Navy—(renewed cheers)—that we are able to gather here to-night, and while we do not at all shirk or shrink from the full rigours of war, we are, through the Navy, so far happily guarded from most of them. (Cheers.)

Nelson Waited For Two Years

Some few weeks ago I had a talk with Sir John Jellicoe and his principal admiral, and they spoke to me of the distress with which they and the great fleet watched the heroic struggle of our Army in France and in Belgium, saw the awful sacrifices demanded of them and given by them and they spoke of their keen desire to bring a more direct and immediate aid to bear with the mighty weapon which they wielded, and their desire—their natural desire—to share more immediately in the sufferings and the losses of the Army in the field, but they said "Lord Cornwalls was nearly three years off Brest, and Admiral Nelson was more than two years off Toulon. We are only just beginning. We must not be impatient. Our turn will come." (Loud cheers.)

It is not always easy to be patient, and I express to-night on behalf of the Navy and of the Admiralty our gratitude for the generous confidence you have so abundantly and unswervingly bestowed upon us.

New Dangers and New Methods

The conditions of the naval war are curious and novel. We have a great preponderance in force and numbers but we have also a task to discharge infinitely greater and more difficult than that which our enemies are called upon to undertake. (Cheers.) We are endeavoring to maintain all the seas. We are endeavoring to secure all the highways across the ocean. (Hear, hear.) We are endeavoring to secure the peaceful commerce of the world against a multitude of new dangers and against methods never before practised in the warfare of civilized nations. (Loud cheers.) We are also transporting great armies to the decisive theatre of the war. We are endeavoring to preserve the whole trade of this country on an enormous scale in all quarters of the globe. We have conveyed and convoyed expeditions to attack or take every German colony which exists. (Cheers.) And all this great task forces us to expose a target to the enterprise of an enemy in comparably greater than any target that is offered to oru own daring and vigilant sailors.

The British public have taken for themselves this motto—"Business carried on as usual during the alterations of the map of Europe." (Loud cheers and laughter.) They expect the Navy, on which they have lavished so much care and expense, to make that good. And that is what upon the whole we are actually achieving at the present time. (Cheers.)

It is very difficult to measure the full influence of naval pressure in the early stages of a war. The punishment we receive is clear and definite. The punishment we inflict is very often not seen, and even when seen cannot be measured. (Hear, hear.) The economic stringency resulting from a naval blockade requires tima for it to reach its full effectiveness. Now you are only looking at it at the third month. But wait a bit. Examine it at the sixth month, and the ninth month, and the twelfth month, and you will begin to see the results—results which will be gradually achieved, but which will spell the doom of Germany—(great cheers)—as surely as the approach of winter strikes the leaves from the trees.

Navy Stronger Than Ever

There is another way in which the Navy contributes to the vast decision of this war. It gives to Britain and to the Britsih Empire the time necessary to realize their vast military power. (Cheers). It gives to my noble friend, Lord Kitchener, time to organize, equip, discipline, arm, and place in the field a million men, of a quality and power such as have never been employed yet in this struggle on the Continent. (Cheers.) And at the end a of hundred days of war—very nearly a hundred days of war—the Navy, whose memory and work you have paid your tribute to to-night, in spite of losses of ships of no great consequence, of officers and men irreparable—the Navy, in spite of losses, is actually and relatively stronger at every point and in every branch compared to our enemies than it was in the day when war was declared—(loud cheers)—and it is stronger most particularly in those branches of the naval service which all the circumstances of modern war prove to exercise the most powerful influence upon the struggle. (Cheers.)

A United Nation

I do not wish to stand further between you and the other speakers who present thmselves on this memorable occasion, but I will say this one last word. In this famous hall, where we have so often gathered, we must to-night feel ourselves in the company of the great men of the great war. We see the monuments to the men who fought Napoleon, we may feel to-night almost as if we had their counsel and their aid, and we may derive inspiration and encouragement from their memory.

The scale of events to-day is vastly greater than those with which they had to deal, but the problems which they had to face were more desperate, more full of anxiety and peril than thos with which we are confronted, and the resources with which they faced them were infinitely less ample and less wide. They were often alone against the whole of Europe, they never could count as we can upon an absolutely united nation. They only spoke for a little island. We exert and wield the power of a worldwide Empire. Yet with all their difficulties and dangers they came safely through the conflict, and we, by imitating their example and redoubling our own exertions, will surely come safely through it too. (Loud cheers.)

PREDICTIONS THAT ARE NOW BEING REALIZED

Noted Parisian Foresaw Much Trouble In Europe During The Present Year

Austria will be sorely tried with rioting. There will be bloodshed and fire in the streets of Vienna; the situation will be even worse than that in Hungary, and the Austro-Hungarian dynasty will be in grave peril.

Those of her predictions which have been wrong, or which are yet to be realized are:—

Paris will have a favorable year.

Portugal is to see a restoration of the monarchy.

It will be the good fortune of Russia to promote peace in the Balkans.

London will be threatened by floods, a catastrophe taking place as a result of the inundations which will arouse the pity of the whole civilized world.

Just about one year ago Mme. Thebes, the noted Parisian, made public her predictions for 1914, stating that the year would see much trouble in Europe, with war always menacing. Among her predictions which have been grimly realized are the following:

England will suffer critical perils in India.

Italy will witness a new Pope, who will be frendlier to the monarchy.

France is to be inflicted with scandals, riots, blodoshed and industrial troubles in the northeast.

Germany will experience a severe upheaval, bringing profound changes in the character of its national life.

Enver Bey is blamed for the introduction of Turkey into the war. If the Ottoman is so retarted to his civilization that a single man can commit the nation irretrievably to a programme which the citizenship of the empire does not want, the quicker it can be modified into better form by the powers the better for Europe.

RUSSIA HAS ADVANTAGE

But Great Battle in Northern Poland Is Not Ended.

The Germans Are Offering a Stubborn Resistance, Say Petrograd Bulletins, and General Staff Deprecates the Exaggerations of the Past Few Days—Russians Victorious in Carpathians.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—While deprecating the exaggerated reports of Russian successes in the battle in northern Poland, where the German Emperor has joined Field Marshal von Hindenburg to offer his advice and to encourage his troops, the latest available official reports from Russian headquarters state that the advantage in the fighting still lies with the Russian army. It is also officially said that enormous losses have been inflicted on the Germans, but no mention is made of the capture of German divisions, which has been so freely claimed by the Petrograd correspondents of London and Paris papers.

In the battle before Cracow the Russians do claim decisive success. During the last week they took 30,000 Austrian and German prisoners in this region, and a large number of guns. This victory is taken in Petrograd to mean that Cracow will not bar the Russian advance in Silesia from the south, but that, with the Austrian army beaten, it will be necessary only to mask the fortress.

The Russians likewise announce success on the Austrian side of the Carpathians, and against the Turks in the Caucasus, although in both regions bad weather has prevailed.

Some days must elapse before this battle, which promises to prove the most decisive of the war, is concluded. So far, all that is definitely known is that the German advance has been brought to a standstill. Some of the German troops have been partly or wholly surrounded, but they are still fighting stubbornly to break through the Russian lines apparently to the northward, where they hope to join reinforcements sent from Thorn.

The following official communication was issued from General Headquarters yesterday:

"Between the Vistula and the Warta the enemy continues to maintain the position fortified by him at Strykow, Zgierz, Szadek and Zdunska Wola (Russian Poland). The fighting has been very stubborn in the regions of Strykow and Zgierz. We captured at these points cannon, rapid-firers and several hundred prisoners.

"Our troops have taken part in an engagement along the front comprising Glowno, Bielawy and Sobota. Along the left bank of the Vistula the Germans carried out a counter-attack.

"According to prisoners, the German losses were enormous, many battalions losing all of their officers, and the companies being reduced to from sixty to eighty men.

"On the Czenstochowa-Cracow front there have been no important engagements. The Austrian army, which defended the approaches east of Cracow, on the Schreniava and Raba, were defeated Nov. 26, being driven back to the region of the fortress.

"In the Carpathians on Nov. 27 we took as many as 1,200 Austrians. The troops of the enemy have retired precipitately from Bukowina. We have occupied Czernowitz.

"In the region of the Mazurian Lakes (East Prussia) and the Angerap river our troops have thrown back the Germans in several districts from their fortified positions."

The Russian official report adds:—

"Undoubtedly the German plan to pierce our front on the left bank of the Vistula and surround part of the Russian army has completely failed. It appears from the communications of the Staff Commander-in-Chief that the Germans have been compelled to fall back from Rzgow and Tuszyn through Brzeziny on Strykow under conditions most disadvantageous to them. The Germans suffered enormous losses during the retreat.

"The fighting, however, is not yet finished. The battle on the whole front is developing very favorably for us.

"The enemy, however, continues to offer a stubborn resistance. It is impossible, therefore, to consider the operations ended, and it is necessary to await the revelation of its final results in the firm assurance that the Russian troops are fully conscious of the necessity of successfully concluding their heroic efforts in orders finally to shatter the enemy's resistance."

Mails Safe Says Turkey.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Turkey has assured the United States that mails between the embassy at Constantinople and the consulates scattered throughout the country will be safe-guarded. Inasmuch as despatches have been coming through in code to Ambassador Morgenthau and other attaches in the Ottoman empire, it appears that the vigorous protests of the United States against the proposal of the Porte to restrict code communication between neutrals, has been effective.

POLITICAL ORPHANS

What to do with its homeless leaders is a puzzling problem confronting the Liberal party. The campaign of 1911 drove many of the Liberal leaders into political exile from their several constituencies, and these political orphans are not being readily adopted by others.

Hon. Sydney Fisher tried to secure a home in Chateauguay, but the "rejected of Brome" was again thrown on the scrap heap. He is now wooing his first love, but the sign of Brome is what he put on Alva Farm—"No Admission."

Hon. W. S. Fielding has forsaken Nova Scotia for Quebec. In his adopter province his services are not being eagerly sought for, and he cannot return to his native province with any chance of success.

North York Liberals are growing restless, having to bear the burden of Mackenzie King, Rockefeller's protege. From Sir Allan Aylesworth and Sir William Mulock to Mackenzie King is as long as the road to Tipperary and another homeless leader will have to be provided for by the distracted Liberal organization.

But the greatest problem of all is to provide for Hon. Geo. P. Graham. Tom Low loaned him South Renfrew after Brockville rejected him. Now Mr. Low refuses to stand aside any longer for this wandering politician. Leeds and Brockville is solidly Conservative, and Mr. Graham nor his friends know not where to find a resting place for him. If Edward Proulx could be spared from the country's service Prescott might accept Mr. Graham—a constituency that did not gag on Evanturel might be induced to swallow Hon. George P.

Hon. Charles Murphy, whose absence would delight his colleagues and be deplored by his opponents, is keeping a strange hold on Russell, and here again Mr. Graham's chances are blocked. It is a weary tune for Sir Wilfrid's lieutenant, but much more so for Sir William and other Liberals who have to provide for him.

With the trouble securing constituencies for the homeless leaders, with certain defeat facing most of those left in Parliament, Liberals should not be judged to hoarshly in their fight against a reference to the people.

Let us see. It was Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, F. B. Carvell, and a few other Liberals who have been shouting for an election for the past two years.

The Government recently appealed to the farmers to increase their wheat acreage and break additional land so that next year's crops may be proportionate to the splendidly increased demand resulting from the war. A report received from J. Bruce Walker, immigration commissioner at Winnipeg, indicates a ready response. It sets forth that the increase in cultivated areas next year will be 40 per cent. in excess of this season.

An appropriation of one million dollars for the purchase of seed grain for farmers who lost their crops by drought in the affected district of Alberta and Saskatchewan last summer, was made by the Government last week on the recommendation of the Hon. This will be distributed through commissioners by the purchase of food, fuel and supplies for winter.

Sensible. L'Action Sociale, a French paper published in Montreal, makes the following remarks: "We have seen in Canada the descendants of French adopt the language and the customs of the English majority, just as we have seen the descendants of English, Scotch and Irish take our language and our customs. This result has always been obtained in peace, by reciprocal good will; never by fighting or by the oppression of one class by the other. It will be well not to forget that."

"Will ye, now?" said Pat.
"Yes," he replied.
The Irishman handed over the shilling, and his friend put eight pence into his palm in return.
"Eight in pence," he explained. "Not bad is it?"
"No," answered Pat, "but the shilling is."

Eight Americans in Munich, Germany, have joined in a protest to the United States against the use by France and Great Britain of "Occidental and African savages (as these Americans term them) to fight their battles in Europe." The protest should fall on deaf ears for several reasons. Colored subjects of the United States fought in all that country's wars. The shades of a man's skin does not count when soldiers are wanted for the field of battle, particularly when the opponents proved themselves less civilized than the most barbarous tribes to be found in the world.

MAKES PLAIN SOME OBSCURE PASSAGES

This Feature Is Not Only Interesting, But Instructive ot Old and Young Alike.

Almost everybody own a Bible and some have several—sometimes one for each member of the family. But the Intelligencer's Bible is different from any other ever published. It is the regular authorized version, to be sure, but is illustrated in a manner that has never before been approached.

There are six hundred subjects selected according to specified verses throughout the volume, and each subject is handled knowingly by some of the world's greatest artists, the result being an illustrated volume that cannot be excelled.

When Edward W. Bok, the able editor of the Ladies' Home ournal, first saw the New Illustrated Bible, he said that he liked it because everything about it was well done, and it seemed to him to have been done in the right spirit. "The book itself," said Mr. Bok "has been approached by the annotator with reserve and intelligence, and by its artists with sympathy and knowledge. It has been made a meaningless picture book. The pictures here serve a distinct purpose. They enrich the text but they do more; they intelligently explain it, and many hitherto obscure passages will assume to thousands a new meaning through these eye-teaching pictures. Popularizing the Bible is a risky experiment in the hands of many, but it has been a splendid achievement in this case."

Praise from such an authority is general feeling toward this magnificent work.

A description of the several styles will be found in the certificate printed elsewhere in to-day's issue. Six of these certificates and the small expense item will get you one of the volumes.

Britain's Wealth

On the 27th of November, 1914, The Hon. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer of England, delivered in the House of Commons a most important speech when discussing the war loan of £350,000,000 ($1,750,000,000), which he declared had been oversubscribed by the enormous number of nearly 100,000. He then dealt with England's trade and Financial position in the world, giving information of an important and interesting character, from which we make some extracts.

U. S. OWES $5,000,000,000.

In the course of a statement concerning financial conditions in the country, the Chancellor stated that the financial deadlock which followed the outbreak of war was due to inability to collect outstanding debts abroad.

As an instance, Mr. Lloyd George referred to the United States, which, he said, owed Great Britain about a thousand millions sterling ($5,000,000,000) "but we could do no business," he added.

Runs Half World's Trade

Dealing with the steps taken by the Government to assist commerce during the war, Mr. Lloyd George said that the Government had undertaken the responsibilities which no Government ever had been called upon to assume before.

"We had not merely our own business to run," the Chancellor of the Exchequer continued, "but we were an essential part of a machine that ran the international trade of the world. We carried half the produce and provided the capital that moved this produce from one part of the world to another, not merely for ourselves but for other countries."

Payment Made Through England

Giving instances he referred to the cotton trade and said that all the movements from the plantations to the ultimate destination of the cotton were represented by paper signed either at London, Manchester or Liverpool. When the United States bought cotton, or silk, or tea, in China, payment was made through London by means of these documents.

That showed, Mr. Lloyd George said, how complicated the system was. The paper issued in London had become a part of the currency of the world. Into this fine, delicate paper machinery had crashed a great war, affecting two-thirds of the people of the whole world and confusion was inevitable.

Failure of Remittance Abroad

It was as if a violent kick had been given to an ant heap and for a moment there was confusion and panic.

The deadlock which existed, the Chancellor pointed out, was not due to any lack of credit in this country. It was due to the failure of remittances from abroad.

Mr. Lloyd George told his hearers that the action which the British Government had taken was to save British trade, British commerce, British labor and British lives. The Government, he said, had hypothecated the credit of the State in order to restore these exchanges upon which the country depended, and upon which the whole community depended for their daily life.

$600,000,000 Is Discounted

By this step, the speaker said, the unimpeachable character of the British bill of exchange had been maintained. It was vital to the good name of this country that this type of British paper which had become currency for the whole of the trade of the world should be unimpeachable, and that no one should say hereafter that in a day of crisis it had been dishonored. One hundred and twenty million pounds sterling ($600,000,000) of bills, Mr. Lloyd George continued, had been discounted by the Bank of England, and that showed, he said, that our of a total of between £300,000,000 and £500,000,000 sterling of bills out at the beginning of the war a greater part was disposed of in the ordinary course.

£50,000,000 in "Cold Storage."

The total amount of bills which had arrived at maturity and for which the Bank of England had found money was £60,386,000. It was estimated that at the end of the war there would be about £50,000,000 of bills in which could be in "cold storage" through their belonging to belligerent countries or for other reasons.

There would not be a penny lost to the great accepting houses and the total loss upon the whole of these transactions, he estimated, would not be equal to the cost of a single week of carrying on the war and in addition British commerce and industry would be saved from one of the most possible catastrophes.

DECEMBER STORM AND WEATHER FORECASTS

(By Hicks)

A regular storm period having its centre on November the 30th, will come to its culminating stages on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Moon will be full on the 2nd and at greatest north declination on the 3rd. The centre of the Mars period falls on the 4th. The storms of this period will, most likely, be attended by a wave of unusually high temperature for December, as atmospheric tides will flow northward from equatorial regions. The Mars influence is also decidedly electrical in its tendency. The mercury period will add its perturbing power at this time, so that, altogether, we may reasonably look for some very marked storms, or other phenomena out of the normal course. The same general character of weather that may have prevailed in November, will be strikingly prolonged and emphasized at this period; if it has been wild and wintery, perpare for the same, and worse, at this and other December periods. If it has been open, mild and spring-like, depend upon it, the same character of weather will, for the most part, prevail in December. We repeat that the Mars factor at this time is decidedly problematical. Last winter every indication pointed to rough and stormy conditions in December, but with reversed results. This December, the Venus period is absent, hinting at mild and normal weather; but Mars, Earth, Mercury and Vulcan may spring the opposite surprise upon us. Study and watch conditions in November, and expect, we repeat— to encounter through December the same general conditions, but to greater extremes. Whatever Mars incites is, as a rule intensified —often unseasonable and reversed as to sections and localities; for illustration, frosts and freezing in California last winter, with warm, open weather northward.

A reactionary storm period will develop and run its course on and touching the 5th, 6th and 7th. The reasonable outlook for this period is that rain, turning to heavy sleet and snow, will pass from west to east, and that cloudy, Mercurial, cold weather will continue for several days after the passage of the storms. Study your barometer closely, in connection with every storm period.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th, extending from the 10th to the 16th. This is another annual period maximum magnetic and electric disturbance. Earth's north magnetic pole makes its greatest angle with the solar equator, hence a crisis of negative currents, an inrush of boreal, interstellor energy, and excess of winter storm and weather from the north polar directions. Navigators must count on exposure and danger on the north Atlantic and Pacific seas. Winter thunder and rain will be natural on and tounching the 10th. Sleet and snow will follow, ending in high barometer and cold. Another group of storm areas will pass eastwardly over the country on and touching the 14th and 15th. This will prove one of the biggest sleet periods of the month. New moon on the 16th will prolong threatening conditions into the period next following.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. If we are to have heavy, boreal storms this month—things best to count on—except, such at this reactionary period. Wild, winter gales will rage out upon the Atlantic seas, and answering storms, followed by cold, will sweep over lake, coasts and inland.

A reactionary storm period is coincident with the center of the December solstice period, being central on the 23rd, and reaching from the 21st to the 26th. This period will bring very low barometer, and on and touching the 23rd and 24th the temperature will rise, and storms of rain, attended by winter lightning and thunder, will be probable. These storms will turn to sleet and snow about the 24th and 25th, bringing change to much colder, with snow in wide areas of the country for Christmas. In fact a general snow storm will sweep out to the northwest and spread far to the east and south by the close of his period, closely followed by high barometer and cold clearing weather.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 28th, 29h and 30th. On and touching these days, a reaction to warmer, with falling barometer, and more storms of rain, turning to snow, will cross the country from west to east. High barometer and change to colder will be in sight from the west as the month goese out.

A seismic period is central on the 2nd extending from November the 28th, to December 5th. The next seismic period is central on the 16th, covering the 13th to the 19th. Volcanic unrest will be coincident with earthquakes about this time, some of them violent and dangerous. Seismic disturbances, central about January 2, 1915, will begin two or three days of 1914.

Less Dyspepsia Now --Here's The Reason

The fact that there is less dyspepsia and indigestion in this community than there used to be is largely, we believe, due to the extensive use of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, hundreds of packages of which we have sold. No wonder we have faith in them. No wonder we are willing to offer them to you for trial entirely at our risk.

Among other things, they contain Pepsin and Bismouth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe the inflamed stomach, allay pain, check heartburn and distress, help to digest the food, and tend to quickly restore the stomach to its natural, comfortable, healthy state.

There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. Your word is enough for us. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't restore your stomach to health and make your digestion easy and comfortable we want you to come back for your money. They are sold only at the 7,000 Rexall stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00—The Rexall Store—J. S. McKeown.

RICHARD CROKER, 71 is VICTIM OF CUPID; WIFE DIED SEPT. 6.

The announcement that Richard Croker, for years leader of Tammany Hall in New York city, was about to be married again within three months of the death of his first wife caused a stir among his wide circle of former political friends and followers. Mr. Croker is 71 years old. He has been out of American politics for years and lives on a big estate in Ireland. His first wife had been estranged from him for some years and died in Austria on Sept. 6 last. Her body was brought to New York. Mr. Croker came from Ireland to attend the funeral. On Nov. 24 it leaked out that Mr. Croker was to be married on Thanksgiving day at St. Agnes Roman Catholic church. New York city, to Miss Beulah Benton Edmondson, a singer and lecturer and a descendant of an Indian chieftain.

WOUNDED SOLDIER'S BREAK

Told Queen Amelia, Who Visited the Hospital, He Was "Very Well."

A letter from an English Corporal who was wounded in France on Oct. 23, and who is now in the Seamen's Hospital at Greenwich, has just been received by a friend in New York. The Corporal writes:

Well, we were through the thickest of the fighting between Ypres and Lille. We had twelve days in the trenches, two days together without any food or water. The ration party could not get near us, and fighting was so heavy.

About the third night we were in the trench we found we were surrounded by a much larger force than we were. The enemy opened fire, and we replied. Then it came from the rear. They were in a wood where there was a lot of undergrowth, and they had a machine gun playing on us. We had lost one officer and a few men, and then we were fired on from both sides—what they called enfiladed fire.

We had some of the "Jocks," and some of the Bedfords run into our trench to reinforce us. It was they who let the Germans through. We got the order to fix bayonets and charge the wood at the rear. Then you should have heard the squealing and moaning. They ran for their very lives, and left their maxim gun, which, of course, we captured. Two of our companies met them at the other end and cut them to pieces.

One sight we saw, and couldn't interfere with, was the shelling of a large town. The first to go was the church, and then all the houses went in a big blaze. It lit the whole of the countryside up.

One awful sight is to watch the Belgian people leaving their homes. Poor things! They just tie a few things in the tablecloth, catch up the child in their arms, and run like the devil.

I forgot to tell you while we were lying in a French hospital in Boulogne we were visited by Queen Amelia of Portugal, and a very nice lady she is. I made her laugh. She came to my bed. I put my hand out and shook hands. She asked how I was, and I forgot myself for the time and said: "Very well, thank you, your Majesty." She said, "Very well", and burst out laughing, and said, "I'm afraid you're not, but you soon will be. You have a very good spirit. That's what makes the British Tommie." She spoke a few words of encouragement, and bid us good-bye.

Miss Crespigny

By

Frances Hodgson Burnett

Author of
"That Lass o' Lowrie's"
etc., etc.

"Who is that man?" she said, to herself. "Who is that man?" And then without waiting another moment, she left the heliotrope, and made her way to the glass-door.

Mrs. Despard looked first and saw her standing there.

"Ah, Lisbeth," she said, and then turned, with a little smile, toward the gentleman, who stood nearest to her. "Here is an old friend," she added, as Lisbeth advanced. "You are indebted to Mr. Lyon for the pleasure of seeing Mr. Anstruthers again."

Lisbeth came forward, feeling as if she was on the verge of losing her amiable temper. What was Hector Anstruthers doing here? What did he want? Had he been insane enough to come with any absurd fancy that—that he could—that——. But her irritated hesitance carried her no farther than this. The young man actually met her half-way, with the greatest self-possession imaginable.

"This is an unexpected pleasure," he said, holding our his hand frankly. "I was not aware, when Lyon brought me to his friends, that I should find you here."

All this, as complacently, be it observed, as if he had been addressing any other woman in the world; as if that little affair of a few years ago had been too mere a bagatelle to be remembered; as if his boyish passion, and misery, and despair had faded utterly out of his mind.

Mrs. Despard smiled again, and watched her young friend closely. But if Lisbeth was startled and annoyed by the too apparent change, she was too clever to betray herself. She was a sharp, secretive young person, and had her emotions well under control. She held out her hand with a smile of her own—a slow, well-bred, not too expressive affair, not an effusive affair by any means.

"Delighted, I am sure!" she said, "I have just been reading a letter from Aunt Clarissa, and naturally it has prepared me to be doubly glad to see one of her special favorites."

After that the conversation became general, Anstruthers somehow managing to take the lead. Lisbeth opened her eyes. Was this the boy she had left in the moonlight at Pen'yllan? The young simpleton who had been at her feet and making himself her grateful slave? The impetuous, tiresome lad, who had blushed, and raved, and sighed, and, in the end, had succeeded in wearying her so completely? Three years hade made a difference. Here was a sublime young potentate, wondrously altered, and absolutely wondrously well-looking. The mustache, she had secretly sneered at in its budding youth, was long, silken, brown—beauteous; the slight, long figure had developed into the fairest of proportions; the guileless freshness of color had died away, and left an interesting, if rather significant pallor. Having been a boy so long, he seemed to have become a man all at once; and as he stood stalking to Mrs. Despard, and occasionally turning, half patronizingly to Lisbeth, his audacious serenity of manner did him credit. Was it possible that he knew what to say? It appeared so. He did not blush; his hands and feet evidently did not incommode him. He was talking vivaciously, and with the air of a man of the world. He was making Mrs. Despard laught, and there was every now and then a touch of daring, yet well-bred sarcism in what he was saying. Bah! He was as much older as she herself was. And yet, incongruous as the statement may appear, she hardly liked him any the better.

"How long," she asked, abruptly, of Bertie Lyon, "has Mr. Anstruthers been in London?"

Lyon, that radiant young-dandy, was almost guilty of staring at her amazedly.

"Beg pardon," he said. "Did you say 'how long?"

"Yes."

The young man managed to recover himself. Perhaps, after all, she was as ignorant about Anstruthers as she seemed to be, and it was not one of her confounded significant speeches. They were wise enough people, of course, and Mrs. Despard was the sort of woman whose parties a fellow always liked to be invited to; but then they were not exactly in the set to which Anstruthers belong, and of which he himself was a shing member.

"Well, you see," he said "he has spent the greater part of his life in London; but it was not until about three years ago that he began to care much about society. He came into his money then, when young Scarsbrook shot himself accidentally in Scotland, and he has lived pretty ripidly since," with an innocent faith in Miss Crespigny's ability to comprehend even a modest bit of slang. "He is a tremendously talented fellow, Anstruthers—paints, and writes, and takes a turn at everything. He is the art-critic on the 'Cynic;' and people talk about what he does, all the more because he has no need to do anything; and it makes him awfully popular.

Lisbeth laughed; a rather savage little laugh, though a musical one.

"What is it that amuses you?" asked Lyon. "Not Anstruthers, I hope."

"Oh, no!" answered the young lady. "Not this Anstruthers, but another gentleman of the same name, whom I knew long ago."

"A long time ago?" asked the young man, gallantly, if not with wondrous patience. "If it is a long time ago, I should think you must have been so young that your acquaintance would be hardly likely to make any impression upon you, ludicrous or otherwise." For he was one of the victims too, and consequently liked to make even a stupidly polite speech.

CHAPTER III

A Young Lion

Lisbeth gave him a sweeping little curtsy, and looked at him sweetly with her immense dense eyes.

"That was very nice, indeed, in you," she said with a gravely obliged air. "Pray, take one of my pansies." And selecting one from her bouquet, she held it out to him, and Hector Anstruthers, chancing to glance toward them at the moment, had the pleasure of seeing the charming bit of byplay.

It was the misfortune of Miss Crespigny's admirers, that they were rarely quite sure of her. She had an agreeable way of saying one thing and meaning another; of speaking with the greatest gravity, and at the same time making her hearer feel extremely dubious and uncomfortable. She was a brilliant young lady, a sarcastic young lady, and this was her mode of dealing with young men and women, who otherwise might have remained too well satisfied with themselves. Bertie Lyon felt himself somewhat at a loss before her, always. It was not easy to resist her, when she chose to be irresistible; but he invariably grew hot and cold over her "counfounded significant speeches." And this was one of them. She was making a cut at him for his clumsy compliment, and yet he was compelled to accept her pansy, and fasten it on his coat as if he was grateful.

Mr. Hector Anstruthers had been installed, by universal consent, that evening, as a sort of young lion, whose gentlemanly roar was worth hearing. Young ladies had heard of him from their brothers and one or two had seen those lovely littel pictures of his last season. Matrons had heard their husbands mention him as a remarkable young fellow, who had unexpectedly come into a large property, and yet wrote articles for the papers, and painted, when the mood seized him, for dear life. A really extraordinary young man, and very popular among highly desirable people. "Rather reckless," they would say, "perhaps, and something of a cynic, as these young swells are often apt to be; but, nevertheless, a fine fellow—a fine fellow." And Anstruthers had condescened to make himself very agreeable to the young ladies to whom he was introduced; had danced a little, had talked with great politeness to the elder matrons, and, in short had rendered himself extremely popular. Indeed, he was so well employed that, until the latter part of the evening, Lisbeth saw very little of him. Then he appeared suddenly to remember her existence, and dutifully made his way to her side, to ask for a dance, which invitation being rather indifferently accepted, they walked through a quadrille together indifferently.

"I hope," he said, with punctilious politeness, "that the Misses Tregarthyn are well."

"I am sorry to say," answered Lisbeth, staring at her vis-a-vis, "that I don't know."

"Then I must have mistaken you. I understand you to say that you had received a letter frim Miss Clarissa."

"It was not a mistake," returned Lisbeth. "I had just received one, but unfortunately they don't write about themselves. They write about me."

"Which must necessarily render their letters interesting," said Anstruthers.

Lisbeth barely designed a slight shrug of her shoulders.

"Necessarily," she replied, "If one is so happily disposed as never to become tired of one's self."

"It would be rank heresy to suppose," said Anstruthers, "that any of Miss Crespigny's friends would allow it possible that any one could become tired of Miss Crespigny—even Miss Crespigny herself."

"This is the third figure, I believe," was Lisbeth's sole reply, and the music striking up again, they went on with their dancing.

"He supposes," said the young lady, scornfully, to herself, "that he can play the grand seigneur with me as he does with other women. I dare say he is conrgtaulating himself on the prospect of making me feel sorry some day—me! Are men always simpletons? It really seems so. And it is the woman whom we may blame for it. Bah! he was a great deal more worthy of respect when he was nothing but a tiresome, amiable young bore. I hate these simpletons who think they have seen the world, and used up their experience."

She was very hard upon him, as she was rather apt to be hard upon every one but Lisbeth Crespigny. And it is not improbable that she was all the more severe, because he reminded her unpleasantly of things she would have been by no means unwilling to forget. Was she so heartless as not to have a secret remembrance of the flush of his first young passion, of his innocent belief in her girlish goodness, of his generous eagerness to ignore all her selfish caprices, of his tender readiness to bear all her cruelty—for she had been cruel, and wantonly cruel enough, God knows. Was she so utterly heartless as to have no memory of his suffering and struggles with his boyish pain, of his passionate, frantic appeal, when she had reached the climax of her selfishness and indifference to the wrong she migth do? Surely, no woman could be so hard, and I will not say that she was, and that she was not inwardly stung that night by the thought, that if he had hardened and grown careless and unbelieving, the chances were that it was she herself who had helped to bring about the change for the worse.

The two young men, Lyon and his friend, spending that night together, had a little conversation on the subject of their entertainment, and it came to pass in this way.

Accompanying Anstruthers to his chambers, Lyon, though by no means a sentimental individual, carried Miss Crespigny's gold and purple pansy in his button-hole, and finding it there when he changed his dress-coat for one of his friend's dressing-gowns, he took it out, and put it in a small slender vase upon the table.

Anstruthers had flung himself into an easy-chair, with his chibouque, and through the wreaths of smoke ascending from the fragrant weed, he saw what the young man was doing.

"Where did you get that from?" he he demanded abruptly.

"It it is one of those things Miss Crespigny's wore," was the modestly triumphant reply. "You saw them on her dress, and in her hair, and on her fan. This is a real one, though, out of her bouquet. I believe they call them hearts-ease."

"Hearts-ease he—," began Anstruthers, roughly, but he checked himself in time. "She is the sort of woman to wear hearts-ease!" he added, with a sardonic laugh. "She ought to wear hearts-ease, and violets, and lilies, and snowdrops, and wild roses in the bed," with a more bitter laugh for each flower he named. "Such fresh, innocent things suit women of her stamp."

"I say," said Lyon staring at his sneering face, amazedly, "what is the matter? You talk as if you had a spite against her. What's up?"

Anstruther's sneer only seemed to deepen in its intensity.

"A spite!" he echoed. "What is the matter? Oh, nothing—nothing of any consequence. Only I wish she had given her hearts-ease to me, or I wish you would give it to me, that I might show you what I advise you to do with the pretty things such creatures give you. Toss it into the fire, old fellow, and let it scorch, and blacken, and writhe as if it was a living thing in torment. Or fling it on the ground, and set your hell upon it and grind it out of sight."

"I don't see what good that would do," said Lyon coming to the mantlepiece, and taking down his meerschaum. "You are a queer fellow, Anstruthers. I did not think you knew the girl."

"I know her?" with a fresh sneer. "I know her well enough."

"By Jove!" exclaimed Lyon, suddenly, as if a thought had struck him. "Then she did mean something."

"She generally means something," returned the other. "Such women invariably do—they mean mischief."

Will You Help The Hospital for Sick Children, the Great Provincial Charity?

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Thanks for the privilege of appealing through your columns on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children. The Hospital takes care of sick and deformed children, not only in Toronto, but in the Province, outside of the city.

This coming year, of all the years in the Hospital's history, has a more serious outlook, as regards funds for maintenance, than any year that has passed its calendar.

So many calls are being made on the purses of the generous people of Toronto and Ontario, to help the soldiers of the Empire, that as I make my daily rounds through the wards of the Hospital, and see the suffering children in our cots and beds, the thought strikes me as to whether the people will as of old, with all the demands made upon them, answer our appeal and help to maintain the institution that is fighting in the never-ending battle with disease and death, in its endeavor to save the stricken little ones in the child-life of Ontario.

Last year there were 394 in-patients from 210 places outside of Toronto, and in the past twenty years there have been 7,000 from places in the Province other than Toronto.

It costs us $2.34 per patient per day for maintenance. The municipalities pay for patients $1 per patient per day; the Government allows 20 cents per patient per day; so, deducting $1.20 from $2.34, it leaves the Hospital with $1.14 to pay out of subscriptions it receives from the people of Toronto and the Province. The shortage last year ran to $18,000.

Since 1880 about 1,000 cases of club feet, bow legs and knock knees have been treated, and of these 900 had perfect correction. Nearly all these were from different parts of the Province outside of the city of Toronto.

Remember that every year is a war year with the Hospital; every day is a day of battle; every minute the Hospital needs money, not for its own sake, but for the children's sake. The Hospital is the battle-ground where the Armies of Life have grappled with the Hosts of Death, and the life or death of thousands of little children is the issue that is settled in that war. Will you let the Hospital be driven from the field of its battle to save the lives of little children for the lack of money you can give and never miss?

Every dollar may prove itself a dreadnought in the battle against death, a flagship in the fleet that fights for the lives of little children.

Remember that the door of the Hospital's mercy is the door of hope, and your dollar, kind reader, may be the key that opens the door for somebody's child.

Will you send a dollar, or more if you can, to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, or

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees,
Toronto.

IRISHMAN SAVED COMRADES

Returning from Stolen Leave, He Spoiled a Prussian Surprise.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A new story of a British encounter with the Prussian Guard was told by a Corporal of the Warwickshire Regiment who is now at home wounded.

"The night the Prussian Guard attacked us around Ypres," he said. "It was only by the merest chanced a fine piece of heroism that we were warned in time. There was an Irishman of the King's Liverpool Regiment who had strayed out of bounds to meet a girl whose home was off the line of attack. Coming back late, he stumbled on the Germans stealing quietly toward our position. Without though of consequence to himself, but only concerned for the safety of his comrades he dashed towards the spot where he knew our guard to be to give the alarm. The Germans spotted him, and a cavalry patrol was it his heels instantly. He had a good start, but toward the end he was hit in both legs.

"He got through with the warning, and is now in the base nospital, pulling through. He doesn't know whether he will get a medal or a wigging for being out of bounds, but he's hoping for the best."

SIBERIA CHANGED BY WAR

No Vodka Anywhere—Troops and Prisoners Moving Constantly

PEKING, Nov. 25.—Passengers coming to Peking by way of the trans-Siberian Railroad unite in declaring that there have been remarkable changes among this line of travel since the beginning of the war.

Vodka and other intoxicants, usually for sale at every small station, are now nowhere to be had. Almost every hour of the day and night troop trains were encountered going westward, while other trains carrying crowds of Austrian prisoneurs are moving eastward to Siberia. A telegraphic news service from the Government press bureau is delivered twice a day to every station along the line.

The Austrian prisoners are allowed great freedom. Their guards are few in number and quite indifferent as to what the prisoners do. They understand that there is no danger of the Austrains escaping. They cannot talk the language, and it would be impossible for them to travel any place on foot without discovery. No German prisoners were seen.

German Assaults In the Argonne Repelled With Little Trouble.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Comparative quiet prevailed along the western front Sunday except in the Argonne, where the French repelled several attacks.

The following communication was issued by the War Office Sunday night:—

"Quiet prevails along the front, except in the Argonne region, where the German attacks have not been more successful than preceding attacks."

The official statement issued by the War Office yesterday afternoon says:

"Yesterday the enemy's cannonading was more active, but carried on chiefly with 77 millimetre pieces; his heavy artillery has made itself felt very little. Under these conditions the artillery struggle has turned particularly to our advantage.

"In Belgium, our infantry captured several supporting positions to the north and to the south of Ypres. In the country to the north of Arras, one of the enemy's attacks, undertaken by nearly three regiments has definitely failed after several counter-attacks carried out in all directions.

"Between the Somme and Chaulnes we have made perceptible progress. In the neighborhood of the village of Fay, our troops came into immediate contact with the wire entanglements of the defence.

In the region of the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, a group of machine guns and emplacement for 30 centimetre pieces were destroyed by our shells, one of which caused an explosion in one of the enemy's batteries.

"In the Vosges three counter-attacks, undertaken by the Germans for the purpose of recapturing ground previously taken by us in the Ban-de-Sap region, were repulsed."

The Government is arranging for a couple of hundred motor trucks of about three tons capacity for the transport department of the second Canadian contingent.

Lieut.-Col. A. E. Ross, with the Army Medical Corps of the first contingent, shook hands with Queen Mary at the recent inspection and gave her information regarding the work of his corps.

CANTEEN MUST STAY.

Government Says Present Plan at Salisbury Has Worked Well.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—In reply to representations that have been made to the Government regarding the "wet canteen," established in the Canadian camp on Salisbury Plain, an official statement last night said that, while any suggestions from the Canadian Government would no doubt be carefully considered, even though the camp is under the direct control of the War Office, the present arrangement seems the wisest one under the circumstance.

The statement says: "According to official information the complete abolition of the "wet canteen," so-called, resulted in excesses and disorders among a few of the men when they obtained leave of absence, and resorted to neighboring towns and villages, where the opportunity to purchase liquor presented itself.

"After careful consideration, Gen. Alderson determined that it would be better to have a regulated wet canteen, at which beer might be sold at certain hours and under careful supervision.

"The Government is assured by the War Office that the trouble in the neighboring villages, which occasioned much concern at first, has practically ceased since the opening of these regulated and supervised canteens."

Cossacks Saved Prisoners.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30.—The following story has been received from Petrograd:—

"In the region north of Lodz 500 Russians were caught in a village, after they had expended all their ammunition in a sharp fight with the Germans, and were taken prisoners.

"A captain of a Cossack force who had been watching his chance seized a favorable opportunity, and, when the prisoners were under convoy on their way to the German rear, attacked and killed the guards and brought the Russians back safely to their own lines."

Spies In British Army.

READING, Eng., Nov. 30. — Two alleged German spies have been "dealt with" by the military authorities, after having been discovered in the Hants Regiment of Earl Kitchener's new army. Copies of letters relating to the movements of troops were found on them. The men were a lance corporal and a private, stationed at Codford.

FRENCH IS OPTIMISTIC OVER BATTLE OF YPRES

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the field, speaks in an optimistic vein concerning the position of the allies in a report issued yesterday by the official bureau. The report covers, in a general way, the activities of the British troops from Nov. 11 to Nov. 20, with extensive reference to fighting preceding these dates.

Summing up the situation in concluding his report, Field Marshal French says:—

"As I close this despatch, signs are in evidence that we are possibly in the last stages of the battle from Ypres to Armentieres. For several days past, the artillery fire of the enemy has slackened considerably, and his infantry attacks have practically ceased.

"The role our armies in the west have been called upon to fill, has been to occupy strong defensive positions, holding ground gained and inviting the enemy's attack, and to throw back these attacks, causing the enemy heavy losses in his retreat and following him up with powerful and successful counter-attacks to complete his discomfiture.

"The value and significance of operations of this nature since the commencement of hostilities by the allies' forces in the west, lie in the fact that at the moment when the eastern provinces of Germany are in imminent danger of being over-run by the numerous and powerful armies of Russia, nearly the whole active army of Germany is tied down to a line of trenches extending from Verdun on the Alsatian frontier to the sea at Nieuport, east of Dunkirk, (a distance of 260 miles) where they are held, with much reduced numbers and impaired morale, by the successful action of our troops in the west."

TIME NOT RIPE YET.

German Fleet Must Stay In Hiding Says Berlin Naval Expert.

LONDON, Nov. 30. — The Daily Telegraph special correspondent at Rotterdam reports:

"Captain Persius, naval critic of The Berliner Tageblatt, in an article on the German naval position, says: Many German hopes at the beginning of the war were built on somewhat fantastic foundations. The British fleet was under-estimated, and it was considered that there was absolutely no reason why Britain should continue to rule the seas. The results had forced Germany in a great measure to withdraw this view. Even the greatest British losses must not be regarded as decisive events, he suggests.

"An English newspaper statement that Britain is satisfied with what her fleet has done proves in a negative way that such complete satisfaction does not exist. He contradicts the claim that there is evidence that German submarines have been more successful than British submarines, but admits that after four months the German scheme for wearing down the British fleet has not yet succeeded. The psychological moment has not yet arrived for the use of German battleships and large cruisers.

"We must be careful," Captain Persius concludes, "not to buoy ourselves up with false estimates about the position of affairs. We must not forget that in spite of the glorious success of our submarines, there has not yet occurred any significant weakening of the sea power of Britain as the result of the war."

GERMANS CHANGE BASE.

Cruisers Which Had Been Off South America Now at Aleutians.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 30. — That three German cruisers which had been operating off the coast of South America had changed their base to the Aleutian Islands, and were patrolling the trade route between Puget Sound and the Orient, was the report brought yesterday by the Japanese liner Tacoma Maru, in port from Yokohama.

While crossing the Pacific the Tacoma Maru received a wireless despatch from the Chicago Maru, west-bound, stating that German warships were in the area between the 180th and 190th meridians. The Chicago Maru reported that she had altered her course to avoid capture. Precautions were taken aboard the Tacoma Maru, which for three nights proceeded without a light showing. Local shipping men are skeptical regarding to truth of the rumor.

Marching On Suez, Says Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30. — (Via London.) — According to a Berlin message to The Telegraaf, Cairo reports that 76,000 Turkish troops, under Izzet Pasha, are marching against the Suez Canal. This army includes 10,000 Bedouins with 500 camels. The reports also state that the Turks have built a field railway to the Elnrakel oasis.

The road to the Suez Canal, according to the despatch, is barricaded by the British with a long line of trenches and with artillery positions.

Body Identified.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 30.—Relatives on Saturday identified the body which was found in a creek near this city Friday afternoon as J. Mills, a resident of Norwich, twenty miles from Woodstock. Mills had been an inmate of the House of Refuge for about a week, but wandered away a few days ago, eluding the authorities of the institution. His dead body was found in a creek face downwards by a rural mail carrier. Coroner Mearns yesterday opened an inquest.

Judge Boys Dead.

BARRIE, Nov. 30. — His Honor William Fuller Alves Boys, recently County Court Judge, died at his home here yesterday morning, in his 82nd year. The funeral will take place tomorrow, to Union Cemetery, Barrie.

SLAIN BY PRISONERS

Turnkey Coxford of Pembroke Battered to Death by Indians.

Jailer William Brown Is In a Critical Condition and His Subordinate Dead as the Result of a Brutal Attack by Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, Who Escaped and Are Still at Liberty.

PEMBROKE, Nov. 30.—Under circumstances of the utmost brutality, Turnkey James Coxford was yesterday evening battered to death in the local jail by two renegade Indians, and his assistant, Jailer William Brown, subjected to a beating that has left him at death's door. The assailants escaped into the open and are at large, while armed posses and volunteer searchers are scouring the countryside for them. At 3.45 an armed party left on a special G. T. R. train for Golden Lake hoping to head off the fugitives from reaching the Indian reserve maintained in that district. The town and surrounding neighborhood are stirred into a fever of excitement, and every available man is being pressed into the search. Feeling runs very high because of the obvious treachery of the attack, and the gruesome nature of the beating administered.

Immediately after the supper hour when the two Indians, Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, were being conducted into the cell, and when the turnkey was making affairs comfortable for the night, the two sprang on him from behind. From some unknown source they had acquired a heavy club fashioned from a piece of boarding, and with this they proceeded to beat him to death.

Hearing the noise of the conflict Jailer Brown ran in but by this time Coxford was dead, and the two prisoners sprang at him. Before he could lift a hand he was felled with a blow which fractured his skull. The Indians then dragged the body of the murdered man to a lavatory at the end of the corridor and escaped into the open air.

The only person who saw their escape was a little girl who reported seeing two men running across the fields towards Golden Lake. The alarm was quic[illegible] spread and the search began.

White Duck and Jocko were recently remanded on a charge of stealing from G.T.R. freight cars at Golden Lake, and had been in the jail nearly two weeks. To all intents they were harmless men.

The turnkey had no opportunity of defending himself beyond wielding his heavy bunch of keys. Jocko has appeared on a similar charge in the past.

The Pembroke jail is a strong, well-built structure, capable of confining 25 men. At the present time there are a dozen prisoners there.

Since the fugitives are understood to have run in a southerly direction it is feared that they may reach the Golden Lake reserve and persuade some of their friends to conceal them. An armed guard will patrol this place until word of the murderers is received.

Sheriff Morris has assumed charge of operations, and every road from the town is placed under surveillance.

VON HINDENBURG HONORED.

Kaiser Awards Him Marshal's Baton For Early Success.

BERLIN, Nov. 30. — (Via The Hague to London.)—The field marshal's baton of the present war has been awarded to Gen. von Hindenburg. His chief of staff and collaborator, Gen. von Lunendorg, has been promoted to a lieutenant-generalship for his share in the successes. The award to Von Hindenburg comes with the great eastern battle still undecided, as a reward for the preliminary victories at Wloclawck and Lodz, which, it is said, have thrown the Russians on the defensive with a loss of 60,000 prisoners and 150 guns. It is taken here to indicate that the Emperor has confidence that Von Hindenburg will completely defeat the Russian army.

The honor of receiving the grand cross of the Iron Cross, the emblem given a field marshal, is the highest military distinction a German commander can receive, and was won by Von Hindenburg, as in the cases of the first Von Moltke, Crown Prince Friedrich and the Prussian "Red Prince" Friedrich Karl, on the field of battle.

Canadian Division Manoeuvring.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—For the first time the whole Canadian division is to-day out on manoeuvres, which will prove a most welcome change to the keen spirits who, for some time, have been eager to get busy at a real kind of drill which is necessary before they are fit for the front. The only combined movements so far have been route marches and brigade drills.

Considerable amount of leave is still being granted. The work of erecting wooden huts goes on well, Canadian engineers helping the civil contractors in this work.

Kaiser Back In the East.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—(Via Amsterdam and London.)—It was announced at military headquarters yesterday that Emperor William was now with the German army in the east.

Cables Are Cut.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A despatch to The Central News from Copenhagen, says the cables between Fredericia, Denmark and Libau, Russia, and between Fredericia and Petrograd, which are the only direct cables between Denmark and Russia, have been cut in the Baltic Sea, 170 miles east of Bornholm. It is supposed, the correspondent says, that the cutting was done by German warships. The only communication with Russia now is by way of Sweden.

QUAKE IN GREECE.

Twenty-Three Persons Are Killed In Seismic Disturbance.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Twenty-three persons were killed and a number of others were injured in the earthquake which occurred on Friday in western Greece and the Ionian Islands, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens.

On the Island of Santa Maura the earthquake caused strange convolutions of the earth's surface. The mountain of Pefkoulia collapsed and crumbled away for a distance of nearly two miles, and the waters of the Ionian Sea penetrated the valley to the extent of about 125 acres. New small mountains appeared at different points on the island.

German Warship Mined.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—A despatch to The Matin from Petrograd states that it is reported there that the German battleship Wilhelm Der Grosse struck a mine and sank in the Baltic, but adds that there is no official confirmation of the rumor.

The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm Der Gosse, evidently referred to in The Matin despatch, is one of Germany's old battleships, having been built in 1901. The warship is of 10,790 tons displacement and carries a crew of 658 men. Her main battery is composed of four 9.4-inch and fourteen 6-inch guns.

New Army Off For France.

HAVRE, Nov. 30. — Transports have been continuously steaming from England to Havre ever since Lord Kitchener, at the Lord Mayor's banquet in London, said that he had 1,250,000 men ready to land in France. The troops are mainly territorials. They were loudly cheered as they marched from the docks through the streets. The men appeared to be in high spirits, singing, cheering and whistling as they marched.

Von Moltke a Prisoner.

London, Nov. 30.—The Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily News, wiring from that city, says: — News reaches me privately that Gen. von Moltke is not suffering from liver complaint, but is a prisoner in one of the Imperial palaces. Gen. von Moltke retired gracefully from headquarters, because he interfered too freely in operations conducted by the Crown Prince on the west front in the early stages of the German retreat.

To Winter In Berlin.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30. — The last word in German mendacity is found in a proclamation which has been placarded in three languages in this city. It runs:

"Paris being infected by cholera, the Kaiser has withdrawn his troops, and has permitted them to winter in Berlin, where they will enjoy the repose they have so nobly earned."

PRISONERS GIVE A PLAY

AUBURN N.Y., Nov 27.—The chapel of Auburn Prison, transformed temporarily into a theatre was filled last night with interested citizens, who attended a minstrel and vaudeville show by inmates. A moderate admission fee had been charged, the proceeds going to welfare work among convicts.

A clever adaptation of the first act of a popular play was the feature of the performance. The buck and wing dancing by negro prisoners was also well received. Prisoners acted as ushers, and ice water was served as in up-to-date playhouses. During an intermission lantern slides were shown of road work and prison activities.

The Prisoners' Mutual Welfare League is endeavoring to obtain a list of speakers who will lecture evenings during the Winter on educational topics.

WHARF FOR SMALL CRAFT

The Thousand Island Railway Co. are having a dock constructed for motor boats and other small craft just east of the large steamboat wharf, Gananoque, a convenience which will be greatly appreciated by owners of small boats, as they will be able to land there and not be in the way of larger boats.

CHEQUE RAISER CAUGHT

Gordon Powell was committed for trial at Hastings last week on a charge of raising a cheque from $1.80 to $180. The merchants at Hastings on whom he tried to pass the cheque did not cash it. Powell has previously served a term in Central Prison, Toronto, for stealing a horse and a rig at Port Hope.—Cobourg Star.

A HAPPY DESERTER

Police Officer Thompson this morning received a communication from a party named Frank Hicks, who at present is upon a British man of war in Russian waters. Hicks some weeks ago walked into the police station here and gave himself up as a deserter from the British Navy. He was sent from here to Halifax, where he once more joined the British Navy. In the communication the writer stated that he was again in his element and was prepared to do all in his power to assist in defeating the Germans.

INTOXICANTS ARRESTED

CALLS FOR POLICE

Two calls were on Saturday evening answered by the police and in each case parties under the influence of liquor were the cause.

FOR UNEMPLOYED

Gananoque Town Council have had a large quantity of stone piled at convenientn places about town, which will be used next season for road-making. They intend to give men out of work the privilege of breaking it instead of having it crushed, which will help to keep employment for those in need of it. The City of Belleville might consider doing something along the same line as Gananoque; as there are a large number of unemployed men in the city at present. Well-to-do citizens are constantly appealed to for assistance, which would not be the case if work was found for these idle men.

BASKETBALL MATCHES

On Saturday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building two basketball matches took place, and they were of an interesting nature. Kingston delegates and a picked team, with the result that the game was a tie, both teams scoring 16 points. Brockville delegates played a team from this city, and the result was 31 to 2 in favor of Belleville.

MASS MEETINGS

At the Tabernacle church yesterday afternoon a mass meeting was held, addressed by Mr. J. Alexander of Chicago. His subject was "On the Trail," and it was handled in a masterly manner. At the John Street Presbyterian church at the same hour Mr. C. W. Bishop of Toronto, addressed a mass meeting to parents. There was a large attendance at both churches and the addresses were of a high order.

BELLEVILLE'S STORES

Front Street Stores Begin to Wear Their Christmas Attire—Holiday Stocks are Filling up Fast—Suggestions to Shoppers

The war has not frightened our good old annual visitor, Santa Claus, away, for Belleville Christmas shopping has certainly begun in our stores. And "business as usual," in the various departments of trade is quite evident. Perhaps the war conditions have modified somewhat the preparations for this big festival of the year; but investigation would show that the large stores are very much in the same state of preparedness as they were at this time last year.

To begin with all the pretty things that children love in this line are not a monopoly of the land of the Kaiser. France, Belgium, Holland, Japan and other lands send their supplies, and even if none of those countries were available at this moment owing to unsettled conditions, the stock in most cases was secured long before the war began. Buyers went to Europe and the different toy markets had packed their supplies, so that the dearth expected by the public was more imaginary than real.

PLENTY OF XMAS SPIRIT.

Go with any procession of shoppers and you will begin to wonder if there is not perhaps more of the Christmas spirit abroad than ordinarily is the case. Anxiety and suffering in homes that have now a vacant chair—the old-time tenant of which is perhaps on the Plains of Salisbury, in our own camp, or it may be even at the front on the firing line—have broadened hearts and they go out to shop and secure some remembrance for others as a means of showing their sympathy.

All kinds of beautiful things are on view. Holiday books, fancy goods, and jewellery are displayed in great variety. Ladies' and gentlemen's wear brighten the store windows and show cases. The satchel, glove and handkerchief counters are favorite spots of adults, and the usual Christmas novelties in the way of ties and slippers for men friends are on hand, just as of yore.

Ask any of the girls who wait on you so deftly from behind the counter, and who keep their patience, even though they are besieged on every side by impatient buyers, if business is any slower than last year and they will in all probability tell you.

Merchants are not confining their displays to their regular lines, but are inclined to dip into other goods not usually allied to their regular stocks. The desire to present as large and varied a selection for the Christmas shopper as can be obtained, accounts for the temptation to entrench on the domain of other regular dealers.

If there was ever a time when The Intelligencer can be of great service it is now, when its readers are facing the hurries and worries of Christmas shopping. The advertising columns from now until Chritmas eve will contain many helps to shoppers. They will give suggestions to those who have hard work to decide. The wise shopper will make full and free use of the advertising.

Thoughts of the suffering and misery across the waters will make Christmas all the more near and dear to Canadians.

There will be a meaning to the day it has never held before. And with the increased sentiment will come a wiser practical distribution of little remembrances.

"Paddy" O'Flynn of Belleville

THE WIT AND SUNSHINE OF THE SECOND BATTALION

The following is a synopsis of a letter received by the Toronto Globe from Major Beattie, Chaplain of the Second Battalion Canadian expeditionary force, gives an interesting picture of the side of camp life at Salisbury that is not described in ordinary press cables. Major Beattie says:

"Life in tents these cold, wet days, with mud a foot deep, is not exactly heaven." So says the scribe of The Canadian Gazette, and it is no lie either. Mud! Mud Mud! of the old Winnipeg brand! It is a twin brother to a certain kind of smile that is reputed to have staying qualities. But what of it. "Paddy" O'Flynn of Belleville, the wit and sunshine of the 2nd Battalion, has been working overtime to make good the delinquencies of Old Sol. The other day, when some special comfort came Paddy's way, he exclaimed with his usual solemnity: "If this is war, may there never be peace!"

HALSTON

The Halston Branch of the Women's Institute of East Hastings, held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Sargeant. The meeting was opened by singing The Maple Leaf. The weather being favorable there were fourteen members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved by the members. The roll was called, each giving useful hints in line on household work in answer to call. In the business course of the meeting it was moved, seconded and carried by members, that there be a donation to the amount of $10.00 given to the Belgium Relief Fund, also $10 be given to the Children's Shelter of Belleville. There was a good programme provided for the meeting. After which the meeting was dismissed by singing the National Anthem. Luncheon was served, and all enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

ARRAS IS BOMBARDED

Germans Have 700,000 Men to Hurl at Allies' Line.

Conflicting Reports From Western Battle Front Indicate That Ypres May Be Object of Another Desperate German Attack—Other Signs Point to Abandonment by Enemy of Offensive.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Press reports from Belgium and France yesterday speak of renewed fighting around Arras, but conflict in respect to Ypres. Some say that the Germans are bent on renewing their attempts to take Ypres, and others that signs point to an abandonment of the German offensive, with the offensive of the allies already under way. The French official report (published to-day) tells of the capture of some German positions in the Ypres district.

The Daily News correspondent says that a most destructive bombardment of Arras, is under way, and that a great deal of hand-to-hand fighting has taken place in the vicinity.

The Boulogne correspondent of The Weekly Despatch, in a message published yesterday, says:—

"The Germans have concentrated 700,000 men in the neighborhood of Arras, where they are preparing for a determined effort to break through the allies' line.

"Heavy fighting has already begun."

The Daily News has a despatch from western Flanders, dated Sunday, saying that during the past few days the situation along the Yser and around Ypres has undergone a very significant change. The offensive has passed from the Kaiser's army to the allies. When and how the allies will make use of the new situation cannot at present be stated, Generals Joffre and French have a magnificent mobile force at their disposal ready for the day when the Germans will need some encouragement to leave Belgian soil.

The Daily Express has a "frontier despatch," saying that the allies are taking the offensive south of Ypres, occupying the German trenches. When the latter returned the advance of the allies was supported by a deadly artillery fire.

William Maxwell, in a despatch to The Telegraph, which is given prominence to-day, says in part: German prisoners declare their officers are under oath to drive the British from Ypres or die in the attempt. It is certain that another effort is about to be made to reach the coast, and that the point of attack has been decided upon. The Aisne is the barometer by which to gauge the weather in the western region of the war, and the quietness in the region presages the rushing of reinforcements and another attempt to break through elsewhere.

Heavy firing on the northwest coast of Belgium is reported from Oostburg, and there can be little doubt from the direction and nature of the cannonading that the British fleet has again been bombarding the defences erected by the Germans on the coast. Communication by rail between Holland and Antwerp has to-day been indefinitely suspended. Military movements of the utmost importance are in full swing on the south of the frontier, and frontier guards are exercising the greatest vigilance to prevent the leakage of news.

Small Indemnity For Luxemburg.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Germany has paid an indemnity of 150,000 marks ($37,500) to the Duchy of Luxemburg, according to a despatch to The Temps from Bordeaux.

One of the first acts of Germany after the outbreak of the war was to invade, on August 2, the Duchy of Luxemburg. This action was criticized by the allies as a violation of the neutrality. The payment of an indemnity, if made as reported, presumably would be intended to recompense Luxemburg for Germany's act.

To Investigate The Cox Estates

Succession Duty Officials Consider Value Stated is too Low

It is understood, says a Toronto journal, that the Ontario Government is going to appoint a commissioner with a view to having a full investigation of the estates of the late Senator Cox and the late E. W. Cox. This move, it is stated, is due to an impression that the inventory of the two estates does not set forth the full amount upon which the province is entitled to collect succession duties.

Last session, in bringing down the legislation amending the Succession Duty Act, Hon. I. B. Lucas explained to the House that power was being taken to deal chiefly with cases where rich men, in order to save their heirs the heavy charge of succession duties, were making transfers of property before death. The new clauses made it clear that no such transfer of property relieves the estate of the liability to pay succession duty. One new clause declares that an estate shall include any property, or income therefrom, voluntarily transferred by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift made in general contemplation of the death of the grantor, bargainor, vendor, or donor, and with or without regard to the imminence of such death and made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after such death."

Hon. I. B. Lucas refused to discuss the matter, but it is believed the Department considers that the valuation of $900,000 on the estate of the late Senator Cox and something under half a million on that of the late E. W. Cox is away below the amount upon which the province is entitled to collect.

The appointment of a commissioner is provided for by last session's legislation which gives such power to the Provincial Treasurer. The commissioner, vested with all the powers which may be conferred under the Public Inquiries Act, will make a full examination of all books, papers, etc., of any corporation in which the deceased held shares to determine the value of any property transferred before death or omitted from the inventory filed.

Several names have been mentioned for the commissionership, with Mr. Justice Middleton a likely choice.

The finding in this case will be interesting to those who have any property to bequeath or give away before death.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

BIG GUN CHARGES

Handling Shells and Powder at a Naval Ammunition Base.

SAFETY FIRST IS THE RULE.

All Workmen on Iona Island, Uncle Sam's Station in the Hudson River, Wear White Serge Suits and Moccasins, and Copper Tools Are Used.

Iona island, the United States naval ammunition base in the Hudson river, covers 116 acres. Within its limits are stored about 3,000,000 pounds of smokeless powder and over 1,000,000 pounds of black powder, besides many thousands of shells. This war material is kept in large brick and stone powder magazines and shell houses.

The powder magazines all have four separate fireproof walls and are divided up into compartments in order to prevent a fire or an explosion from reaching or destroying the entire contents. The loaded shells are kept separately from the empty projectiles and are stored in two fixed ammunition magazines. Each shell is weighed and numbered before being put away. The weight is recorded in chalk on the shell.

Magazine attendants inspect the shell houses and powder magazines many times during the day and night. At night each visit is recorded on the disk of the magnetic clock in the administration building. The temperature in the shell houses and powder magazines is kept between 85 and 90 degrees.

Just how many shells for the big battleships are stored away at Iona island is a secret, but there are lots of them. They are expensive. Thus the fourteen inch shells, weighing 1,600 pounds and requiring a charge of nearly 400 pounds of powder, cost about $800 each.

One of the principal activities at Iona island is the manipulation of smokeless powder for charges for the large and small guns of the navy and of black powder for bursting charges for the shells. The powder filling houses are situated at widely separated points. They are small one story wooden structures, isolated owing to the possibility of an explosion. The men working in them are required to wear white serge suits and moccasins; no metal or other articles are allowed in their pockets which might in any way cause a spark.

All the tools, funnels, measuring cups, scales and other appliances used are made of copper. Here the delicate and somewhat dangerous business of weighing out the various smokeless powder charges is carried on. The weighing has to be done very carefully. At the Indian Head proving grounds the naval ordnance experts by tests determine the powder charges best adapted for the various guns, and at the annual target practice the results as to range and velocities of the various charges are recorded. Then slight changes in the composition of the powder lead to changes in the weight of the charges.

Each morning the day's supply of powder is brought from the magazine to the filling houses in lead colored wooden boxes. These are zinc lined and air tight. The boxes of powder are emptied into a long wooden trough and with a copper scoop the powder is dipped out, accurately weighed and tied up in quarter, half and full charges in bags of white muslin.

These bags have several wide streamers for fastening them, and each is tagged with the date of filling and the amount of powder it contains. A small ignition charge of quick burning black powder, to set off the smokeless, is stowed in the bottom of each bag. The bags are then placed in large copper cans and returned to the magazines, where they are held in readiness to go aboard the ships.

The big charges of 400 pounds for the fourteen inch guns are arranged in four charges of 100 pounds each. The bags when piled on top of one another reach to the top of a man's head and present a formidable sight of bottled up destruction.

One of the important operations performed in the magazine houses is loading the projectiles with their bursting charge. For the fourteen inch shells fifty pounds of black powder is used and about thirty pounds for twelve inch shells. To hold the shell steady and to get at the base of these huge steel missiles—some of them weighing 1,600 pounds—they are roped in a sling and hoisted clear of the floor by a pulley and chain. The point is then lowered a foot or so into a stout wooden frame with an opening a trifle larger than the shell. Then a long narrow bag is inserted in the shell cavity and the measured amount of black powder is poured through a funnel into the shell. Some fifty of these huge projectiles can be loaded in a day.

Several of the smaller filling houses are used to assemble the cartridge cases and the bursting charges of the three-inch rapid fire shells.—New York Sun.

Fine Gun For Lt.-Col Hughes

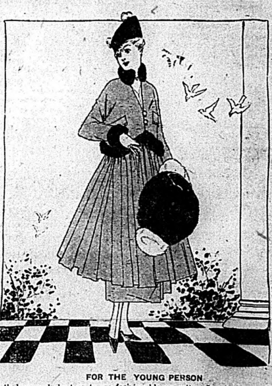
Quick Firer to be Presented to Him

Will be Gift From Officers and the Staffs of Various Canadian Penitentiaries

KINGSTON, Nov. 28.—The officers and staffs of the various penitentiaries of Canada have combined for the purpose of expressing their appreciation of Lt.-Col. Hughes, O. C., 21st Battalion, and are about to purchase for the battalion which the popular commanding officer is now training in this city a fine modern quick-firing gun. When it was rumored that Col. Hughes intended going to the front with the first contingent, an offer of a similar present was made, and it is now renewed, and this time Col. Hughes accepts the gracious gift with every gratitude both on his own part and that of his battalion. For the past two years Lt.-Col. Hughes has been inspector of penitentiaries, and in that brief period has completely won the admiration and respect of the officers and staff of the six Dominion penal institutions. He has made a capable, obliging, courteous inspector and his military training covering a long term enabled him to conduct his duties in the most expeditious manner.

Eighteen members of the staff of the various Canadian peitentairies have already gone to the front, and most of these had previous military experience and active service on the field. Prince Albert Penitentiary staff gave 8, Edmonton 4, British Columbia 4, Stony Mountain 2, and of all of these are in the Princess Pats popular regiment. Some of these men wear two, three, and even four active service medals, and it is said are a very fine type of soldier.

The machine gun which the Pens are presenting to Col. Hughes will form a part of the machine gun section of the 21st Battalion and if given a chance at the front will spit a lot of Canadian fire into the ranks of the army of the Kaiser and the enemies of the Empire.



FOR THE YOUNG PERSON

Both long and short coats are fashionable on suits. Jaunty basque like jackets top pleated skirts. The flaring tunic has now become almost a sikrt; yet, it is noticed that the top skirt shows, even though only an inch below and is extremely short. The above model of green broadcloth is trimmed with seal fur.

"They're six fine sons ye have, Casey," said Denis Flaherty to his friend. "They are," replied Casey. "Do you have any trouble with them?" inquired Denis. "Trouble?" repeated Casey. "I've never had to raise my hand to one of them except in self-defence!"—Pall Mall Gazette.
